ARGUMENT OF SCHOOL BOARD FOR CITY SCHOOLS

to be divided into two sections, and will involve the opening of an additional class room. The High School enrollment has shown an extraordinary increase during recent years. The figures for December 1919, 1920, 1921, 1922 are as follows: 182, 187, 235, 300. It is certain that the total enrollment in the High School will not reach its peak before 1924, and probably not then.

Two Main Factors

My conclusion is that the two main factors which will determine our needs for the future are: 1. The number of new families moving to the city, and 2. The gradually extending period of the school life of the average boy and girl.

The influence of the first factor is problematic, but it is likely that the country people will continue to move into the cities in order to enjoy the social advantages and give their children the educational facilities afforded by a city like Fredericton.

The second factor may reach its maximum in a few years, but there are various causes which may increase its importance if they should be introduced. Among these may be mentioned:

1. The raising of the compulsory attendance age, as in Ontario and in England.
2. The extension of our vocational courses.
3. The erection of a new High School.
4. The installation in the new building of a modern gymnasium.
5. A limitation of the number assigned to any one teacher.
6. The addition of a Kindergarten Department.

After the first period the game was Dalhousie's.

A Mother's Health Needs Great Care

Care of Home and Children Often Causes a Breakdown.

The woman at home, deep in household duties and the care of motherhood, needs occasional help to keep her in good health. The demands upon a mother's health are many and severe. Her own health trials and her children's welfare exact heavy tolls, while hurried meals, broken rest and much indoor living tend to weaken her constitution. No wonder that the woman at home is often indisposed through weakness, headaches, backaches and nervousness. Too many women have grown to accept these visitations as a part of the lot of motherhood. But many and varied as her health troubles are, the cause is simple and relief at hand. When well, it is the woman's good blood that keeps her well; when ill she must make her blood rich to renew her health. The nursing mother more than any other woman in the world needs rich blood and plenty of it. There is one way to get this good blood so necessary to perfect health, and that is through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Mrs. W. T. Riley, R.R. No. 1, Apple Hill, Ont., has proved the great value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to mothers, and tells her story as follows:—"Two years ago, after the birth of my boy, I became very weak and run down. Gradually I lost weight and energy until I was unable to do my housework. I could not sleep, my nerves would twitch and jump so that I arose in the morning with heavy aching limbs and head. Indigestion helped to make the misery worse, and my heart would palpitate terribly. I doctored steadily for a year without getting better, but just dragged along feeling that I would never be well again. But one lucky day, on the advice of a friend, I began treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I have taken only six boxes, but I wish you could see the difference. I am now able to do my work, go about and enjoy myself. I feel so entirely like a new woman that I advise every weak or ailing woman to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I know they will get beneficial results."

If you are ailing, easily tired or depressed, it is a duty you owe yourself and your family to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial. What this medicine has done for others it will surely do for you. You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

AROUND THE TOWN

The death of William W. Davies a short time ago removed from the citizenship of Fredericton the last member of the 22nd Regiment or the Old Imperial Army who took his discharge and made Fredericton his home. The regiment now the Cheshire Regiment, was the last full-strength battalion to be stationed in Fredericton and its thousand-and-odd officers and men taxed accommodations to the utmost. Other members of that unit who became residents of Fredericton were Clifford Hoskins, David Lifford, Robert Cochrane, R. W. Gregory and Martin White. All have passed away some in quite recent years. Descendants of all are still here and it is a noticeable fact that the discharged soldiers of the British Army in this locality were an excellent element in the population.

As has been previously noted in this column a considerable number of officers of Imperial corps which were on station here at various times, procured land in Kingsclear and lived there as farmers after leaving the service. One of the number Major O'Malley located some three miles from Fredericton where the Kingswood Inn has been in recent years. Others located farther west of that point.

Numerous other units of the Imperial forces left members here. In many cases families founded in that way came to occupy prominent places in the community. At the present time when the Federal authorities are discussing means of attracting population to Canada it would be well to remember that the regular troops in past years left a most valuable element in Canada. It also is of interest to remember that although it is more than fifty years since Imperial troops were withdrawn from all stations but Halifax, it is a matter of only a few weeks since the last survivor passed away in this city.

There is a revival of the project to broaden the scope of the University of New Brunswick by the addition of a full course in law leading to a degree. For some years the equivalent to one year at any law school in the Maritime Provinces has been given. The lectures usually are held in the Parliament Building as it is more convenient for the lecturers to meet classes in the Law Library or one of the chambers than to go to the University. Not long ago a party of co-eds who had entered for law lectures repaired to the Parliament Building in search of their class. In their wanderings through the corridors they happened upon a gentleman of stately mien and affable manner who at once assisted them when he learned their difficulty. The young ladies were rather surprised to learn later that their guide was the Chief Justice of the Province.

Fred Lyons, a local carpenter, while tearing down an old ramshackle building on Westmorland street known as the Lockhart house, this winter, came across an ancient volume of considerable interest. It is entitled "Statutes of the Parliaments of Ireland, Volume IX, from the twenty-ninth year of King George's Reign, 1789, to the Thirty-third year 1793." The volume is bound in leather and although it bears evidence of having had considerable rough usage all of its 315 pages are intact. Should any Irish historical society want this book Mr. Lyons would probably be willing to part with it on reasonable terms.

