FLY TIME.

Only a little fly;
But it stopped the fielders pay
For he muffed the ball,
And he let it fall,
And he was released next day.

Only a little fly;
But the plate of soup was spoiled,
And the cook got fired
Which made him tired,
And so was the fly that was boiled.

Only a little "fly";
But her husband found it out,
And he raised a row,
And he's with her now Whatever she goes about.

HOW THE LIBERALS WERE DEFEATED IN THE PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND ELECTION

in town and country. Farmers having several sons argued that it was unfair that they should have to pay this tax, while they had also to pay his land tax as well.

The Opposition also rang the charges on alleged broken promises by the Liberals. They contended that the latter declared before the election of 1919 that they could run the country without increased taxation, though such a declaration did not appear in Premier Bell's manifesto, nor had he so stated in parliament. Even if some Liberal candidates on the stump had said it would have been impossible to go on without increased taxation, they had been misled by the pre-election assurances of the Conservative Premier that there would be a surplus for 1919, when instead there was a deficit of over $200,000.

The incoming Premier has no easy task ahead of him. With a top-heavy majority dissension is bound to arise when the few portfolios have to be filled. He has pledged himself to remove the $3.00 poll tax. This leaves a gap of $35,000 in the revenue to be filled. His followers and his press have been continually harping against taxation in the campaign.

If he increases taxes, his doom is sealed at once. True, he promised to reduce the sessional indemnity, but even if he put it back to its original amount of $200 there would only be a saving of $9,000, and it is highly improbable that he will make such a large reduction.

There was an underground report during the campaign that the Conservative government if elected would grant licenses to sell light beers and wines. A delegation from the Labor Union waited on the Bell government last session, asking them to take a plebiscite on that question, but the request was turned down. It was actually proposed by the Conservatives before going out in 1919 to take such a plebiscite, and though the minute-in-council was passed, they had it cancelled after the election. If the license law comes into effect the new Premier will get additional revenue, but he will run counter with the temperance sentiment which is so strong throughout the province.

The Conservatives had opposed the funding of the auto fees to borrow money for the building of the highways. Unless they deliberately go back on their pre-election declarations the continuation of the highways policy offers another problem which cannot readily be solved.

When the Liberals introduced their tax act in 1920 the then Conservative Premier said that he had no doubt they were doing the right thing, but taxation was like a red rag to a bull so far as the electorate was concerned. Nemesis, he said, was on the trail of the Liberals. The result would be their political annihilation.

He has proved a true prophet, but the annihilation has not been complete. A good fighting remnant remains. The leader has not yet been selected but it will probably be A.
C. Saunders, K. C., a young, able and progressive man.

It is true that the Conservatives for a time will have the benefit of good finances and good roads, both built by the Liberals, but the people will soon come to see that though the latter were defeated, they went under in a good cause. They made a real honest effort to stabilize the finances, and give the country good government.
