Giants Won First of World's Series Games by Batting Rally in Eighth

Fusilade of Hits Won the Game 3 to 2—Yankees Failed to Tie
Score in Ninth—Big Crowd Saw Great Contest.

New York, Oct. 4.—The unconquerable spirit to keep on trying when success doesn't come at first, carried the New York Nationals to a victory this afternoon in their first clash with the New York Americans for the 1922 title of world baseball champions. The score was 3 to 2.

To overcome a 2 to 0 lead that the Yankees had acquired the Giants turned back in all their previous assaults upon the American League's defense, crashed out for singles, one right after another, in the eighth inning, and then crowned their furious attack with a sacrifice fly. The four hits crushed Bush the Yankee speed ball pitcher, and tied the score. Waite Hoyt succeeded and on his fourth delivery yielded the sacrifice fly which scored the deciding run of the game.

The winning machine climbed up the hill in low speed. Early in the game, with Bush and Art Nehf, the Giants southpaw, fighting a scoreless duel, the Nationals couldn't score with two successive singles. In the seventh inning they banged out three one-baggers in a row and could not score. The Giants simply went back in the eighth inning and kept on pounding out one-baggers until it was impossible for the stubborn Yankee defense to prevent them from crossing the plate.

Babe Ruth Failed

Babe Ruth, the celebrated home run swatter, swung violently at the ball all afternoon. Nothing that even left the impression that he could hit a home run came from his heavy bat but he did bang out a single that broke through the monotony of the early scoreless innings, which Nehf and Bush imposed upon the batters.

Ruth's timely clout, came in the sixth inning. Whitey Witt, the Yankees centre fielder, had slammed a triple into left field and had been run down when he tried for home on a blow to short from the bat of Joe Dugan. As Witt lost out in his chase there he was Dugan galloped on to second base and from there he was sent in with the first run of the series when Ruth punched a short single into right field.

The next inning the Yankees got their second run. Bob Meusel singled past Heinie Groh, the Giants third baseman. Wallie Schang laid down a bunt to push Meusel along to second but before the Giants got through playing with the bunt he had reached third. Nehf, in picking up the soft tap that Schang laid in front of the plate decided to try to catch Meusel at second instead of being satisfied with the out at first. He threw wild and the ball went past second baseman and into right field. There it was fumbled by Young. This lapse permitted Schang to reach second while Meusel went to third. Aaron Ward then lifted a fly almost to the centre-field bleachers and Meusel trotted home.

Unable to Finish

Neither Nehf or Bush was able to finish the job he began. Each was suffering from a stone bruise on the heel. For six innings it appeared that like Achilles, they had only this one vulnerable spot. But these appearances did not deceive the men hired to hit for John McGraw and Miller Huggins, managers of the Giants and Yankees.

Polo Grounds Packed

The Polo Grounds were packed. The day was fair and so warm that many in the bleachers sat in shirt sleeves.

Today's paid attendance—36,514, was greater than that at any of the eight games which the Giants and Yanks fought out at the Polo Grounds last year for the world title. The receipts today amounted to $119,036 of which the players will share in $66,708.36, each club $20,236.12, while the baseball commissioner's office will receive $17,845.40.

St. John Globe: There are many complaints from persons living in the vicinity of Black Beach about fast driving over the roads in that locality by automobiles late at night. And it is said that many of the cars use that road late at night and in the early hour in the morning carrying liquor from city to secluded spots along the coast. About two weeks ago a large touring car said to be carrying a load of liquor and drive over the road at a furious rate of speed crashed into a carriage beaking it up and throwing the two occupants into the ditch. Fortunately no one was hurt and the driver of the car made good the damage rather than have the matter go to the courts.
