WHITE SLAVE TRIAL BROUGHT TO A CLOSE

Testimony in Celebrated California Case Has Shocked the Whole Country---One of the Girls in the Case Has Had a Fifty Thousand Dollar Vaudeville Offer---Mrs Caminetti Testifies in Her Husband's Favor

San Francisco, Sept. 6.—The court recital of the trip Maury Diggs, Drew Caminetti, Lola Norris and Marsha Warrington took to Reno, has ended. Diggs and Caminetti have been tried on charges that in taking the two girls to Reno they violated the White Slave Law.

The testimony in the two cases has shocked the whole country. One effect has been amazement—amazement that United States District Attorney McNab was blocked in his prosecution of the cases by the federal authorities. McNab's resignation was forced after he had publicly denounced the delaying tactics of his superiors, and President Wilson himself accepted the resignation.

But the testimony has proved that what McNab said was true. California people, at least, are in full sympathy with him.

Another result has been a $50,000 vaudeville offer to Maury Diggs—if he and Marsha Warrington would appear together.

Neither Diggs or Caminetti denied the trip to Reno, nor denied that they had taken the girls with them. They did contend that it "simply happened" that they went to Reno—that the plan was only to leave Sacramento and get away quickly.

VERDICT FORESHADOWED.

But the conviction of Diggs as a White Slaver—in the minds of those who followed the two cases—foreshadowed the Caminetti verdict.

Caminetti did not deny Lola Norris' accusations of himself, nor that he had promised to marry her, although he, like Diggs, was already married.

Although Caminetti had expected to testify Wednesday, the government forestalled him and instead he listened to his own words as taken down by W. E. Doan, a Sacramento court reporter, in reply to the questions of F. A. Atkinson, assistant district attorney of Sacramento County, after the Reno arrests.

"Did you tell Lola Norris that you'd marry her?" Mr. Atkinson asked.

"I believe I did," Caminetti had answered. "I don't want to make any statement; I'd be contradicted later, but I believe I did."

"Did you make the promise in good faith?"

"Yes, I did."

"Did you intend to leave your wife and children and marry her?"

"Yes, I did."

DEFENDS HER HUSBAND.

Mrs. Caminetti testified for her husband. She told of her husband's nervousness, sleeplessness and lack of appetite during the week before he left her and of their threats to carry their domestic infelicities to the court.

"I told him I had been to see Judge Hughes," she swore, "and he replied, 'My God, girl, haven't I worried enough?' I had been told he was going around with these girls. I told him that Mrs. Diggs and I had had several conversations about it and had been advised to bring suit against Mr. Warrington if Miss Warrington didn't stop going around with our husbands. She was boasting of it, we were told, and both the girls said they didn't care if the men were married. They should worry' was what they said."

Marsha Warrington and Maury I Diggs are in demand as a vaudeville attraction.

ANGLERS IN CONVENTION

The 43rd Annual Meeting of American Fisheries Society

Atlantic Salmon, the Oyster Industry and Other Subjects to be Discussed

Boston, Mass., Sept. 8.—The men who commune with nature in the trout pools and on the gleaming rapids, and who know what the depths of the lakes and the ponds on the prairie contain—who can propagate fish in the sand hills and raise carp on green corn—these assembled in Boston today for the forty-third annual meeting of the American Fisheries Society. Governor Foss and Mayor Fitzgerald welcomed the members at the opening session this morning. For three days the society will discuss Atlantic salmon, the oyster industry, fish refugees and fish passes, recent progress in oceanography and a variety of kindred subjects.

Nearly all of the members of the fisheries society will take part in the annual meeting of the National Association of Fish and Game Commissioners, which will begin a three days' session here tomorrow. J. H. Acklen of Tennessee, will preside over the meeting. An important feature will be a public hearing on the killing of migratory birds by Dr. T. S. Palmer, acting chief of the United States Bureau of Biological Survey. The hearing will be relative to the proposed federal regulations upon the killing of migratory birds. An opportunity will be given to sportsmen to state their views, particularly with reference to the new sunset and sunrise regulation.

COPPER STOCK IS BUOYANT

Canadian Pacific Was Steady Around 221---Government Crop Report Was Unfavorable

New York, Sept. 8.—While there was much in last week's news budget to draw attention to the more unfavorable aspects of the situation there were no developments that could be called new. The unfavorable government crop report had been definitely foreshadowed for a fortnight past and the attitude of the Democratic to ward banking interests attempting to bring about a change in the proposed currency legislation was well known. In fact everything that is featured in current gossip as unfavorable to security values has been largely discounted. It seems to assume, therefore that the enactment of tariff and currency legislation as presently outlined will not disturb the market very far.

He has served lengthy jail sentences before, according to their statement.

Chief Hawthorn says that the man had been at McAdam for some time and had been well behaved until yesterday when he committed the offense named. The Italians belong to a construction gang working for the C.P.R. at McAdam. If necessary they will be brought here as witnesses. Lavigne made some resistance when arrested.

THAW UNLIKELY TO BE ADMITTED TO BAIL

His Counsel Have not yet Made any Move in the Matter---Likely to be Detained by Immigration Authorities at Coaticook Until Sept. 15th---Constitutionality of Immigration Act Involved---Jerome's Arrest Dencounced

Montreal, Sept. 7.—No move in the matter of seeking the liberation of Harry K. Thaw on bail will be made before the local courts, according to well informed circles here tonight. The friends of the slayer of Stanford White, now that they have brought the whole question to the attention of the court of the King's Bench, will content themselves with awaiting developments in the ordinary course of justice.

