Of Interest to the Women

THE MODE—BY CLOCK.

The total impression the smart woman makes at the present moment dressed for the street is one of lack in color and of immense finish in line. She wears a cloche trimmed with a brush or a bow at the side or turned up in back and ribbon-trimmed. If she is quite young she wears the short jaunty coat with a blouse; if she is older (and wise) her coat is three-quarter length trimmed with fur or with a scarf of the material. A similar fancy for black with touches of white passes over into the evening mode.

She invariably wears simple clothes for lunch. But for a debutante tea, a wedding or any other formal afternoon function one will see much printed velvet in dark rich colors with little notes of gold. Such dresses are untrimmied but beautifully draped or shirred. With a costume of this type will go a fur coat probably in broadtail with ermine, sable or gray fox for relief. The cloche that accompanies it is generally velvet, though some prefer a large picturesque hat for formal wear. But it takes great chic to carry off such a hat and none at all to manage the cloche provided of course one adjusts it at the right angle.

In the evening two types of dress clothe the vast majority of those who know—the straight-line dress and the draped dress both at their best in velvet. For the debutante of course nothing will ever be lovelier or more appropriate than picture gowns with their fitted bodices and bouffant skirts. A number of the very smartest frocks of the moment are of chiffon or crepe without embroidery—something rarely seen during the winter season but irresistible now. Chanel has done them so beautifully as to color in the evening it may be anything one finds becoming. The blues are particularly new; black is rarely seen—never without a brilliant touch.

The small head is still the thing in coiffures—small and as simple as possible. There are few ornaments worn in the hair but earrings continue to be long and elaborate for there is something at once bizarre and immensely smart about this boyish head this flat, sleek, ultra-modern head, joined to the barbaric gleam of those dangling bits of the East the South or the Stone Age. There is much jewelry worn in the evening too especially pearls, imitation pearls as well as real ones, and frequently both at once on the same wearer. Rings are few and those that are seen are generally large pearls. Bracelets are legion—thin, glittering Oriental in their profusion.—Vogue.

SWEDISH PIE.

Two eggs, beaten separately 1-2 cup sugar 1-2 cup flour, 1 tsp potato flour 2 tbsp water add sugar to yolk and beat. Then add the baking powder and potato flour to the flour and mix. Add the water to yolks of eggs, then the flour flavoring and the whites of eggs. Bake in a round pie plate tin and when cool split and fill. First spread a layer of apple sauce and then a layer of apple sauce and then a layer of whipped cream. Put on the top and cover with whipped cream.

An Awful Attack Of Pimples All Over His Face

Pimples breaking out on the face and other parts of the body is a sure sign that the blood is not in proper shape.

While the skin is the object of the attack the real seat of the disease is in the blood on account of the entire circulation being poisoned.

Burdock Blood Bitters quickly and effectually banishes pimples and all other skin diseases as it goes right to the root of the trouble by cleansing and enriching the blood.

Mr. Conrad Anderson, Kelfield, Sask., writes: "A year ago I had an awful attack of pimples. They broke out all over my face and I could not get rid of them in any way. One day a friend told me about your Burdock Blood Bitters and let me have a bottle he had to spare. After using it I noticed a change, so I bought three more bottles, and now I don't know there is such a thing as pimples."

FINE BOOKLET ON ST. JOHN BY THE C. P. R.

The pathos and humor, patient endeavor, far-seeing optimism and heroic endurance of small beginnings and gradual expansion which go to make up the history of the city and the tremendous company with which it deals are brought out in an interesting and handsome booklet just received here, which, as the title informs us, tells "The story of St. John N. B. and the Canadian Pacific, 1604-1923, a record of romance and progress covering three hundred years of the city's history and ninety-five of its co-operation with Canada's great railway."

The booklet is issued by the Canadian Pacific as a souvenir of the luncheon given by President E. W. Beatty on board the Canadian Pacific S. S. Montclare at St. John, N. B. on December 5th, as a gesture of the Company's good will towards Canada's winter port, the leading men of which were invited to enjoy Canadian Pacific hospitality on that occasion. Beautifully printed in quiet tones of brown, the booklet is embellished on the cover with a design embodying the Company crest and house flag and a drawing of the Montclare and also with the coat-of-arms of St. John, all in dark brown and red. Portraits of the Canadian Pacific president and the leading officials of the province and city are reproduced inside, as are also a number of striking photographs, such as a group of Canadian Pacific ships, views of the Canadian Pacific immigration sheds, Canadian Pacific elevators and terminals, bridges and general offices at St. John and of the city's new drydock, the largest in the world. The text traces the detailed story of the city from the time of Champlain's arrival in 1604, through the early days preceding and following the arrival of the Loyalists, the dawn of the railway era on this continent, the glorious clipper-ship epoch, when St. John was in its zenith as the fourth largest ship-building and ship-owning port in the world, the construction of the Canadian Pacific Railway and its selection of St. John as its eastern terminus, the opening of the Company's short line from St. John to Montreal, the city's successful fight for recognition as Canada's winter port and the modern period of St. John's development in conjunction with the Canadian Pacific.

OPENS DRIVE ON THEATRES OF NEW YORK

New York, Dec. 5—The first of a series of moves against alleged salacious plays in Broadway theatres contemplated by local authorities and reform agencies was made today when General Sessions Judge Collins instructed the grand jury to investigate and indict if evidence warranted.

Written complaints of objectionable performances, Judge Collins said have been received and sent to the police department for investigation. In every case where there exists the slightest instance for believing the complaint well founded, it will be submitted to the district attorney with a recommendation that it be presented to the grand jury.

This procedure would be followed, the judge declared, because the number of complaints received "have been wholly out of proportion to what might be reasonably expected if much of the adverse comment one hears is seriously intended."

A decision by the appellate division in the case of "The Demi-Virgin," produced two years ago, the judge pointed out, placed the power of revoking a theatre license in the hands of a judge of a court of record. Direct grand jury action, he added, was there fore the preferable course, especially since it would keep proceedings secret and prevent advertising the plays under investigation.

Honestly, It's The Best Policy

What happens to your income if you are laid aside by an accident or by sickness?

Most men depend for their own and their family's support on their own personal fitness and against the day of their honorable retirement they plan to build up capital.

The stopping of earning power is a serious disturbance of the plan, and the prudent man manages to put aside in the form of an insurance premium, a small sum to unload the risk on a first class Insurance Office.

A man in a non-hazardous employment rated as "Select" or "Preferred" can provide at a yearly cost of $16.00, $5,000 if he is killed or loses two limbs or both eyes.

$2,500 if he loses one limb.

$1,666 if he loses one eye.

and $100.00 per month up to 50 months if he is in any other manner totally incapacitated, whether temporarily or permanently, by an accident.
