WHY WORRY?

Recently a daring "equestrienne," as the circus posters delighted to call her, broke her thigh and was otherwise badly bruised and shaken. But it didn't happen when she was jumping through a burning hoop or turning handsprings over the backs of speeding horses. It didn't happen in the sawdust ring at all—but in a sleeping car, where she fell out of an upper berth and made a bad landing.

Such freakish behavior of the fates is by no means rare. Aviators, whose occupation is rightly regarded as hazardous, do not always drop to their death from the clouds. Sometimes they slip on a banana peeling right on terra firma and break their necks. Sometimes they succumb to potmaine poisoning, or they get run over by an automobile.

This isn't saying that certain occupations commonly regarded as hazardous. It merely goes to show the futility of worrying. Some people are always looking forward to calamity. They feel sure it will come in some particular way that their imaginations have pictured to them; and in 99 cases out of a hundred nothing of the sort ever occurs. Why waste time and nervous energy worrying?

WILLIAM'S BOOK

W. Hohenzollern has an eye to business. He has written his memoirs, a book that will set forth his side of the story of the great war and what led up to it. For the publication rights to this story outside Germany, he is said to demand a million dollars. It is predicted, moreover, that he will get his price.

We doubt if it will be worth a million dollars plus the other expenses of publishing for the world to learn what the former kaiser, now a recluse brooding over his fate, is able and willing to disclose. William is in no condition to remember events clearly or to set them down accurately and without bias. However, most of us are tremendously curious. We like to know what a fallen monarch thinks of himself. We like to be let into his secret thoughts as far as he will let us in. And we expect even the ex-kaiser to be off his guard at certain points of his narrative. His book will have a wide circulation.

It seems he has not yet decided on the title. "How I Escaped Hanging" would be suitable.

Yesterday was the fortieth anniversary of the entry of Hon. W. S. Fielding into public life and the event was fittingly observed by his fellow members at Ottawa. He was presented with a silver tea service by his Liberal colleagues while the Nova Scotia members presented him with forty roses and a group photo of the solid sixteen. Hon. Mr. Fielding was elected to the N. S. Legislature for Halifax on June 20, 1882 and two years later became Premier. He held the office until 1896, when he joined the Laurier Cabinet as Finance Minister, the portfolio which he now holds in the King administration. Hon. Mr. Fielding is Nova Scotia's greatest son and men of all shades of politics will join in extending congratulations to him on his fortieth political birthday.

The helicopter is the awkward name for a flying machine that can rise straight from the surface of the ground, hover in any spot it chooses and down again as straight as it went up. Edison suggested years ago that this kind of airplane would be necessary before aerial navigation came into its own. Peter Cooper Hewitt experimented with the idea. But not until a few days ago did a machine of this type fly. The inventor is an Englishman. If the contrivance is practical then roofs may be used for aerodromes, safety will not depend upon a continuous forward movement and, from the military standpoint, a pilot can hang over his enemy until he has bagged his game.

There is an undertone of admiration in some of the stories printed about the Hammond, Ind., waiter who was too busy to go to Chicago to have a Croix de Guerre pinned on him by a general sent over by the French Government; some slight hint that he had done something commendable. But it may be that the incident merely demonstrates that a man may be brave without being either courteous or intelligent.

No doubt you have observed as we have, how true to their respective temperaments are the wets and dries in every argument. The dries deal exclusively in the driest kind of statistics. No wet can swallow dry statistics. The wets are tearful and emotional. The whole question is a conflict of temperaments and, as such, incapable of argument.

The trouble with the Conservative opposition in provincial politics at the present time is that it has too many leaders, the ratio being quite out of proportion to the number of followers.

"The approaching conference," says The Hague Post, "Will not be a champagne party beginning with a flourish and ending with a headache." Still, there are possibilities in a Dutch lunch.

The enlightened electors of the county of Kings after listening to both sides of the story have placed themselves on record in favor of the proposition that twenty dollar shoes are a luxury.

Conan Doyle is trying to reach the spirit world by wireless. Marconi is trying to signals from Mars. We'd jest machally hate to postpone our vacation until one or the other succeeded.

Henry Keaonuihoomehamehaokalani Long, of Hawaii, has become a member of the Boy Scouts of America. His Scout name will probably be So-long Henry.

Vassar girls were defeated by their fathers in a baseball game on class day. Fathers can do this and get away with it. Beaus would not have dared.

