Suspicious Craft Denied Clearance, Declares Minister

Customs Officers Have Explicit Instructions, Mr. Bureau Asserts—Liquor Exports from Ontario to Cuba and Other Foreign Parts Discussed in Federal House.

Ottawa June 9—Vehement demands by Progressive members for less frequent use by the Minister of Customs of the "dumping clause" were an outstanding feature of the debate in the Commons upon the estimates of the Department of Customs.

Member after member, whose bailiwick lies on the Prairies, warned Hon. Jacques Bureau that he would be well advised to exercise extreme caution in using the clause as an instrument to protect Canadian manufacturers and producers of certain commodities, and thereby penalize the great mass of consumers.

Hardship Complained Of.

The discussion on the anti-dumping legislation arose over an item in the estimates covering preventive officers' services, and it very quickly localized on the Prairies. Progressive members declared that last year the clause had been so operated as to work a hardship on Western consumers anxious to avail themselves of an overproduction of United States apples. They objected particularly to the latitude allowed the Minister and his officers in invoking the anti-dumping law, declaring that to be, in effect, a usurpation by one man (or his deputy) of powers meant to be purely Parliamentary.

Breeze on Liquor Exports.

Liquor exports from Ontario ports to "Cuba" and other foreign parts (so-called) shared attention with Prairie apple problems. Joseph E. Harris (Conservative, East York) alleged that there existed a gross loss of revenue because of illicit so-called "exporting" of liquor, and drew from the Minister, in response, assertion that everything possible was being done to restrict the outshipment of such liquor to a legitimate export trade.

The problems of Toronto in respect of lack of Customs facilities furnished topic for a full hour's discussion, in which most of the Toronto members joined.

Plea For Customs Officials.

When the Customs estimates came up, T. L. Church (Conservative, Toronto North) made a plea for better payment of low-salaried Customs officials, especially at the Port of Toronto, and his Leader widened the discussion to apply generally to the issue raised by the postal employees' threat of strike. Mr. Meighen scored the Government "for putting it off on the Commission," and asked why it had not the courage to face the situation.

The Minister stated in reply that he had taken up the case of Customs employees himself with the Commission, urging that they be given an annual increase of $120 rather than $60.

Mr. Church also brought up the matter of Customs House facilities at Toronto, quoting the "venerable Globe" in support of his demand for consideration. Mr. Church's very energetic appeal was seconded by Messrs. W. F. Maclean, Dave Spence, Horatio Hocken and Sir Henry Drayton. The Minister agreed with his inquiries, stating that he hoped the government "soon" would find sufficient funds to provide Toronto with a Customs House such as was amply warranted by the business at that port. In this connection Hon. Dr. King, Minister of Public Works, stated that he would bring down tomorrow the exact amount of the estimated cost of the proposed new Customs House for Toronto.

Services of Preventive Officers.

Under the vote for preventive services John Evans (Progressive, Saskatoon) criticized the activity of some officers, but changed his views, apparently, when he was informed by the Minister that these officers had found instances of gross deception, where imports were being invoiced at as much as 25 per cent. below the real invoice figure forwarded to the purchaser. Mr. Hocken was critical in respect of the number of Customs ports in Canada which produced no revenue, but was told by the Minister that all served good purposes in a preventive way. Liquor was being smuggled into Canada from the United States, and the Customs Officers were very valuable in dealing with such illegal practices.

Joseph Harris (Conservative, York East) then brought up the matter of the shipment of liquor in bond to Newfoundland, Cuba, Mexico and other places. The vessels which went away from Canadian inland ports carrying liquor, he said, came back within a few days for reloading, and it was absurd to argue that they had made the voyage for which they had been scheduled. He wanted to know whether or not landing certificates were demanded and received before the cargoes were released from bond; also, whether or not foreign countries had protested to Canada regarding the misuse of certificates covering alleged exports.

In reply the Minister declared that landing certificates were demanded and secured before goods were released from bond, and, so far as he knew, no representations of the character referred to had been received. In some instances the department, doubting the genuineness of landing certificates, had forwarded these to the Government of the country to which the goods had been consigned, and he had been told, in reply, that the papers were regular and genuine. Moreover, he said, instructions to Customs officers were: Never to grant clearance to a boat which, in their judgment, could not make the voyage to the alleged port of consignment. Positively, he said there was no releasing from bond unless satisfactory landing certificates were forthcoming.

No Loss From Evasion.

Mr. Harris venturing the opinion that Canada was losing hundreds of thousands in inland revenue because of evasion of the law by liquor exporters, the Minister replied: "Not a penny."

Some time was spent on the matter of alleged high assessment by Customs officers of apples sent into the Prairie Provinces by growers of the State of Washington, the Minister replying to his critics with the remark that the United States growers had been dumping their most inferior fruit upon the Canadian market. This view was controverted by several of the Progressives. Here again Joseph Harris brought up the matter of exports of liquor, declaring his information to be that the Government was utterly unable to collect revenue on liquor produced in Canada for export purposes but actually consumed in this country. Challenged by Sam Jacobs to give a specific case, Mr. Harris retorted that he could not disclose the name of his informant.

That the Federal Government was "passing the buck" in regard to the licensing of liquor exporting houses in Saskatchewan was charged by J. Morrison (Progressive, Weyburn), who quoted from an official file to show that his allegation had been made, originally, by the Attorney-General of the Western Province. Mr. Bureau stated in reply that the Federal authorities issued no licenses for liquor export houses; the only licenses issued by the Dominion in Saskatchewan were for "bonded warehouses," in which all stocks must be held until the duty due was paid. Warehouses where liquor was stored for export, he said, came entirely under Provincial control.

M. N. Campbell (Progressive, MacKenzie), stating that the Attorney-General of Saskatchewan had denied that he ever gave consent to the establishment of bonded warehouses, the Minister reaffirmed his declaration, stating further that in 1916 the policy had been inaugurated of asking the Attorney-General of Saskatchewan for approval of all applications for bonded houses where liquor was retained until duty was paid. Until that approval was forthcoming the application went ungranted. The item of $5,720,710 was then given approval.

Bad Piece of Road.

Complaints are being heard in regard to the condition of the Royal Road from the Nashwaaksis to Woodlands. The commissioners have delayed starting repair work and motorists who have tried to negotiate the road within the past week have had no end of trouble. The road should have some attention without further delay.

SPECIAL ATTRACTION AT GAIETY THEATRE

"The Stranger" is the photo play at the Gaiety for Monday and Tuesday featuring a star cast.

This photo play is highly dramatic, and has been done with a sense of judgment and dignity.

The story is laid in London. Keith Darrant, K. C. a successful barrister, is about to be proposed for a high political office. His profligate brother gets mixed up with Peggy Bowlin, a girl of the slums. Betty Compson plays the girl, and in her simple style is pathetic and effective.

Lewis Stone is wholly convincing as the position-loving barrister, whose chief ambition is to bask in the dreary light of the highest London society.

It's funny—none of those books on First Aid describe what ought to be done in case of a weeping woman.
