OF BRITAIN'S ISLES

On condition that he undertake to acquire within twelve months a colloquial knowledge of Welsh Dr. Manifold was appointed senior assistant medical officer at the North Wales Counties Lunatic Asylum.

"It's Water We Want"

To protest against a shortage in the water supply many of the inhabitants of the colliery village of Aber, near Cardiff, organized a parade. In the procession was carried a banner with the words, "It's water we want; no water, no rent."

Ferocious Dogs

A strange example of canine ferocity was furnished at Girvan, Scotland, when a lad named George Love, son of Captain James Love, Grangemouth, was attacked by four dogs on Girvan shore and badly lacerated. They were beaten off with considerable difficulty.

Cleaning Public Statues

The Corporation of London voted $200 to be spent on cleaning and renovating the statues within the area of its jurisdiction. They are the statues of the Prince Consort in Holborn, King William IV. in King William street, and Sir Rowland Hill at the Royal Exchange.

Memorial to Composer

There was unveiled in the Doune Cemetery, Girvan, Scotland, a monumental cross, erected by public subscription to the memory of William Jackson, composer of the air to "The Bonnie Lass o' Ballochmyle" and other songs, who is buried in a nameless grave there.

Girl Keeps Bull at Bay

When a laborer on a farm near Fermoy, Ireland, was knocked down by a bull, which began to maul him, Miss Jennie Watson, a girl of eleven, attacked the animal with a shovel handle, and by beating it on the forehead kept it at bay until the man got to his feet, when both escaped through a gate.

Duke's Inn

A statement regarding the ownership of the Ferry Inn, which is claimed by the Duke of Argyll, was submitted to the Inverary Town Council. It was resolved to offer to hand over the Ferry Inn at once to the Duke of Argyll, along with the ferry rights, provided his grace undertook to keep an efficient ferry service between Inverary and St. Catherine's.

The Golden Well

A meeting of "pilgrims" resorting to St. Winefride's Well was held at Holywell, Wales, and passed a resolution protesting against the proposed mining drainage works which, it is said, will diminish the flow of water to the well, which is credited with miraculous cures. St. Winefride's Well, said Mr. McKean, M.P., was the greatest asset England and Wales had. It was "a gold mine," and it would be a mistake to sacrifice an actual gold mine for a problematical lead mine.

A Royal Precedent

It is probable that the Prince of Wales is the first actual Heir-Apparent to serve with a volunteer force under canvas as a private. The only similar case is that of the Duke of Clarence at the beginning of the nineteenth century. At the time of the Napoleon scare the Duke joined the Teddington volunteers, and carried a musket in the ranks. But he was not then heir to the throne which he occupied eventually as William IV.

Gymnastic Burglar Captured

A gymnastic burglar was captured by the Glasgow police on four charges of breaking into shops and warehouses. A remarkable feature of all these burglaries was that the burglar entered the premises through the window or roof after having climbed a pipe. In one case it is known that he must have climbed a pipe to the sixth storey.

Girls Fight About Sweethearts

Mary Meldrum and Barbara Fleming, young girls employed in the woodyard at Bo'ness, were charged with engaging in a stand-up fight in North street. They had each other by the hair, and their extraordinary conduct attracted a big crowd. The fiscal said they fell out about sweethearts. "Shake hands and go away," said the magistrate. They did.

Comedy of Bogus Commissioner

The story of how a well-dressed man duped a countryside by playing the rôle of Land Commissioner was told at Galway, Ireland, when Thomas Parker was sentenced to nine months' imprisonment for obtaining food and lodging by false pretences. John Keating, a farmer, said that the accused called at his house, and said he was a Land Commissioner, and that he had come down to divide Earls-park. He said he would not give the witness more than six acres. The accused remained all night, and had his supper and breakfast. The witness went round with the prisoner on the following day to mark out his holdings. Others had similarly entertained the prisoner.

SEVENTY-EIGHT YEARS OLD

Boston, Mass., Sept. 15—Richard Olney, who filled the positions of attorney general and secretary of state in the cabinet of President Cleveland, today celebrated his seventy-eighth birthday anniversary, quietly, as is his custom, at his summer home at Falmouth, Mass.

Rousch, the youngster who has been playing short for the White Sox, looks like a handy man for the Callahan crew.

"In the Case of MY Little Girl—"

In choosing and using a soap for your "Little Fairy" you will find no soap so mild, so neutral, so agreeable to tender skins as FAIRY SOAP.

