FOOTBALL PLAYED BEFORE HUGE ATTENDANCE THIS YEAR IN WESTERN CONFERENCE

One Million People Saw Teams of Middle Western Colleges of United States—Great- est Year on Record.

Chicago, Nov. 30.—Football games played in the Western Conference the past season attracted nearly 1,000,000 spectators, according to compilations from figures reported by the institution today, with total receipts estimated at nearly $2,000,000.

It was the greatest football year in the Western Conference.

Michigan and Chicago, each with six home games stood out as the principal drawing cards. Michigan's estimated attendance was set at 183,000 while Chicago attracted 163,000.

At Ohio State five home games drew 148,000 with the estimated receipts $176,000. In five home games, three of which were played in the new stadium, Illinois had crowds totalling 117,000. More than half of that number were crowded into the stands when Illinois played Chicago, Nov. 3.

Wisconsin, with the first tier of its stadium completed, estimates that 66,500 saw its home games, while Purdue and Indiana claim 14,000 and 20,000 respectively. Minnesota, Iowa, and Northwestern, each with five home games, would have added approximately 100,000 each to the total.

More than half of the total attendance at Illinois this year was due to the 60,632 who braved the rain and mud to see the team down Chicago 7 to 0 in the homecoming battle.

THE "CORPSE" RETORTS.

Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, as sistant attorney-general was discussing spiritualism at a Washington dinner party.

"I am reminded of a story" she said "about the Rev. Bob Burdette the humorist.

"Burdette once officiated at the funeral of a Conshohocken Spiritualist. At the end of his address the dead man's wife rose from her seat in the front of the church and said while Mr. Burdette had been speaking she had been communing spiritually with her husband who had assured her the minister's picture of the after-life was sheer nonsense.

"In the momentous silence Burdette rose.

"Friends" he said "I have preached in my time many funeral sermons but this is the first occasion that I have ever had any back-chat from the corpse."

MONCTON MAKES EARLY START

Discussing a movement to elect football officers for season of 1924, at once the Moncton Transcript says:

Difficulty was experienced in getting football under way in this city this year and it is hoped that the meeting tonight will eliminate some of the things which held it back. The election of a captain and a business manager will be held and it will be up to them to see that the game gets started earlier in the season than it ever has in this city.

While Moncton did not bring home the acon on many occasions this year, the team showed up well and demonstrated what could be done with practically no work-outs. In the future it is hoped that the benefits of practice will be such that the local team will be able to get into the Maritime finals and possibly play off as the Wanderers did in 1922 for the Eastern Canadian Title.

A win against Acadia, a tie with Mt. Allison, a loss to the latter and another to U. N. B. is the season's tally. The wins are not in the majority but the losses were not by very big margins. Next year, with the material which will be available from the ranks of the Intermediates and the High School, it is believed that an aggregation which will sweep everything before it will be built up. It takes time, practice and coaching.

HAS DRAWBACKS IN A CRISIS

(New York Sun.)

It was swank pure and simple that inspired McGink to have a phone with a private number installed in his house. He thought it lent him "tone" and distinction. But he has changed his mind and now he is listed in the directory along with less pretentious neighbors.

Some time ago business relations necessitated his staying in town late. He wished to notify his wife. He discovered to his consternation that not only had he forgotten his phone number, but he had also mislaid his memorandum in regard to it. A plea to "information" only brought him an answer to the effect that the number was a private one and could not be given. Any of his friends who had it could not be reached and to keep peace in the family he had to cancel the engagement and go home.

He—is my memory correct as to your last name?

She—You'd better try to remember my middle one. The last one changes so often.

MOTHER OF ALLEGED HOLDUP SUSPECTS IS HYSTERICAL

New York, Nov. 29.—The mother of Barlow Morris (Whitney) Diamond Brooklyn salesman arrested in Cleveland under suspicion of having assisted in the murder and robbery of two bank messengers Nov. 14, created a hysterical scene and fainted when detectives refused to permit her to embrace her son on his arrival at the Pennsylvania station today.

Mother at Station.

Accompanied by her two daughters the suspect's aged mother was at the station when her son arrived with Detectives Donohue and Martin.

"It's my boy my innocent boy" the mother shouted. "They shall not take him. He is innocent". She fainted as he was hustled through the crowd and into a waiting automobile.

Two laborers who saw the occupants of the car in which the murderers fled with their loot of $43,000 were called to look at the prisoner.

Killings Were Brutal.

In the murder and robbery William S. Barlow a retired police sergeant and William H. McLaughlin a war veteran employed by the bank were shot down in cold blood without the slightest warning. Their two assailants escaped in an automobile driven by a confederate. It was through this car that Diamond's arrest was brought about after detectives had trailed him through Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Toledo and Cleveland. In the prisoner's pockets at the time of his arrest were found a loaded revolver and $2200 mostly in $20 bills the denomination of a large part of the money stolen. He had a great deal more than this when he left New York the detectives said but spent lavishly on his tour. In Philadelphia they said he stopped at the Hotel Lorraine under the name of "Schwartz" giving lavish entertainment to a chorus girl and boasting that he was a stick-up man.

Traced Through Plates.

The police first connected him with the case through the license plates on the automobile in which the hold-up men escaped from the scene of the murder. The plates were issued in a fictitious name but the application gave the address of a building owned by Diamond's mother. The prisoner once served a term of six months in Connecticut for grand larceny the police said. His finger prints they added corresponded with marks left in blood on the door handles of the car. Five witnesses to the crime identified his rogues gallery picture at police headquarters as that of one of the hold-up men.

Diamond's mother who collapsed when told of his arrest had an account in the West End bank police said, and her sons frequently went to the institution on business for her. The bank is within a stone's throw of the Diamond home.

Was School Athlete.

On information supplied over long-distance telephone last night by the detectives who made the arrest, police said they expected within a short time to locate two men believed to have been the other members of the gang.

Diamond who is 28 a widower and the father of a 5 year old boy was at one time one of the best known athletes in the Brooklyn high schools. The wide area covered by the New York police in the search for the prisoner became known when officials said they had recalled detectives from 20 cities. They are positive they said that the other two men they seek are at hotels here.

Fitzsimmons asserted that at one time he had owed the government approximately $12,00 but that he had paid all of this except the present balance of $1700. The promoter said he would go to Indianapolis Friday and that he was confident the matter would be satisfactorily adjusted.
