OUR COMMON INTERESTS

It is said that the new American tariff will give our farmers many of the benefits which they would have obtained from reciprocity. The Farmers' Sun points out several instances where reciprocity would have been better for our farmers. Let us be content with saying that our farm exports to the United States will undoubtedly increase and will perhaps equal or exceed, our farm exports to the United Kingdom. The error that it is necessary to dispel is that increased continental trade is a menace to the unity of the empire. That error was part of the campaign rubbish of 1911 which may now be thrown away.

Our trade with the United States is larger than our trade with all other countries combined. But more than that, our domestic trade far exceeds our imports and exports combined and our domestic trade is continental. It is probable that at least nine tenths of what we produce in Canada on farms or in factories, out of mines and out of forests, is sold and used on the continent of North America.

American farmers are entering Canada in vast numbers. Branches of American factories are being established in Canada. The City of Toronto is borrowing money in New York. Our intercourse of all kinds, commercial, industrial, financial, is increasing.

Those who take a broad view of what is best for Canada and the empire will not conceal or deplore this growing intercourse, but will rejoice in it. Its tendency is toward peace and friendship, and the firm friendship of Great Britain and the United States will do much to promote the peace of the world and improve international relations the world over.

We are about to celebrate the centenary of peace between Canada and the United States. The significance of this is that we are celebrating not an artificial, but a natural, relation. We are not exchanging hollow courtesies such as might be exchanged by two men on the brink of a quarrel, but calling attention to solid facts which are assurances of solid peace and growing friendship. In our own trade relations, in our industrial and financial relations, we act like people who have dismissed the possibility of war from our minds. Our frontiers, virtually undefended, are evidences of the same feeling. We co-operate in sanitary work and social service.

Little quarrels over flag incidents, little displays of prejudice on one side or the other, are insignificant back-currents in the mighty stream of tendency that is creating a new kind of international relation between the British commonwealths and the United States. In the case of Canada and the United States it has been shown that there can be the closest social intercourse, sympathy and co-operation in social service and a vast and growing commerce without the slightest danger of political absorption. It has been shown that fleets and armies and forts are not necessary for the preservation of peace between two sensible and friendly neighbors. This lesson will eventually be learned all over the world. The best interests of nations are not conflicting but common interests.

Apropos of the request of the Grain Growers of the west for action by the Canadian Manufacturers' Association in support of the movement for increasing the British preference to fifty per cent. with the aim of having free trade with Great Britain in four years, The Ottawa Citizen, the leading Conservative organ in the capital, again reverts to its role of candid friend to the government. In asking the Canadian manufacturers and the government to give practical evidence as to the bona fides of "the talk about imperial unity, and loyalty to the common flag," The Citizen says editorially:—"An empire with tariff barriers erected across its own territory and separating its own parts, is certainly not even an approach to anything like an ideal. The Canadian manufacturers have a splendid chance to make a definite announcement this week. Atlantic ocean freight rates ought to be sufficient "protection" from British manufacturers to Canada's "infant" industries.

The Tory flag-flappers who went about the County of York two years ago denouncing the reciprocity agreement and characterizing as disloyal all those who favored closer trade relations with the Yankess, have about all been provided for at the public expense. Some of them are filling positions which God and nature never intended them to fill, while others are picking up easy money from the public treasury, the Valley Railway and in connection with various public works now going on here. With these men out of the way it is difficult to find a person who will not readily admit that the abolition of the duty on lumber and farm produce by the United States government is going to greatly benefit the County of York.

The Ottawa Tory government has so much money to spend these days that it can afford to employ two medical officers to administer to the physical needs of the half a hundred or so of men who comprise the garrison at the Fredericton military depot. One of the surgeons is a member of the permanent corps who is especially trained for the work and the other is a local doctor who performs military duty as a side-line to his regular practice. Of course the people are paying the bills.

Hon. R. L. Borden, when in opposition, frequently expressed the opinion that the appointment of men to office as a reward for party service and without any regard to their qualifications was a gross breach of a solemn public trust. The government of which Hon. Mr. Borden is the head has made a number of such appointments and it is not necessary to go outside of Fredericton to find the proof. There is a marked difference between Tory preaching and Tory practice.

As one of the leading lumbering and agricultural counties, York stands to reap great benefits from the new United States tariff. It will not be nearly so beneficial however, as the reciprocity agreement of two years ago would have been and so far as the consumer is concerned he does not get a look in.

The announcement is made in an Ottawa despatch that Hon. T. W. Crothers, minister of labor, will not resign. It is intimated however, that he might in the near future accept a judgeship. It is to be hoped that his translation to the bench will not be unduly delayed.

So far as the office of Police Magistrate of this city is concerned it looks as if it would be better for us to bear the ills we have than to fly to others we know not of.

RELAYING CORNERSTONE
100 YEARS OLD

Boston, Mass., Sept. 29.—The cornerstone of St. Mary's Episcopal church at Newton Falls, near this city, which was originally laid in 1813, was relaid today under appropriate ceremonies and in the presence of thousands of visitors from Boston and other cities and towns in this section of the state.

St. Mary's was the first Episcopal church in Newton. The congregation was organized in 1812 and in the following year the first church was built. The cornerstone was laid by the grand lodge of Masons of Massachusetts, assisted by the Maridian Lodge of Natick. Recently when the old church building was thoroughly repaired, the old cornerstone was taken out and the box containing the old records examined.

At the ceremony today the cornerstone was relaid by the same lodges which laid the original cornerstone in 1813. In the evening there will be a reception at the church and several of the surviving former rectors of the church will deliver addresses.

ADJOURNED TILL THURSDAY

searching the faces of the twelve men in the box who held her life in their hands as though the drama was growing monotonous and she no longer felt anxiety at the outcome.

The jury were out only an hour and fifteen minutes. When their verdict was pronounced the prisoner was dismissed by Judge White at the instance of Attorney General Grimmer.

THE POTATO SITUATION

A Woodstock dispatch says: There is no change in the potato situation and farmers who every season sell from the field are storing in preference to selling at 70 cents a barrel. Saturday dealers in Houlton were paying $1.80 a barrel, and the demand was brisk. There is some difference of opinion as to the duty on potatoes under the new tariff, the general impression being that it is 10 per cent. American dealers say the duty is the same as on potatoes going into Canada which is about 62 cents a barrel. Immense quantities are coming down the C. P. R. from northern sections in Arcoostook ten specials passed through Sunday carrying potatoes only.
