SKILL OR WISDOM?

Thought, rather than electricity, steam or gasoline, is the dynamic force that rules the world. Familiarity with the world's thought and an ability to improve it or to direct it in the right way and to great ends must be the aim of any educated man who wishes to be of service to his kind. Such a man will be dealing with a medium so tremendous in its potentiality that no human mind can measure or even imagine the scope of its possible reactions. Some such thought as this seems to have been in the mind of Dr. Henry N. McCracken, president of Vassar College when he took time in the course of a commencement address to question the validity of criticism recently flung at American colleges by Thomas A. Edison and Henry Ford. "Both men," Dr. McCracken observed, "apply themselves intensely in limited fields. But neither has contributed anything important to other fields. For that reason, while we must respect their opinions, we need not regard their views as necessarily sound or conclusive."

This is true. Edison and Ford are remarkable men. They have qualities of genius. But more remarkable than either of them will be the man who can find a way to put their great discoveries to consistently beneficent uses. Such a man will not say that cultural education is useless. If by culture we mean an ability to discern what is beautiful and permanently useful in life and satisfying to human spirit, then the world needs culture as badly as it needs tractors or electric light or railway trains. For the cultured man will inevitably take a gracious and generous view of existence. He will respect the rights of others. He will not be greedy, selfish or unduly acquisitive. He will be neither cruel nor cynical and he will be the last man in the world to suppose that you can gain happiness or any other thing worth while by taking unfair advantage of other men. In a word, culture is opposed to all the blind forces that have been operating of late to destroy the order and the peace of the world and even the faith and hope of mankind.

The hot wave which struck the province this week has made the forest fire situation more serious than ever. Millions of dollars worth of the most valuable timber lands in the province have been burned over and the end is not yet in sight. An army of fire fighters are doing their best to keep the flames in check but what is urgently needed is a good down pour of rain. Nothing else can save the situation and it is to be hoped that it will come soon.

It was the last request of a dying man that jazz be played at his funeral. It may be that he wanted it played for once when he wouldn't hear it.

Burglars in Brooklyn worked for four hours trying to open a safe. Must have been built like one of these key-winding sardine cans.

The difference between an amateur gardener and the same kind of golfer is that the former drops a seed into the holes he makes.

The radio has just about ruined the political orator who customarily opened with, "As I gaze over the broad sea of intelligent faces—"

The row between Mussolini and D'Annunzio raises a serious question whether heroic odes or castor oil would prove harder to take.

Those five degrees of heat which a scientist claimed the sun had lost have returned bringing five more with them.

Love may laugh at locksmiths but contraband liquor takes the padlock seriously.

The golf widow wishes someone would organize a campaign against entangling alliances with links.

With the coming of the joy ride, the gas is being used for another form of blowout.

The weather man says, well I hope at last it is hot enough for you.

There are other brides, but a June bride can hardly realize it.

What is the masculine of sub-deb? One thing that war establishes rather definitely is prices.

We be unto the diver who is deeper than the water is.

Last year's straw hat always looks it.

Volcanoes are erupting in Europe, overshadowing even the politicians.

There are tax-exempt bonds, but few worry-exempt stocks.

Let your lights so shine—and keep your eyes peeled.

The Balkans are still on Mars' sucker list.

THROUGH OUR SIEVE

If you want your wife to listen to what you say just talk in your sleep.

Farming the background is good exercise and much cheaper than golf.

Whoso keepeth the law is a wise man says Solomon. Not a word about having it repealed.

The old fashioned business man who had a good head for figures now has a son with a good eye for them.

We could be boycotting something all the time because of price. And maybe it would be a good thing.

Stop, look and listen" remarked the Man on the Car and the darn fool behind may crash into you.

It is urged upon humanity that every kiss brings you a step nearer the grave. But isn't the scenery beautiful?

A woman can write fiction without having any of her characters use the word damn. It is quite an achievement.

Man is as old as he feels when he crawls out of bed in the morning. For comparative purposes, note the spirit of hilarity with which the child ren get up.

Often the man of ability hasn't nerve enough to sell his ability while some men of limited ability sell their nerve.—Kansas City Star. And yet the Bible says blessed are the meek, and it must be so.

LITTLE STORIES OF THE TOWN

Lost His Way.

A resident of the lower end of Brunswick street says he saw a policeman walking in that vicinity on Monday night. He says it is the first time to his knowledge that such a thing has happened. He thinks that the policeman must have been a new man, and had lost his way.

Don't Be So Hard, Sister!

"Men are uninteresting on the street," said a woman, after standing on a down-town corner for a short period. "It is the women I like to watch. Every one of them has some different wrinkles in dress, and I see everything from the most expensive in cut, style and color to the dullest, most conservative and modest. The cut of the hair and the shape of their shoes are always new in some particular. Yes it is the women who are really interesting."

Victor Hatheway Chapter

The regular monthly meeting of the Victor Hatheway Chapter of the I. O. D. E. was held at the home of the Misses Hay, Charlotte street, last evening, with the Regent, Miss Ethel VanWart in the chair, and fifteen of the members being present. General business of the Chapter was discussed, and $5.00 a month was voted to help one of the poor families of the City. Plans were made for a food sale to be held in the near future, and also for a picnic to be given to the children of the Children's home. After the meeting refreshments were served by the hostesses.

Here From the West.

Mr. Henry C. McNally, of Missoula, Montana, has arrived here to spend the summer visiting relatives and is now the guest of his half-brother ex-warden M. B. McNally, Aberdeen Street. Mr. McNally is a native of Queensbury and went west fifty-five years ago, locating in Montana where he engaged in ranching. He has had a successful career and is now on the retired list, although he is still a ranch owner. Mr. McNally made his last visit to Fredericton twelve years ago. He says that he used to know many old time residents of the city, but finds that most of them have passed away to the great beyond. Among the few old timers whom he knew before going west, who are still going strong, is W. H. VanWart, grocer of this city.
