GASOLINE ON LOCK FOILED THE THIEVES

Lawrence, May 31—A bold attempt to rob the clothing store of Zuber & Choate at 563 Essex st last night, was foiled through the quick wit of William H. Atkinson, a locksmith, and as a result two men gave their names as Jacob Goldberg and Maurice Freedman in the court and will be arraigned tomorrow, charged with breaking and entering in the night time.

Yesterday afternoon during the busiest hours of the week in the local stores, the two defendants are alleged to have gone to Zuber & Choate's store and removed the lock on the front door. They took the lock to Atkinson's locksmith shop and asked to have a key made.

A few days ago the lock was out of order and Mr. Atkinson repaired it. When it was presented at his shop he recognized it and suspected again that something was wrong. He, however, made the key, but at the same time poured a little gasoline into the lock. Then he followed the two men and saw them replace the lock on the store door.

He reported the matter to Charles Zuber of the Zuber & Choate firm, and when the latter said the story was too absurd to be true, Mr. Atkinson told him to ascertain if the lock smelled of gasoline, Mr. Zuber found that it did.

The police were notified and when the store was locked up at 10 o'clock reserve officers Henry Coleman and Daniel Murphy were locked inside. They waited until just 11.55, when the men under arrest, it is alleged, opened the door and entered. The arrests quickly followed.

BIG FEATURE PROGRAM AT THE GAIETY

The Wednesday-Thursday play is Hail the Woman with a Star cast.

Hail the Woman is as fine as any thing Thomas H. Ince has ever done.

The story shouts the emancipation of woman. If you are a woman and not yet emancipated you can't afford to miss the film. It proves that the male of the species has been getting away with it too long and that the worm will turn so to speak. It contrasts the woman who allows herself to be imposed upon with the woman who fights for her rights. It tells you thrillingly that the scarlet woman is just as good and probably better than the man who brought about her disgrace.

It has a heart throb and a tear drop every inch of the way it plays upon your emotions with complete abandon and it is an all-round excellent photoplay.

The acting is all praiseworthy, but the outstanding individual work is accomplished by Madge Bellamy, who reveals an almost Gish-like sensitiveness and feeling as little Nan Higgins. She is a great surprise and a rare promise.

Maritime Members Take Part in Debate

Dr. Lovett of Digby-Annapolis Speaks in Praise of the Budget

—Progressive Members Criticize Both of the Old Parties

—Necessaries of Life Exempted From Operation of the Sales Tax.

Ottawa, May 30—The budget debate today drifted into the doldrums, speakers for the most part addressing an almost empty chamber, and with but a meagre few gracing the galleries. The debate will be continued in earnest tomorrow, however, when it is expected that one or more of the party leaders will speak.

No new arguments were developed in any of the three parties today, the attitude of the Progressives remaining critical both of the budget and of the Conservative amendment. L. J. Lovett (Liberal, Digby-Annapolis), saw in the budget an honest effort to curtail expenditures. Nova Scotia had not benefitted commercially by her union with the other provinces of Canada. Nova Scotia had a natural market in the United States and the province had suffered greatly through the defeat of reciprocity in 1911. Nova Scotia wanted trade barriers removed and exorbitant freight rates reduced. Mr. Lovett agreed with what other maritime members had said in previous discussions regarding the importance of controlling the Intercolonial Railway in the maritime provinces.

L. J. Ladner, (Conservative, Vancouver south), declared that a protective policy had built up Canada and should not be abandoned.

D. F. Kellner (Progressive, Edmonton east), remarked that the government appeared determined not to disturb special privileges.

Putnam, Colchester.

H. Putnam, (Liberal, Colchester), declared that during the elections the Liberal party had promised not to disturb business conditions if returned to power. Conservative criticism resulting from the fact that the government had not immediately reduced to the basis of the 1919 platform failed to consider that conditions now were much different than in 1919. The people of Canada did not for a moment expect that the 1919 proposals would be immediately adopted. It was trifling with the truth to say that the people were deceived.

Dr. R. J. Manion (Conservative, Fort William and Rainy River), declared that the budget did not carry out either the Liberal or the Progressive platform.

Lewis, Swift Current

A. J. Lewis, (Progressive, Swift Current) declared that he was "a free trader out and out," but that apparently the great majority of the people in this country do not believe in free trade. He estimated that that total reduction on agricultural implements at $144,460 and on the British preference at $5,000,000, whilst the estimated increase in the sales tax was $30,000,000.

J. J. Hughes, (Liberal, Kings, P. E. I.), interjected that in his speech the other day he had forgotten to point out that the exceptions from the sales tax included most of the necessities of life, which would remove nine-tenths of the objections to that tax.

Mr. Lewis replied that "perhaps the sales tax does not bear so heavily on my honorable friend as if he had a large family."

J. D. Drummond (Progressive West, Middlesex) said if the debts of the dominion, provincial and municipal governments in Canada were totalled it would probably be found they amounted to about $4,500,000,000. He did not know of a single case where a tax placed against an industrial corporation was not paid by the producer or the consumer.

H. A. Fortier (Liberal, Labelle) argued that decreasing revenue had made increased taxes necessary. The remedy for our financial difficulties was an increase in population.

MEMORIAL SERVICE.

Montreal, May 30—Sunday, June 18, is recommended as the date for a special memorial service by the army and navy veterans of Canada to all commands of the dominion command which met here to decide the matter today.

pressed themselves very favorably towards the new Westmorland County fire act, and are going to discuss its adoption at their July meetings. Probably York County will be one of the first to adopt the new act, as many of the large owners of private forest lands are in favor of it as well.
