STRAY BAGGAGE IS VALUABLE

(New York Sun.)

"Every trunk that's lost contains diamonds, necklaces and all that," remarked the baggage man at the Grand Central Terminal. "That is, they're supposed to. Anxious passengers whose trunks have been sidetracked tell us of all the wonderful things they contain. But the funny thing is that when the trunks are located, it's usually found that dresses, shirts, and things of that nature were about all that were in them. Many of those who reclaim their stray trunks tell us so themselves. Examination proves it in other cases. It just goes to show that the lossers always exaggerates his losses."

KEEPING TOUCH WITH GUESTS

(New York Sun.)

Any hostess knows that her guests particularly those of masculine gender are pleased when she remembers whether they take cream or lemon in their tea, and how many lumps of sugar. It is the personal touch absolute.

"How do I always remember?" smiled the youthful matron. "I'll show you. In this little address book I enter, all the names of people who are likely to come in for tea. When they first come I watch carefully for their individual desires as to sugar and cream and write it down. When I send out my invitations for my next affair I look up the records."

YOUNG DUPONT TAKES A JOB

Wilmington, Del., July 31—Alfred Victor du Pont, disinherited son of Alfred I. du Pont, was expected to check in at the Pennsylvania Railroad shops here to-day as a strike breaker. Du Pont, who is 23 years old and a Maynard senior applied for work in the shops when "business got bad" at the motor company where he was employed.
The boy never forgave the elder de Pont for accusing his mother of infidelity and disputing his parentage. The Delaware Legislature at the instance of the powder manufacturer, passed a law changing his son's name from Alfred Victor to Dorsey Gazebove du Pont, but the mother of the boy induced the Governor to refuse to sign it.
Du Pont's loyalty to his mother cost him an inheritance estimated at $50,000,000. The Pennsylvania will pay him 20 cents an hour.

DO BEST WORK IN SUMMER

(New York Sun)

"I'm all for hot weather and lots of it," the insurance agent proclaimed when some one asked him whether he did more business in the summer or winter.

"In the summer," he said, "office doors are likely to be wide open. When I call on a likely prospect I can see him sitting at his desk as a rule. He doesn't have the nerve to tell the office boy that he's not in when I've just waved cheerfully at him. So I seldom cool my heels in a reception room when the weather is warm."

THE ONTARIO POTATO CROP

Toronto, July 31—Early potato prospects throughout the whole province are excellent, according to Thos. Delemere of the United Farmers' Co-operative Company. "I have been through most of the potato growing sections of Ontario," he said, "and everywhere I hear the same story—a bumper crop of excellent quality. The average yield will run around one hundred bushels. It is too early yet to judge late potato prospects, claims Mr. Delemere.

PRETTY GIRLS LOST JOBS

Detroit, July 31—Six Detroit girls are out of jobs today because they were too pretty. They are the ones who filled extra positions under the Comptroller's Department, receiving tax collections in the first-floor corridor of the City Hall.

"Too attractive and too efficient as chin-workers," Chetfield Pulkford Assistant Comptroller, commented briefly, in discussing their removal.

The business of paying taxes has been pleasant for Detroit property owners since the bevy of young women were installed. They were always ready to talk—to ready, the city officials say—and now their places will be filled with young men less gifted with verbosity.
