INFLUENCE

The ocean is very large and the Yangtze, though big, is only a Chinese river. But where the Yangtze flows into the ocean it colors the waters for twenty-five miles out. You who read this column are a greater part of this town than the river is of the sea. You may not have thought of it but you color it far and wide. You may have no wish to color it but you do. You cannot help it. There is something tragic, dangerous about influence. You have to have it whether you want it or not. You are simply forced to make people about you either better or worse because of you and your ways. It is a sobering thought.

A correspondent wants to know the names of the senators from New Brunswick and the counties in which they live. In reply we would say that New Brunswick has a compliment of ten senators, but there is now one vacant seat. Here is the list together with the places of residence; Hon. J. W. Daniel, St. John; Hon. Irving Todd St. Stephen; Hon. G. W. Fowler, Ottawa; Hon. J. A. MacDonald, Amherst, N. S.; Hon. F. B. Black, Sackville; Hon. G. G. King, Chipman; Hon. Pascal Poirier, Shediac and Montreal; Hon. T. J. Bourque, Buctouche and Hon. O. Turgeon, Bathurst.

Northcliffe, now dead, was the greatest newspaper maker of this generation. His success could not be narrowed down to one cause. If it could the answer might be written in one word: "enthusiasm.' Northcliffe was an enthusiast. When his interest was once aroused he became interested all the way through. He rode a hobby until it was worn to a frazzle. He pursued a thing until he caught and found out all about it. His newspapers were his chief enthusiasms. That's why he succeeded with them.

A referendum is being taken in Manitoba today on the question of establishing a system for the sale of beer and light wines. The change is being advocated by the beer and wine league with the support of the Hotel Men's Association. Interest is not as keen as in the referendum taken a short time ago when a majority of 40,000 was rolled up in favor of the establishment of Government liquor stores.

John D. Rockefeller, the world's richest man celebrated his eighty-fourth birthday a few days ago. He chanced to meet a number of children near his home and gave them each a nickle. So for there has been no advance in the price of gasoline.

When an Ohio man went to reshingle his house, he found $2,000 worth of paper money hidden under old shingles. It is believed that a former tenant left them there and that the former tenant was a firm believer in the rainy day motto.

The place where the author of "My Old Kentucky Home" wrote the song has been made a shrine. This is a nice idea, but it wont' prevent impromptu quartets from continuing to murder the song.

It is believed that a missing husband who is alleged to have written two worthless checks for his wife to cash, will come back "No account."

PaPris drug vender caurht by the polire swallowed his poison and died. Case where the offender made the punishment fit the crime.

Patience is a virtue unpossessed, apparently, by the aviator who was hurt by leaping from a falling balloon.

Osteopaths in session in New York advise men to wear corsets. Well, somebody must wear them.

A sticky summer day is one on which a fat man hopes General Humidity falls off his horse.

Here is a paragraph which says: "Lenine is rapidly recovering from his last death." But is it his last?

Next war may be fought in the air, but the net losses will be counted on the ground, as always.

One gets the idea that when a Bulgarian grows tired of living he hunts up the job of Premier.

July is the acid test of a city man's enthusiasm for working in his garden.

Not all persons who gather elderberry blossoms are botanists.

A toy balloon caused a $50,000 factory fire. Yes, something went up.

There is no diminution of output from the European crisis factory.

Germany says she can't pay and she seems afraid to try.

Here and There

Each acre of corn grown in Ohio costs on an average 46.26 hours of labor.
