Princess Mary, Daughter of King George Wedded to Viscount Lascelles

THE CEREMONY IN LONDON TODAY

Westminster Abbey the Scene of Royal Wedding—Bridal Party Given an Ovation by the Populace—The Popular Bride the Recipient of Many Beautiful Presents.

London, Feb. 28—Old London was aglow with excitement today over the marriage of Princess Mary, the only daughter of His Majesty King George to Viscount Henry Lascelles, a young nobleman, and scion of one of the leading financiers of Great Britain. The ceremony was performed in historic Westminster Abbey by the Archbishop of Canterbury, assisted by the Bishop of London, and was the most imposing seen here since the coronation of the present King.

The streets leading from Buckingham Palace to the Abbey were thronged with people, and the appearance of the Royal Coach containing the Royal bride and her parents was the signal for repeated outbursts of cheering.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and was attended by Princess Maud, Lady May Cambridge, Lady Mary Thyme, Lady Rachael Canendish and Lady Bowes-Lyon. The marriage contract was signed in the chappell of Edward the Confessor.

The bridal party were given a great ovation as they drove through the streets after the ceremony to Westminster Abbey.

The Bride's Presents.

London, Feb. 28—The picture gallery in Buckingham Palace presented a dazzling spectacle to the invited guests who viewed a portion of the magnificent wedding presents that have been sent to Princess Mary and Viscount Lascelles.

There was a three-fold gift of King George—a tiara of diamonds and sapphires and a necklace and bracelet studded with similar stones. Then there was to be seen a brooch sent by Queen Mary—one great sapphire encircled diamonds.

Another case held the gift of Viscount Lascelles to his bride-to-be, a corsage of sapphires and diamonds in which one massive stone shone forth from the field of lesser brilliants. A cluster of diamonds is suspended from the corsage. It contains two large pearls. There was also a rivière, or necklace of diamonds and a diamond pendant containing two large pearl drops. This gorgeous display of jewels will be worn by Princess Mary at the wedding.

Nearby was Princess Mary's gift to Viscount Lascelles. This consisted of a pair of antique silver scuffle dishes and a platinum and gold watch chain set with pearls. The Prince of Wales' gift to his sister is a diamond and sapphire bracelet. Dowager Queen Alexandra has given the Princess a marvellous corsage of pearls with emerald drops and a beautiful necklace containing six rows of stones.

Princess Mary's aunts the Princess Royal Victoria and the Queen of Norway, combined in their present, sending the Princess a long diamond lace brooch. The Duke of York and Prince Henry and George have given their sister a sapphire and diamond ring, unique in style and in setting. From the bridegroom's parents has come a large diamond brooch.

Conspicuous among the other presents were a miscellany of rich ropes of pearls, jewelled fans and huge silver vessels from the members of the British Cabinet and others from diplomatic corps, a handsome negligee with a centre of emeralds and a coronet of precious stones from the navy, a silver dressing table from the army, a mink coat and muff from the twelve city companies; a diamond bracelet "from the men and women of the stage; a negligee of

The Finance Minister is Working for Trade Pact With the U. S.

Little Grey Man From Nova Scotia May Have a Surprise to Spring When Parliament Meets—A Trade Arrangement is Possible Under the Fordney Tariff—U. S. Interests Would Welcome a Lower Tariff.

Ottawa, Feb. 27—Political Ottawa is asking tonight if Hon. W. S. Fielding is going to spring a surprise on the country in the shape of a reciprocity or trade agreement with the United States. Since Thursday the minister of finance has been across the line, having been in both New York and Washington. The Telegraph was informed on good authority tonight that Mr. Fielding's visit to the United States capital had no immediate objective, but that he would try to sound out American feeling on the subject of a new trade agreement. It was learned some time ago that certain American interests would welcome a lowering or perhaps a cancellation of their duty on cattle.

WILL CONGRESS AGREE?

The information came from such a source that it was thought that perhaps some arrangement could be made by brief negotiation and that congress would be agreeable. Such a pact would of course be of immense benefit to every farmer raising cattle in this country. There are several other items in the Fordney tariff bill which, it was learned here, might be talked about and an arrangement reached. It is believed here that Mr. Fielding while in Washington sounded out political opinion, which may perhaps lead to an interchange of notes and then verbal negotiation.