"Everybody Flaps but Father" is a good popular song for the times.

Hoyt-Benham

St. John Telegraph: A very pretty wedding was solemnized at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon in St. Mary's church, when Rev. R. Taylor McKim united in marriage Miss Laura May, daughter of Mrs. Amy and the late Charles Benham of Fredericton, to James Albert Hoyt, son of Silas Hoyt of this city. The bride wore a navy tailored suit with hat to match, and carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses and lilies of the valley. The bride was given in marriage by J. R. Hopkins of this city. Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Hoyt left for a short trip on the St. John river, and on their return will reside at 54 Exmouth street. Many beautiful and useful gifts were received, among which was a beautiful china tea set from Geo. E. Day & Son, with whom the bride was employed, and a leather easy chair from the staff of the printing department of Barnes & Co., where the groom is employed.

Goodine-Chase.

Miss Jennie May Chase daughter of Mrs. Edward Chase and Fred M. Goodine son of Louis Goodine, both of Fredericton, were married Tuesday night at the George street Baptist Parsonage Rev. Z. L. Fash performing the ceremony. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Ames of this city. Mr. and Mrs. Goodine will reside in Fredericton.

Hon. P. J. Veniot, Minister of Public Works, is here on departmental business.

J. K. Trecarten of St. Stephen who has been attending Dalhousie Law School at Halifax is in the city.

W. M. Robinson of Ottawa is in the city.

Public Opinion

TRAINED TO SPEND MONEY

Editor Daily Mail,—

Sir,—How nice it would be if every woman had a business training which leads them to appreciate the value of hard-earned money. Many women seem to lack this knowledge.

This expression is prompted by the complaint of a married man who says he has got over giving his wife money with which to pay bills. When he has got the money together by dint of saving and sacrifice and turned it over to her in the past she has on many occasions spent unwisely, and he found on his return home that he must begin saving all over again because his wife had spent it all. The average housewife could show her husband points in economy.

Such things are not taught in high schools or colleges, although they have a practical value that is above many of the cultural studies. Every girl's mother ought to teach her to make a dollar go farther and thus help to equip her for matrimony.

Money is the rock on which domestic happiness is often split. In these days of high prices it is not to be lightly spent for useless things. The careful expenditure of the family income may represent all the difference between being constantly in debt and being able to look the whole world in the face and with a small balance in the bank to provide against the day of adversity if it should come.

ONE WHO KNOWS.

Through Our Sieve

It's just as impossible to please everybody all the time as it is to fool them.

After all the division is fair enough. The bride gets the showers and the groom catches thunder.

Justice can't please the man whose aim is to get the better of the other fellow.

Even in June the weather bureau has nts off days, such as missing a low inside curve.

If there is about a flapper one characteristic that we like above all others it is that she seems to be proud of it.

"Let us so live," remarked the Man on the Car "that the Martians will not be shocked if they get close enough to see us."

Novelists used to begin their stories with the hero and heroine falling in love. Now they start with a divorce.

It's a good thing Germany lost the war, otherwise the kaiser and his generals couldn't have become authors because during the war they told all they knew about how they were winning it.

When a wife tells guests in the hearing of her husband that he just suits her the husband knows that he'll have to pay and pay for the compliment.

Returned From Boston

Miss Mary Palmer daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. K. Palmer of this city returned home from Boston at noon today. Miss Palmer has been attending the New England Conservatory of Music and will spend the vacation at her home here.

The Menace of the Wood Shingle

Every Wooden Building, Especially Every Wooden Roof, is a Fire Hazard in Itself

Any kind of a roof is safer than a roof with wooden shingles. It not only stands in constant danger of destruction by fire, but it is a menace to surrounding buildings. Never a day passes in Canada but somebody's home is destroyed by the ignition of wooden shingles. Burning shingles can be carried a great distance by the wind and where they cause more havoc.

But the WOOD SHINGLES IS PASSING. Its days are numbered. It is bound to go.

PEERLESS ROOFING

has sounded the death knell of the wood shingle. Peerless Roofing not only makes a better roof but a cheaper roof. Peerless Roofing is more durable and more easily put on.

Peerless Roofing has created the Perfect Ready Roofing that is not only proof against fire, but against rain, tempest and snow.

We have other grades of roofing manufactured by Canadian Roofing company which are cheaper in price. Come in and let us show you our samples.
