New Railway Board to be Announced Soon

Premier King Addresses a Meeting of His Constituents—Says

British Embargo on Cattle Will Shortly be Removed—

Meighan Leading the Remnant of His Party to Destruction.

Stouffville, Ont., Sept. 15—Forecasting early announcement of the new head of the National railways; announcing that in efforts to widen Canadian markets, one of the cabinet ministers was shortly proceeding to Australia to negotiate a reciprocal trade treaty; declaring the revenues were increasing and predicting the removal of the British embargo on Canadian cattle before the new year, Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, prime minister of Canada, gave an accounting of his stewardship to a large gathering of the electors of North York here this afternoon.

The occasion was the celebration of Mr. King's first visit to his constituency since his election in December last.

The prime minister took advantage of the opportunity to reply to recent statements levelled against him by Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighan. The last election, he said, showed that the country was tired of Toryism. In six of the nine provinces Mr. Meighen did not count a single supporter in parliament. The east was Liberal and the west was Progressive. Mr. King said he would not have mentioned this but that Mr. Meighen had charged that the people had been "humbugged."

"I think," he charged, "that Mr. Meighen is leading the remnants of his party to destruction just as fast as he can by his continued policy of vituperation."

Stressing the advisability of close co-operation and even a union between the Liberals and Progressives, the prime minister declared that the dictionary showed the word "liberal" to mean "progressive" and the word "progressive" to mean "liberal." It was for this reason that he had invited the Progressives to participate at the council board, and while the Progressives had not seen fit to take advantage of the opportunity they had promised support.

One session of parliament had developed that the Progressives had nothing in common with the Conservatives but very much in common with the Liberals. It was better for men and women of broad thought to work together in the forces of democracy. His supreme aim would always be to unite those who stood for broad Liberal principals. The government had restored the deliberate quality to the house of commons, a quality which was lost during the regime of the late autocratic government.

The government was continually striving for economy and efficiency in the public service. This was shown by the amalgamation of the departments of defense, in the reduction in the estimates and in other ways.

Turning to the tariff, the prime minister asserted that his government was fortunate in having Hon. W. S. Fielding as minister of finance and while the last budget had not pleased everybody it was proving a success. Under the tariff as reduced last session, the revenues were increasing and a period of prosperity was dawning.

The United States had seen fit to make trading with her difficult for Canada, but Canadians were not dependent on any one market.

The world was open to Canadian trade. In this connection, it was expected the British embargo on Canadian cattle would shortly attend a conference in London at which it was hoped the details of the removal would be given. The first of the new year might see the Canadian cattle going into Britain.

In another effort to open up trade Mr. Fielding was negotiating the details of a trade treaty with France, and within a week or two a member of the dominion cabinet would be going to Australia to arrange a reciprocal trade treaty with that commonwealth.

AMERICANS IN CASH LINE

Berlin, Germany, Sept. 15—The situation resulting from the shortage of paper money has become grotesque. American business men with checks and drafts running into millions of marks have had to stand in line for hours at the banks, only to be told that all the currency they could receive was 10,000 marks, equaling $8 in American money, and that the remainder would be paid with checks on the reichsbank.

When they hurried over to the reichsbank, they found a huge mob besieging the building with scores of policemen trying to preserve order. Finally this bank also ran out of cash and had to close its doors temporarily.

Reichsbank officials promise to speed up the printing of paper money to 3,000,000,000 marks a week. In the meantime, however, money is getting so short that the big shops and restaurants ask their customers to show cash before making purchase or ordering food. The managers will accept checks only from persons with whom they are well acquainted.

The daily routine is quite upset for in many cases payments cannot be made in cash and those who have no bank accounts cannot pay with checks.

Some of the biggest business houses have resorted to the plan of having their banks pay them in dollars, pounds and other foreign currency in place of German money and are liquidating their debts in this manner.

Reports say that the Austrian government has approved a scheme whereby wholesale and other firms dealing in merchandise other than foodstuffs, clothing and shoes, may demand payment in foreign money. A similar measure may soon be adopted by the German government.