Political observers here point out that Mr. Fielding is not the man to spend four days away from his office at this busy time without trying to accomplish something. Just as in 1911 when he went down to defeat on the reciprocity issue, his heart is set on better trade relations with the United States. Such a trade compact is a plank in the Liberal platform, and every Progressive strenuously supports any effort with this end in view. Even last year Mr. Fielding moved an amendment to the budget, favoring a reciprocity pact. In Ottawa it is held that if Canada at this late date passes the treaty it becomes operative in the United States after proclamation in that country. There is a difference of opinion on this point, however, but Mr. Fielding evidently believes if Canada does her part the United States is also bound to come through.

PLAY ATTACKS BIGOTRY IN ULSTER

London, Feb. 28—St. John Ervine's play "Mixed Marriage" was produced at the Ambassador Theatre here by the Irish players under Sara Allgood at the very moment when the news of the fighting in Belfast was pouring into London newspaper offices.

Nothing could be more cruelly appropriate, for the play is an attack upon bigotry in Ulster, presenting with remarkable realism the conflict between religious partisans in all its bitter comedy and its appealing tragedy. The Irish humor of Mrs. Rainey, played by Sara Allgood, furnished laughter in the midst of tragedy. The acting and the stage setting are so natural and realistic that it is hard for those who know what street fighting is to believe that the last act is only a play. That the object of the play is successfully attained is doubtful, for coming out of the theatre, a man and woman were overheard bitterly engaged in a religious argument.

William's record for one day's sales came August 4, 1914, when the public was clamoring for war news. On that day he sold 29,000 copies.

Wm. Shaw Seriously Hurt.

William Shaw, Ex-M. P. P. of the firm of J. & W. Shaw, St. John bakers suffered a serious injury in his office on Saturday night, when he fell and broke both his hips. It is thought that he made a mistake in the position of his chair and in the act of seating himself fell to the floor. Due to his advanced age, eighty-four years, his condition is considered to be most serious. Ms. Shaw is well remembered by Fredericton people as representing St. John city in the Legislation.

A FUSILADE OF SHOTS FOLLOW

A Number of Persons Are Shot and Seriously Wounded—Armed Men Raid Police Barracks in County Tipperary—Motor Cars and Rifles Seized.

Belfast, Feb. 28—There was heavy firing by civilians in the short Strand district at eight o'clock this evening. Several persons were badly wounded. The firing followed a terrific bomb explosion at five o'clock this afternoon at the corner of Vulcan and Seaford streets and Newtownards Roads, when Tom Mullan a fourteen year old newsboy was seriously wounded in the legs and head.

There also was shooting in which there were casualties on Queen's Bridge and Albert Bridge two of the principal crossings of the River Lagan.

Raid in County Tipperary.

Armed men raided the police barracks at Clonmel, County Tipperary, says a Central News despatch tonight, and seized seven motor cars about 300 rifles, three machine guns 300,000 rounds of ammunition for small arms and 100 revolvers.

The Press Association says the raid was made by the members of the Irish Republican Army on Sunday night. The barracks had not yet been evacuated. After the raid the republican army men held the barracks. It is declared that elaborate preparations had been made for the raid.

Tonight a bomb was thrown from the top of a tram car in York street and Richard Duffy was killed and two other persons wounded. Two bombs were thrown in Ballymacarrett street. One of them burst but did no damage. The other did not explode.

Two persons were wounded by shots fired into a street car in Seaford street.

Irish Elections in June.

London, Feb. 27—Winston Spencer Churchill, the colonial secretary, today told the House of Commons the week end conferences with representatives of the Irish provisional government had been satisfactory and reassuring.

The Irish ministers had not receded from the provisions of the Anglo-Irish treaty, he said, or weakened in their determination to carry it through. Their opposition to the republican party was, unabated he said.

The Sinn Fein demand that the Irish people should have a constitution before them as well as the treaty when they are called upon to give their votes at an election, was acceded to, Mr. Churchill added, and as a result the election was expected to occur early in June.
