Infectious COUGHS

Do you realise the risk you run riding in a crowded train or street-car without a Peps tablet in your mouth?

Every sneeze, every cough, fills the air you breathe with countless disease-germs that immediately make for any weak spot in your throat and chest. Be wise, always carry Peps, and occasionally let one of these germ-killing tablets dissolve in your mouth to ward off the infection. Then you will not be "full of cold" on the morrow, with the possibility of influenza, pleurisy or pneumonia supervening.

Just as you breathe in the germs that cause infectious throat and lung ailments, etc., so you must breathe in the soothing germicidal Peps medicine to rout out the germs before they can cause serious trouble. Free from harmful drugs, Peps are the safest and best remedy for sudden colds and chills, grippe, sore throat, laryngitis, night-cough, hoarseness, wheeziness, bronchitis and chest weakness in old and young.

Of all Chemists and Dealers, or the Peps Co., Dupont Street, Toronto.

Cabbage in One Field

(Hartland Observer)

Powers & Wachlin of Fort Fairfield who two years ago bought H. H. McCain's farm at Greenfield, this year raised in one field 65 acres of cabbages. It is estimated there were more than a million head making more than 100 car loads. The crop is being marketed in Boston and New York.

When the crop was planted there was little, if any, duty on cabbages going in to the United States, but under the new tariff there is 3 cents a head. This is particularly hard, since in planting the crop the cost was based on the duty existing then, and further more the heads of cabbage average small size so that it takes a great many more to fill a barrel than would be the case if they were only a little larger. Hence it is feared that the enterprise of these "energetic" American farmers will not be rewarded according to the risk and expense involved.

The Observer visited this great field last week and was amazed at the extent of the acreage. There were three varieties and the field extended back from the road as far as the eye could see up and down the road for a long distance. It has interested a great many curious-minded visitors.

This is not the only cabbage field owned by Powers & Wachlin, for in its last issue the Fort Fairfield Review says:

"Powers & Wachlin have been harvesting some of their big fields of cabbages in Fort Fairfield. They have three varieties, two of which yield rather lightly and one much more heavily. The average of the three is between six and eight tons to the acre. They are selling quite a lot to different parts of Aroostook at from $40 to $50 a ton. Many of the stores are buying, also lumber outfits, etc. It is said that it costs just a little more to raise cabbage than it does to raise potatoes. The average acre or potatoes this year in Aroostook is bringing potatoes from $65 to $75, while, at seven tons to the acre and $45 a ton, the yield for these cabbages is $315 an acre. Not all of Powers & Wachlin's crop, however, can be disposed of in Aroostook, and the price that can be netted when cabbages are shipped to the big cities is probably less than $20.

The Slayer of Berry
Was in Great Rage

Annapolis, Nov. 4—Dr. Braine, who acted as coroner at the inquest on the body of Thomas Berry, and who examined the body of the murdered man, stated this morning that he believes Berry was killed by some one who was in a violent rage. The marks on the body would indicate this, particularly those which show that the murderer continued his assaults with the axe after Berry was dead. Whether robbery was a secondary motive, or the money which was said to be in Berry's pocket was taken merely as a blind, the coroner, of course, cannot say, but he is firm in his belief that the arm swinging the deadly axe was strengthened by a terrible fit of anger.

Nothing new has been discovered in the case and it is not thought there will be any new developments until Detective Kennedy returns to Guinea. People in the vicinity are endeavoring to recall any old trouble or quarrel in the past which may account for the terrible rage which must have possessed the murderer. Efforts to reconstruct the scene which passed in the little lonely farmhouse have practically failed. Berry lived so much alone and talked so little to his neighbors that the mantle of silence which hung over his life is difficult to lift now that death has claimed him. The theory that the murderer was a native of Guinea and was struck with the hardwood stick by Berry is not borne out, in view of the fact that there is no resident of the vicinity who shows marks of a blow and that Detective Kennedy has interviewed personally every man in the district for miles around.

Suspicion has not narrowed down to any individual or individuals. In one sense of the word the whole community is under suspicion in so far as they themselves believe the murderer must be one who knew Berry and his habits very well.
