MACLEAN FOR THE EXCHEQUER COURT

Hon. D. D. MacKenzie May Accept Vacancy in Supreme Court.

Ottawa, March 19—Appointment of Hon. D. D. McKenna, solicitor-general, to the vacancy in the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia caused by the death of Judge J. W. Longley will probably be announced before the Easter recess. It is also learned that Hon. A. K. Maclean, Halifax, is the likely appointee to the judicial position held by the late Sir Walter Cassels, as judge of Exchequer Court of Canada.

It is not expected that Mr. MacKenzie's appointment will cause an immediate reorganization of the federal cabinet, but it is certain to precipitate an instant call from the Opposition for the filling of vacant portfolios. Those of Railways and Canals and Immigration and Colonization, are now without permanent occupants and that of Solicitor-General will soon be vacated. The most widely credited report is that the Prime Minister will not undertake the task of cabinet appointments until after the present session, his position, it is understood, being that to attempt it now would be needlessly to dislocate working arrangements, especially in regard to immigration and to railways.

Some credence is given the recently circulated report that H. B. McGivern, one of the Ottawa members will be taken into the cabinet as a minister without portfolio. It is believed, however that such a move would meet with considerable opposition from Liberal members in Ontario who hold that the western and the eastern extremities of the province are represented in the ministry but the wide area lying between these is without recognition with the exception of North York, the Prime Minister's seat.

Two names have already been mentioned in connection with the successor to Hon. D. D. MacKenzie, those of E. M. Macdonald, Pictou, and Geo. W. Kyte, chief government whip. In case Mr. MacKenzie receives the appointment the Liberal contestant for his seat, Cape Breton, North Victoria, will it is believed, be former-Mayor F. L. Kelly of Sydney.

REGRETS THE DISMISSAL OF DR. FOSTER

A former Fredericton lady now residing in Massachusetts in a letter to the Mail touching on the action of the School Board in dismissing Principal Foster says:

"Dr. Foster stands in my mind as one of the real fine teachers that I was privileged to have. He left with on a very strong impression of honor and sincerity, the need of close appreciation and clear thinking far more lasting and useful than any collection of school book facts and I consider him one of the powerful forces for good work in every sense of the term. It is a tragedy that such a useful teaching career should be allowed to end in this way for such a trivial cause. As a member of the School Committee I realize the influence often brought to bear against teachers and it is disheartening to find that the Fredericton Board could be influenced to do a wrong."

W. I. Course Finished

The instructional class at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Watters at Barker's Point, conducted on behalf of the Women's Institute of that place came to a very successful close on Saturday night, when a larger class was present than had been the rule throughout the week. The three instructors left this morning for Minto where they will hold a class tonight.

London, March 19—An audience of 5,000 vociferously cheered von Hindenburg at Hanover when he declared "If the French and Belgians insist upon staying in the Ruhr we must take arms in our hands and smite them," according to messages received in London.

"We don't want to stir up war," he said, "but it must be remembered that the best of us cannot continue to live in peace when bad neighbors don't want it."

Hindenburg's speech, it is said, has stirred the Hanoverians to a war fever pitch. The Marshal's mind is stated to be less alert than it was during the war. This was one of his rare appearances in public, as he does not go out much, preferring to spend his time studying his favorite maps.

Bonar Law in Dilemma.

The British officially denied today that they contemplate intervening in the Ruhr crisis and say Germany must deal with France and Belgium. Britain refusing to abandon its attitude of neutrality.

Unofficial feelers, however, are still going forward but with what result no one can say, while Bonar Law is still contemplating getting from France some indication of what she is striving for in the Ruhr, reparations or security.

The French have given such firm indications that they will not tolerate any interference or questioning of motives that the British are in a difficult position, having to satisfy the House of Commons on the one hand and France on the other.

Official circles are less hostile to France than the House of Commons and the manner in which France met British wishes regarding Cologne, makes its supremely difficult for Bonar Law to do anything to affront France.

