WOMEN ARE M RTYRS TO APPEARANCES

(New York Sun.)

"You women have a cinch," he grumbled. "You have nothing to do all day: you saunter out for a walk dressed in comfortable clothes—"

"Hold on a minute!" she cried.

"Comfortable clothes did you say? Long clinging skirts—getting longer and clinger every day—twisting round your ankles tangling round your feet; long dragging lace panels on each side, or long fluttering chiffon sashes that catch in the door of the motor or attach themselves to every chair or table you pass! Long flapping sleeves that won't let you use your hand or arm with any degree of comfort! High heeled shoes that threaten to throw you at every step! Stockings of finest silk gauze that go to pieces while you're putting them in unless you're careful and as soon as they get on anyway

"A permanent wave that makes your hair fluff about and fly in your mouth and eyes and ears till you're ready to scream. Long dangling earrings that catch in your hair and most kill you! Makeup that has to be put on just so or it will show and has to be watched as closely as a baking sponge cake or it will be a sight!

"Spend hours nearly every day getting facials and shampoos and manicures and massage and Marcells and then to crown it all can't eat the sweets and fats you love and can't even eat all you want of the things you don't love!

"Comfortable indeed! Women are martyrs to our appearance, always have been and always will be! So there now!"

"Oh," said he.

EXTREMES.

I used to run away from girls,
I would have you know,
When I was a growing lad—
So they termed me slow.

The years have made me far more wise,
As they quickly passed;
Now I dote upon the dames,
And they call me fast

SYSTEM RUN DOWN
BLOOD OUT OF ORDER

Many people become run down, but don't know just exactly what their trouble is, when, as a rule, it is improper circulation of the blood.

All they need is a good tonic to build up the system and put the blood into proper shape.

For this purpose there is nothing on the market today to equal

Burdock Blood Bitters

It regulates the stomach, liver and bowels, purifies the blood and tones up the entire system.

Mrs. H. Poole, Port Dover, Ont., writes:—"My system was run down and my blood out of order, and I suffered a great deal from pains in my head which made me feel very miserable. A friend told me to try Burdock Blood Bitters, so I got a bottle and before it was used I found it was doing me good. I kept on until I had taken three, and now I feel like a different woman.

My husband also took it and it has built him up."

Commodore Stewart
The Victim of a Joke

Commodore Stewart of the Chat-ham World in writing to his paper from the New England Sanitarium at Melrose, Mass., has this to say:

My appearance in the Sanitarium was a great surprise to my friend McDade, my oldest and best beloved of friends—an unbroken, uninterrupted friendship of nearly fifty years. He was, when a boy, my right hand man on the Daily News of St. John, and I taught him all I knew of the art of news getting. He was a very glutton for work, stayed with me in the office till one or two o'clock and was around early next day for news. When I retired from the paper he succeeded me as news editor.

He played one great joke on me. I was in the gallery of the House of Commons, and he wrote to me for something to write in the album of a young Fredericton lady of his acquaintance. He had an exaggerated opinion of my powers as an album poet and wanted to make a good impression on the lady. I, of course, immediately responded. I had seen the lady, and admired her, and fancying that my friend was hard hit I wrote some verses. To Agnes, that quivered and radiated with admiration of her charms and devotion to her person. It was, as erotic verse, a great success. I am sure—a good thing, of the kind. Of the kind, mark you. On the first two pages I wrote a note to Mac, on the third I wrote the ecstatic effusion of undying love, and, on the fourth, wrote Yours ever, J. L. S. Mac read the poem, decided that it was too warm for him to father, and then a bright idea struck him. He cut the sheet of paper in two, and pasted the leaf having the verses and my signature into the album! Then he wrote something of his own, and sent the book to the lady with a note apologizing for having asked his friend to write for it. I didn't meet the lady for years, and then she was the wife of the Hon. Michael Adams.

SUSSEX NOW HAS HYDRO

Sussex, Feb. 25—Sussex is now in possession of hydro. The distribution system was completed on Friday and the current was connected up last evening and passed through the lines without a hitch. The town, with its new system, put on a notable appearance with its bright lights shining from almost every nook and corner, stores, other places of business and private dwellings.

The citizens of Sussex are being congratulated on this splendid enterprise. The town has, at great expense just completed an entire new electric system, new poles throughout, town all rewired, and new switches and transformers installed. The street lights, which are something new in design, are very bright and powerful.

Sussex does not consider itself boastful when it claims now to be the best lighted town of its size in the Maritime Provinces.

THE GOLF WIDOW.

When autumn waned and winter came
And drove away the golfing game
She smiled a happy smile.
She hoped, when snow began to roam,
That it would drive her husband home
To linger for a while.
The smile has vanished from her brow
For he is playing inchoors now.

HEROIC MEASURES.

Ted—It was Tom's ambition to master the saxophone.
Ned—That's all off now. The boys went up to his room the other night and mastered him.
