IS OVER CULTURED.

The photograph of a small Indian settlement says the Toledo Blade, provides more evidence of the change which has come over the spirit of the American Indian. In this settlement the houses are nicely painted, the fences are in repair, the gardens are weeded and not one dog appears. One feels that in another generation the noble red man will be wearing spats, the symbol of highest civilization.

We find we prefer the Canadian method of bringing culture and the Indian upon friendly terms to the intensive American scheme says the Blade. In the Dominion, the aborigines are provided with a simple schooling and all the religious training they seem willing to absorb. The law protects them jealously and, over very large areas, they are granted exclusive rights to hunt and fish and trap after their own manner. But the thing isn't carried too far.

Thus you can find Indians in Canada who retain the picturesqueness of their fathers. They know nothing of the birth control movement. They litter their doorways with a miscellany of rusted farm tools, broken snowshoes, clothes that have passed through the awkward stage, blankets of profound experience and cooking utensils speaking of adventure. In an Indian community of this kind life proceeds tranquilly and no one looks at the market reports. An appeal from the storekeeper to pick huckleberries while prices are up does not meet with greedy response. The subject is taken under consideration and possibly acted upon a week or two later.

The Blade concludes that the idea in the United States is that the red man can be made a very good white man. It appears to be working out that way. But what is gained in the end? The Indian who, left to adopt civilization to the extent held desirable by him, would give color and variety to his surroundings is standardized to the common formula.

The Minister of Justice on the representation of the Canadian Prisoners' Welfare Association has ordered the release from the Ontario Reformatory of Godfrey Bros., of Grimsby. These young men were given a sentence of two years by an Ontario Magistrate for breaking into a summer cottage. It seems that they had been out fishing and had been caught in a storm. They went to a cottage, pried open a window and entered. When the caretaker came along and found them there, they explained the situation to him and offered to pay all the damages. Later the owner of the camp had them arrested and thinking they would be let off with a nominal fine they pleaded guilty to the charge. Imagine their astonishment when the magistrate gave them a sentence of two years. The Toronto newspapers, believing an injustice had been done took up the cudgels in their behalf, with the result that their liberation has been ordered.

The New Brunswick Tourist Association has accepted an invitation from the Eastern Steamship Company to hold its next annual convention on the boat plying between St. John and Boston. The party about seventy-five in number will depart from St. John on Thursday, June 7th and will be absent three days. Premier Veniot, Hon. D. W. Mersereau and Hon. J. E. Michaud have accepted invitations. The Canadian Club will act as hosts to the party during their stay in Boston. There will be a luncheon at the City Club, at which Premier Veniot will be the guest of honor.

Parisian schoolteacher has a class of girls she is instructing in the art of receiving gifts—the degree of slight surprise, for instance, which should be shown on the receipt of a long-expected present, and so on. Tish! tush! and likewise pooh! Let her teach her grandmother to suck eggs. The girls need no instruction. It comes natural to 'em.

A Western paper says that during a blizzard in February, Fred Webster a farmer in Halliday, N. D., lost a 170-pound hog. Seventy-two days later he was loading straw from a stack near the farm and his fork struck something solid. It was the hog, still alive, but more than 100 pounds underweight.

At the meeting of the Grand Lodge of Pipe Smokers, which was held in Atlantic, Ga., it was decided after much discussion that the Order will remain a man's organization, and no charter will be issued to or for lodges composed of women, nor will there be any woman's auxiliary.

"An old dinky retainer of ours," writes a Southern correspondent, "said to the daughter of the house the morning after her coming-out ball: 'Mah goodness, Miss Mary, you sho' did look sweet last night. My! I hardly knowed you. Dere wasn't a thing about you dat looked nachel."

There is talk of earrings for men. The women could not be expected to give moral support to such a fashion. Unless we misinterpret wives they would prefer a nosering for husbands. Then they could carry a leadstick to hook into the nosering upon occasion.

LITTLE STORIES OF THE TOWN

They're Useful Though.

The latest wrinkle in automobile equipment seems to be the addition of a large trunk hung on astern the car. Yet, according to motorists nobody has ever been known to carry anything in them.

RADIO ROBS CHURCH PEWS PASTOR SAYS

Minneapolis, Minn., May 30—Wireless broadcasting of religious services should be confined to week days so that Sunday may be left free for public worship, according to an address delivered here by the Rev. Phillips E. Osgood, rector of St. Mark's Protestant Episcopal Church.

"If we could guarantee that only shut-ins should listen in on Sunday there would be no problem," said Mr. Osgood. "But the number of able-bodied folk who use wireless as a pretext for absence from church is apparently much greater than the number of those who could not get to church."

"I have seen the effect of broadcasting service in a country village. Notices posted on the postoffice bulletin board and at the 'fire house' announcing where 'loud speakers' would give forth the services from the city, coupled with numerous private sets, have had the result of cutting by 30 per cent. the usual attendance at a service unfortunate enough to coincide with the broadcasting hour."

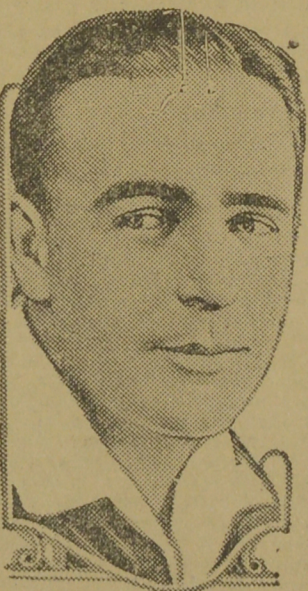

NO ARREST.

He bumped into her car. "I had my hand out" declared the girl indignantly. "Such a tiny hand murmured the young man. No wonder I didn't see it." Then the traffic cop waved them all along.