Being made from products that you could eat, FAIRY SOAP agrees with even the tender skin of a babe.

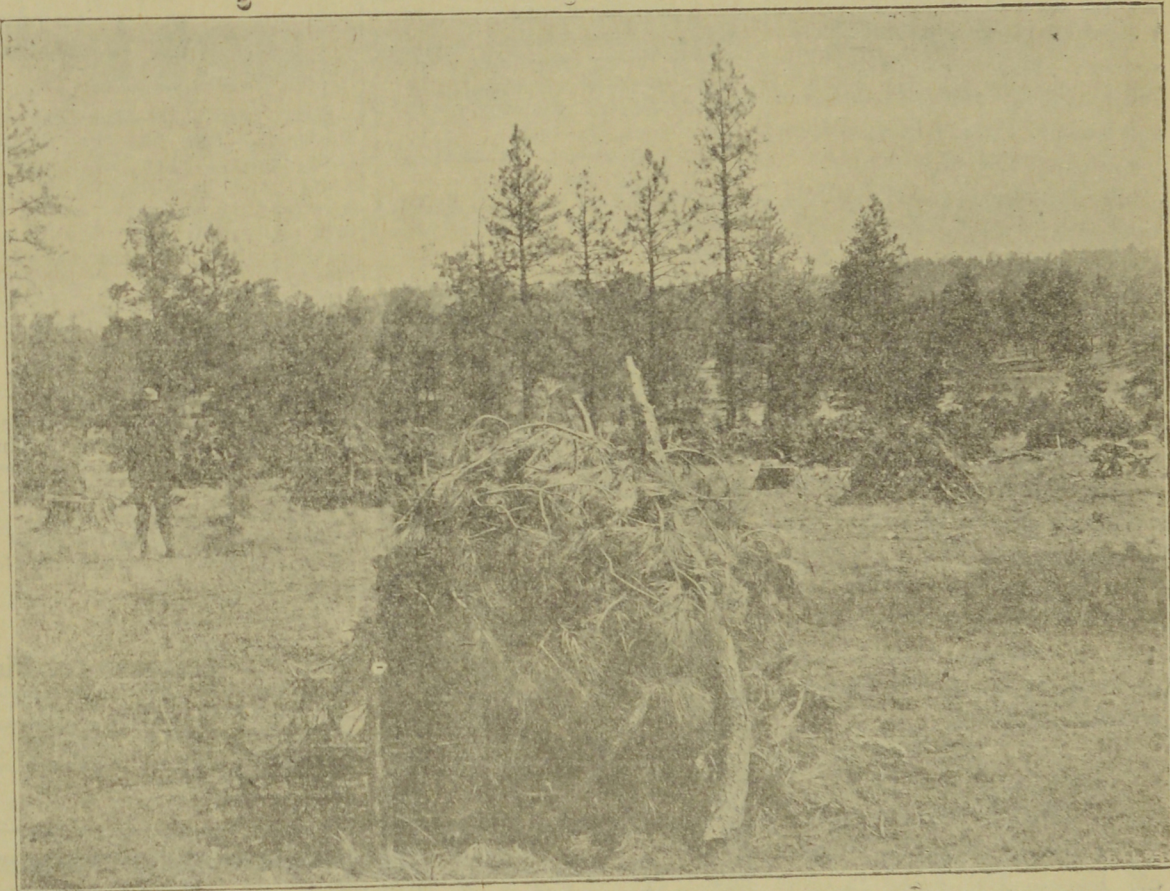

FAIRY SOAP

is white—pure—floating. It comes in a handy oval cake. We could charge you five times the price asked for FAIRY SOAP and we could add nothing to its quality.

In higher-priced soaps you are paying for high-priced perfume and fancy wrappers—not better soap.

A LESSON IN CONVERSATION

This picture shows the application of lopping and piling methods, where trees have been cut in a lumbering operation. This is one method of doing away with the slash menace. At a suitable time of the year the piles are burnt. Another method of reducing the danger from fires is by lopping and scattering; that is to say by trimming the tree tops left by the loggers and thus bringing the brush close to the ground where it will rapidly decay.

An example of a lumbering slash where the tops have not been lopped. A fire would spread with tremendous rapidity in such a slashing and would be exceedingly difficult to fight. Good forestry practice obviates danger of this nature.
