VALEDICTORY ADDRESS THIS AFTERNOON

he may have occasion to use. In America more emphasis is being placed upon concentration of subjects; fewer subjects and less scattered ones. The graduate engineer must be more highly educated than his father was, and Prof. Magruder of Ohio State University declared not long ago: "Four years is not time enough in engineering, any more than it is in any other learned professions, all of which require six or seven years of education after graduation from high school."

In the United States, where proper perspective and teaching could not be secured for the subject, engineering colleges have been forced to establish departments of engineering mathematics, engineering physics, engineering English and the like. Completed courses that are valueless for any practical use do not commend themselves to practicing engineers. It is believed that if the course at U. N. B. were revised with regard to these very subjects of English, Mathematics and Physics, together with some of the more estranged subjects then still greater efficiency could be secured.

Farewell

To you Mr. Chancellor and Gentlemen of the Faculty, we desire to express our appreciation for your many efforts exercised on our behalf. We thank you for your patience and faithful efforts in leading us to think for ourselves. In bidding you adieu, we shall carry away only the most pleasant memories and wish you success in your future work.

To the Citizens of Fredericton, we extend our hearty thanks for the many tokens of thoughtfulness and kindness which we have received from you. You have entertained us in your homes and welcomed us to your churches; withal, you have made our stay in this beautiful city a pleasant one, and when you hear the roar of the cannon from yonder hill in the early morning hours, remember that it is merely the final salute of the class of 1923.

To the Undergraduates,—we have worked together played together, cheered together and accepted defeat together—you have seen wherein we have erred; seek to rectify it if you can. Keep up the old customs, sing the old songs, and "play the game."

Mr. Chancellor, Gentlemen of the Faculty, Citizens of Fredericton and Friends—Farewell.

Alma Mater—Adieu.

GIVES HIS WIFE MIXTURE OF GLYCERINE

She had stomach trouble for years. After giving her simple buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., as mixed in Adler-I-ka, her husband says: "My wife feels fine now and has gained weight. It is wonderful stomach medicine." Adler-I-ka acts on BOTH upper and lower bowels, removing foul matter which poisoned stomach and which you never thought was in your system. EXCELLENT for gas on the stomach or chronic constipation. Guards against appendicitis. The Im-Dibblee's Drug Store, Limited.