Some months ago an aged citizen who had become incapacitated from work suffered a stroke of paralysis and was admitted to the Victoria Public Hospital for treatment. His case did not yield readily to treatment and was finally pronounced incurable with the result that he was eventually transferred to the Municipal Home. It seems that he has a married daughter living in the United States and not having heard from him parent for some time she became rather anxious and this week made a journey to the city to investigate. She was not long in ascertaining the facts of the case and in a remarkably short space of time after her arrival here there was a vacant berth at the Municipal Home. The old gentleman was taken to the house of a friend, and the same evening left by the Boston train for the United States, his daughter having assured him that he would have a home with her as long as he lived. "My father cared for me when I needed help," she remarked to a friend, "and I am not going to see him an object for charity in his old age." There is a whole sermon in that woman's statement and act of kindness.

Although there was a whole lot of bright sunshine during the month of February keepers of meteorological records tell us that it was one of the coldest months on record. It was certainly a month of real winter weather, and while it had its drawbacks it made conditions very favorable for lumber operators. Although there was a great deal of snow no rain fell during the month and lumbermen had little difficulty in getting their logs to the stream. March has certainly started in very lamblike and if the kind of weather we have been having since Thursday keeps up long the huge snowbanks which now adorn the landscape will soon take on a very unhealthy look. One old citizen who is something of an astronomer declared that the cold weather in February was due to the fact that the moon was too high in the air. If this is so it is to be hoped that the March moon will avoid the high spots.

A picture postal card which fell into the hands of a member of the Mail staff during the week recalls a rather outstanding incident in connection with the Guthrie-Scott by-election held in York during the winter of 1914. The postal shows a group portrait of the non-commissioned officers of the 12th battalion and on the reverse side is the following message written to one of the heroes of a certain political note but who was then a public official:

Tidworth, Eng. March 1, 1915.

Dear Harry:—I have intended to write you a long letter but could not seem to get around to it. Write me and I will promise a long answer. Gerow tells me that you acted true blue on the note business and I shall never forget you for standing by as you always have when needed. Regards to all. PERCY.

It may be explained here that the note referred to in the above epistle is supposed to mean one for the tidy sum of $5,000 which was negotiated during the by-election previously referred to. Hon. J. K. Flemming was then premier of the province and a by-election was being held in York to fill a vacancy in the Legislature caused by the resignation of Col. H. F. McLeod, who had been elected to the Federal House. There was a split in the grand old party, and some difficulty was experienced in working up enthusiasm for Col. Guthrie's candidature. It was with the idea of ejecting some pep into the fight in his behalf that certain active spirits put their names to a note and discounted the same at a local bank. Of course there were the usual promises of outside help, just as soon as the election was over, but as is usually the case these promises never took the form of collateral. The result was that the men who signed the note (or such of them as were unable to dodge the several renewals) had to dig down and pay up. The present Federal member for York-Sunbury figured in the final stages of the transaction in his capacity of solicitor for the bank, and appeared to take great delight in making the victims come across with the goods. The Harry to whom the above epistle was addressed, put up a strenuous fight on behalf of the victims of the note, and it is a matter of record that he was able to extract the sum of $75 from one J. Mal. Chappell, then a government contractor, which amount was applied towards the principal. He certainly stood by "when needed" but his services to the party in that connection were soon forgotten.

The directors of the local agricultural society have already started in to make preparations for the big exhibition to be held in this city next September. Several meetings have been held of late and from what can be gathered the directors regard the prospects exceedingly bright for a most successful show. The last exhibition was held here in 1921 and since that the society has acquired the grounds of the Fredericton Trotting park adjoining and have placed all of the property in the hands of a holding company. This means that the exhibition will be on a somewhat larger scale than ever before, and the directors are hopeful of making it a pronounced success financially.

A NEW LOT OF OLIVE OIL

A lot of oil which we didn't expect. We didn't know whether we would ever get any more or not. True, we could have had domestic oil, but not equal in quality, flavor or deliciousness with this strictly imported quality. If you want some nice, new olive oil, here it is. The price is the same as ever.

and otherwise. There is a lot of hard work to be done between now and next September, but the members of the board have all had more or less experience in the game and are confident that they will deliver the goods. Since the last show an important acquisition has been made to the society in the person of Mr. C. F. Bailey, the new superintendent of the Fredericton Experimental Station. Mr. Bailey is a maritime man and there is nobody in these provinces who has anything on him as an agricultural expert. He has placed his services at the disposal of the directors, and they are already finding him of great value. Mr. Bailey takes the ground that it is useless to offer prizes with a view of encouraging the raising of classes of stock not adapted to New Brunswick therefore it is difficult to see how the province can benefit by paying out thousands of dollars in prize money to the owners of beef cattle in other provinces. It would seem to be much better business to put forth greater efforts to stimulate and encourage our own dairying industry. It is understood that Mr. Bailey's advice has been along these lines and the directors as sound business men are very likely to be very favorably impressed. It should not be a matter for surprise if the prize list for the next exhibition comes in for quite an overhauling.
