CARDS SHAVED 3-10,000TH OF INCH EXPOSE MEDIUM

New York, Oct. 23—So it was not a "spirit" after all that sent back from the other world the immortal aphorism that "Truth crushed to earth shall rise again." When these decidedly mundane words appeared in violet and heliotrope on a card held in the hands of Mrs. Josi K.
Stewart, of Cleveland, scientists measuring her ability to produce demonstrable objective phenomenon became suspicious. It seemed strange that a spirit dwelling in the beyond should be such a plagiarist; could think of nothing beyond a precept taught to every child in the fourth grade.

The demonstrable phase of spiritualism received a severe blow today, therefore, when the committee investigating Mrs. Stewart's supposed psychic powers asserted that the Cleveland woman had deliberately substituted false cards for the blank bits of paper handed her for the test.

Doyle Backs Her.

The disappointing thing about the Stewart incident, according to leaders of the cult of spiritualism, is the fact that she came to New York apparently vouched for by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, discoverer of ecto-plasm. It is said in behalf of Sir Arthur that he read only certain letters of recommendation in the possession of Mrs. Stewart, and that he never saw her work. This work, according to the New York scientists, was decidedly crude in one way but extremely clever in another. Not one of the wise men of the East can say that he saw any substitution take place. Yet the cards, under the acid test, were shown to be false, indicating once again that the hand is quicker than the eye.

Dr. Walter Prince, of psychical research fame, who exploded the ghost of Antigonish into thin blue air (has once more proved himself the Nemesis of those who would trifle with the spirit world. Dr. Prince is a sort of guardian of the mortals of the beyond, and it is just about as difficult to get by him as to pass through the eye of a needle.

Science is a very material thing.
All prospective mediums should take notice of this fact. When science can detect a difference of three-ten thousandths of an inch in the thickness of a piece of paper it is time for the royal order of mediums to rise and protest. That is the margin by which Mrs. Josi Stewart failed to convince the hard boiled Dr. Prince, who fears neither ghost nor man, that she possessed psychic powers of sufficient voltage to extract from the Scientific American its offered prize of $2,500 to any one capable of producing objective psychic phenomena.

The commonest form of objective phenomena is spirit writing. And the commonest form of spirit writing is done with two slates placed face to face. Mrs. Stewart however, had a brand new idea. She said she had been able to produce messages from the other world on bits of cardboard.
All she needed for the spirits to write with were rose petals or other blossoms bordering on the hues of the rainbow. Such a material thing as a pencil was not required by the real spirit with a message for the world, she said.

Greaseless Combing Cream Costs

Even stubborn, unruly or shampooed hair stays combed all day in any style to produce writings from beyond were failures. The committee then noticed that several of its cards were missing. They felt sure that writings would appear at the next seance, because evidently the medium would try to match those cards as nearly as possible. The canny committee had its remaining cards whittled down just a trifle in size. Mrs. Stewart's guiding spirit, "Effie," failed to inform her of this device of the material men, and so, all unsuspectingly, she produced the writings on the cards which have proved her undoing as a producer of objective psychic phenomena. The device made it possible for the scientists to reach what they announce as positive conclusions as to the unreliability of the demonstration given by Mrs. Stewart.

Efforts to find Mrs. Stewart today resulted in the discovery that she had left for Cleveland before the report of the scientists was made public.

YOU CANNOT ALWAYS TELL

(New York Sun.)

The Woman was driving with Mrs.
S. in her Ford sedan. They stopped at the market for some supplies. As they came out a ragged, dirty, unkempt little colored urchin followed, staggering under a load of food stuffs.

"Here," said Mrs. S. "get into my car and I'll take you home." We both knew just how proud he was going to feel, for probably he had never ridden in a motor before.

For a time he sat absorbed in the mechanical devices before him. Then straightening himself up and rolling his big black eyes at Mrs. S., he said:
"Dis yer car's a Ford?"
"Yes, a Ford, senny." A pause, then with a hint of boastful pride:
"Wes drives a Maxwell."

Jack—There are a great many girls who don't want to marry!
Jill—How do you know?
Jack—I've asked them.
