HOW OLD WAS METHUSELAH?

How old was Methuselah? Nine hundred and sixty-nine years is the age which this patriarch always has been credited. Now, however, scientific research has reduced the figure to 78 years and nine months.

Experts point out that there has always been a certain amount of doubt concerning the great age supposed to have been attained by patriarchs, and many theories have been evolved to reduce Biblical records of this kind to something near man's normal span.

According to an explanation given by a writer in London Tit Bits, it is supposed that in the earliest times the month, or period of a moon cycle was called a year. So that Adam's 930 years of life, calculating a year at 29 1/2 days, the length of a lunar month, works out at 75 1/4 years.

After the month-year there would appear to have come a five-month year, the limit of five being derived from the fingers of one hand, for primitive people used the fingers for purposes of calculation. On the five-month year basis, Abraham's 175 years shrink to 72, and Isaac's 180 to 74.

It is also pointed out that it is possible there intervened a six-month year, discovered by Jacob while watching Laban's flocks. Thus Jacob's 147 years work out at about 73.

The twelve-month year originated with the Egyptians, who saw that a complete period was made up of the two "years," in one of which the days were longer than the nights, and in the other the nights were longer than the days.

RADIO BRINGING FARMERS CLOSER TO THE MARKETS

Chicago, May 31—The radio is bringing the farmer into closer touch with the markets for his products. It has made simpler the problem for the Chicago Board of Trade, whose president has been giving close study to the relations between the producer and the marketer. President John J. Stream carried on negotiations with representatives of the farmers' co-operative organizations, with a view to admitting them to Board of Trade membership, for a long time before the grain futures act became effective.

Recently thousands of tickets of admission to the floor of the Exchange have been issued to farmers and farm leaders as an invitation for them to come and see what happens in the wheat pit. Criticisms and comment are asked, and when offered, are given careful consideration. The purpose is, of course, to bring to the producers of grain an exact understanding of what and how the Board of Trade operates and to remove the fears and doubts which spring from half knowledge and incorrect or prejudiced information.

The radio, however, is a good and effective means of market information. Market and financial news and quotations are broadcasted from Chicago at fixed hours several times a day. A survey by the Department of Agriculture recently showed that nearly 50 per cent of the hundreds of returns to the inquiry came from farmers who had radio receiving equipment. A large part of the remaining answers came from grain dealers, mills, elevators, banks, telephone companies and various farm agencies. The item of greatest interest was the grain market reports, with livestock quotations second.

The survey showed Illinois farmers in the lead in number of replies and far greater radio development in the wheat, corn and livestock growing regions of the Middle West than elsewhere in the country. If the farmers have no radio receiving apparatus, they rely on central points. Country merchants and bankers have found that their investments in radio sets increased their business.

The Board of Trade owns radio station WDAP, whence market quotations are broadcasted hourly. The investment was a heavy one, but it has already proved its worth.