PHILA. COUPLE ARE WEDDED BY RADIO

Grace De Armand Becomes Mrs. Newman by Wireless Ceremony

Philadelphia, March 19—With radiophones over their ears. Miss Grace De Armand, 3528 Vankirk street and Lex Newman, 6607 Hegerman street were married at the home of the bride last night by Magistrate Lindell, who pronounced the knot tied from a nearby broadcasting station. They held hands while the words of the magistrate came clearly and distinctly and smiled their answers.

The only trouble with the radio ceremony was that Miss De Armand and Mr. Newman couldn't make Magistrate Lindell hear without a broadcasting set, so they had to go to his home 5931 Hegermann street to make the ceremony legal.

"If we could have answered," Mrs. Newman said this morning, "it would have been all right but we couldn't so we had to have our real party at Magistrate Lindell's."

She explained that the reason for the unique ceremony was that she and her husband wanted her friends to be at the event and couldn't invite them all.

"We couldn't serve radio wedding cake or carry on the usual aftermath of weddings," she explained "but it was a lot of fun anyway."

Magistrate Lindell is in favor of more radio weddings in the future.

"Of course," he said, "I felt a bit lost, unable to see the prospective bride and bridegroom but I managed to get the questions out—and I think that all the 'bugs' got an earful when they listened in last night."

The ceremony took place shortly after 8 o'clock. Bride and bridegroom properly arrayed stood together, each with the headpiece as an addition to the usual costume. They went through the ceremony under the instructions of the magistrate true to form.

After the ceremony they met friends at the home of the magistrate and received congratulations and plenty of rice that had not come by radio. Magistrate Lindell repeated the nuptials.

LIKELY TO SOLVE ALL PROBLEMS

Turkey Accepts Allied Proposals Regarding Dardanelles.

Paris, March 18—M. Bompard, former French minister to Turkey, accompanied by a number of experts will represent France at the preliminary conference of representatives of France, Great Britain and Italy which will open this week in London under the presidency of Lord Curzon the British Foreign Secretary to study and define the attitude of the Allies to the Turkish counter-proposals to the Lausanne peace treaty.

The stand of the Allies is expected to be determined inside of ten days. As Turkey has accepted the Allied proposals concerning the regulations for the passage of the Dardanelles and Bosphorus by warships and merchantmen, Admiral Bacaza will not take part in the London meeting.

The general opinion here is that the Turkish counter-proposals offer no dangerous obstacles to the conclusion of peace in the Near East provided the Turks when the official conference is resumed at Lausanne or elsewhere show conciliation. It was remarked in Allied circles today that the Turks in their reply not only have incorporated last-minute concessions made by the Allies, chiefly by France in the interest of an immediate signature of the peace treaty but have put forth new demands which will be difficult of solution if the Turks remain intransigent.

Foreigners in Turkey. Concerning capitulations, the Allies interpret the Turkish demands as placing foreigners in Turkey in a more disadvantageous position than in those countries where special privileges to foreigners never existed. The economic proposals of the Turks are described as authorizing Turkey to favor citizens of one country over another by occasional exemptions from taxation, thereby preparing the ground for international complications.

Touching on the Ottoman debt, Turks insist in distribution of the debt among detached provinces, but simultaneously claim a continuance of Turkish rights and advantages in these districts including civil lists. By demanding the application of Turkish property laws to foreigners, the Allies apprehend legal tangles, claim that one result would be the inheritance of a foreigner's property by a brother, instead of by a son as is the custom in western lands.

"There are a number of points, seemingly unimportant which will require study and clarification by the experts," was the comment of the French spokesman today. He instanced Turkey's unexpected demand for possession of Castorizla, off the southern coast of Asia-Minor, which was not mentioned in the Lausanne treaty and which has brought forth outspoken condemnation on the part of the Italians, the present holders of the island.
