THE CALL OF HIS WIFE SHATTERED A DREAM

New York, July 9—In a recent lecture in New York Professor Phelps of Yale said: "The happiest man is he who thinks the most interesting thoughts." The speaker gave music as one means toward that end, a truth which could be illustrated by the obscure case of Edgar Ames.

Mr. Ames could describe his married life in the words of the once popular song: "I picked a lemon in the garden of love, where they say only peaches grow." But, being a gentle soul, he never speaks of the incompatibility in his home.

Sunday the June sunshine came through the upper window, touching the figure of little, old Edgar Ames. Crouched upon the top stair, he was stealthily fingering a hymn book, and making a note of favorites to be used at the mission service that afternoon.

Answers Call of the Wife

To his ears came the shrill, high pitched voice of his helpmate.

"Ed, come here this minute."

The old man hurried to his feet, concealing the hymnal in a pocket of his coat.

"Ed, where are you? It is 1 o'clock and one of the beds is not made."

After seeing that the room had been arranged to her satisfaction, his wife ordered him to clean other rooms on the second floor, although they had been throughly attended to two days before.

"It pains me to clean house on the Sabbath," he murmered, as he took up a whiskbroom. "Phoebe, I do wish you would not insist upon it."

Having finished the work assigned him, Ed made a rapid exit down the stairs. He crept into the back parlor, and soon was at the melodeon. His trembling fingers sought the keys; his sunken eyes shone.

"Alone with Thee, amid the mystic shadows,
The solemn hush of nature newly born;
Alone with Thee, in breathless adoration,
In the calm dew and freshness of the morn."

"Ed," called his wife, "stop that abominable noise. I won't have that going on when I am trying to read. You know that I hate it, but you persist in playing. If you had been as interested in business all your life you would have made some money, and not be living on my income now."

Ed left the instrument, and noticing that it was after 3 o'clock he entered the bathroom, preparing to shave.

Seated in her favorite chair, Mrs. Ames paused in her study of fashion to say, "Ed, come out of that room and answer the door bell. Do you hear the bell, Ed? Why don't you hurry to the door?"

A scared looking man, with lather on his face, showed a prospective tenant a room. After the stranger's departure, Mrs. Ames declared: "No, you are not going to that mission today, or any other time. I've stood that nuisance as long as I can."

Played 30 Years Too Long

"But Phoebe, I've played that little organ 30 years."

"Well, you have played that organ 30 years too long."

Mrs. Ames decided to go uptown to a vesper service, and she left the house shortly before 4 o'clock. Hearing the front door slam, the old man returned to his hymn.

"Still, still with Thee, when purple morning breaketh,
When the bird waketh and the shadows flee;
Fairer than morning, lovelier than the daylight,
Dawns the sweet consciousness, I with Thee."

Edgar Ames was happy in the back parlor. His old, knotted fingers were eagerly groping the yellow keys of his beloved melodeon.

If Subject to Colds, Here is Real Good Advice.

Don't load your stomach with cough syrups. Send healing medication through the nostrils—send it into the passages that are subject to colds and catarrh. Easy to do this with CAtarrhozone. It goes all through the bronchial tubes, nostrils and air passages—everywhere a trace of disease remains will Catarrhozone follow. You'll not have colds, nor will you suffer from sniffles, bronchitis or throat troube if Catarrhozone is used. Get it today, but beware of dangerous substitutes meant to deceive you for genuine Catarrhozone. All dealers or the Catarrhozone Co.,