Thaw may be brought here the early part of this week, or he may be detained at Coaticook until the 15th. This is a matter entirely in the hands of the Dominion immigration authorities. Once landed in the city, he will be kept in the detention house of the immigration department and not be lodged in the city jail.

While awaiting a decision in his case, he will be provided with comfortable quarters, will be able to receive friends and will be afforded any luxuries he may care to pay for. He will be in no wise a prisoner except in the sense that he will be detained as any ordinary immigrant concerning the advisability of whose entry into the country the immigration authorities entertain any doubt.

IMMIGRATION ACT ATTACKED.

The whole litigation will resolve itself into a discussion of the question as to whether the Canadian Immigration Act is or is not constitutional. The Thaw attorneys will contend that the act, in its present form contains an infringement of the right of the individual to free locomotion. They will also represent the enactment as embodying an infringement of the habeas corpus act, as well as of the Magna Charta.

Thus it is seen that the scope of the case is widened to such an extent that the Dominion parliament, the constitutionality of whose enactment is placed in jeopardy, will be directly interested. Thus far it is only the immigration department which has been embroiled in the litigation but it is not unlikely that parliament will have to intervene directly to back up the constitutionality of the act which it passed.

When the matter finally comes up before the Court of King's Bench, it will be heard by the full bench, which consists of Chief Justice Archenbault, Justices Tremholme, Cross, Laverne, Carroll and Gervais.

Of these, five constitute a full bench for actual sitting. The attack on the constitutionality of the immigration act, it will be recalled, is no new proceeding, for when the act was before the House of Commons, one of the leading members of the Liberal party, who now occupies a position on the bench, took a prominent part in denouncing the provisions of the measure; such denunciation being based on arguments which are advanced in the Thaw side of the fight in the present case.

JEROME SANGUINE OF GETTING THAW.

Montreal, Sept. 7.—William Travers Jerome had little to say tonight when the matter of his arrest at Coaticook was broached. He said he understood the case had been remanded but for how long he did not know.

Of the Thaw case he said it was only a question of time when Stanford White's slayer will be once more safely confined in "the little old boarding house on the Hudson."

Franklin Kennedy of the New York state attorney general's office, who was with Mr. Jerome, admitted that he was becoming tired of the case.

"Tired of it," snorted Mr. Jerome. "Don't talk to a man who's been on the case for seven years about being tired of it."

Then, changing his tone, he inquired: "Do you know anything about that pamphlet Thaw's getting out? It's about the symptoms of insanity, I think. Well, he ought to know all about them."

Mr. Jerome would not admit that he knew anything about when Thaw was likely to be brought into the city. He further denied a rumor to the effect that he was leaving the city, which is taken by the defense to mean that Thaw is likely to be brought to Montreal within the next few days.

Although the principal on the "gambling case" would say nothing of his adventure in Canadian criminal law, Mr. Jacobs of this city, representing the State of New York, expressed the opinion that Jerome's arrest was a most disgraceful affair.

"It is a reflection on the whole Canadian bar," said he, "when a visiting attorney, just because he happens to be connected with the side of a case unpopular with some people, is treated as neither he nor anyone else would be under other circumstances. It is a case of plain, petty spite and although the defense disclaim any connection with the affair, I think it was instigated by some one not entirely unconnected with the Thaw forces."

Thaw's Sunday was perhaps the most uneventful day since his arrival in Canada. He had only two callers, his stenographer and his local counsel Dr. W. L. Shurtleff. Most of the day the prisoner spent reading about himself in the newspapers. The officers in charge volunteered to take him for a walk in the open air if he felt in need of exercise, but Thaw declined with thanks.

Two hero-worshipping girls stood beneath the barred window of his room for half an hour this afternoon holding aloft bouquets and begging him to show his face.

"We want to say we have seen you once, Harry," they cried. "Just come to the window for a second."

A guard turned and spoke to Thaw but the fugitive refused to show himself.

MEXICAN HOLIDAY WAS CELEBRATED

City of Mexico, Sept. 8.—The Mexican capital forgot her troubles today and all classes and nationalities joined with the Spaniards in the celebration of their great holiday, Covadonga. There is no fiesta on the calendar in this republic that is more popular. Even the great national feast days of the Mexicans do not surpass Covadonga in general interest. As the Spanish colony is the largest of the foreign organizations and includes many men of great wealth, there is no shortage of funds. Elaborate entertainment was provided for all day. Games, athletics, fireworks, free theatres and the gathering of the colony's beauty combined to attract large crowds to the Tivoli del Eliseo, where the principal events of the program were held. In addition there was a special mass at the Cathedral, said by Archbishop Mora in person. In the afternoon a special bull fight was given at which twelve of the most beautiful women of the Spanish colony presided as queens.

SUIT OVER DEAD MAN'S ISLAND

Ottawa, Ont., Sept. 8.—The suit of the King vs. the Vancouver Lumber Company involving possession of Dead Man's Island, a valuable piece of property on the water front at Vancouver, was called for hearing in the Exchequer Court today. Argument of the lease to the island given to the lumber company is sought on the ground that the paper was never regularly signed. The legal fight is one of long standing. The property originally was included in the military reserve. In recent years the value of the property has increased several million dollars. It is now sought by two railway companies for use as terminals.
