Giant U. S. Dirigible in Trouble Again

SHENANDOAH PRISONER OF SKY 24 HOURS

Was Landed This Morning After Struggle.

CREW ALL SAFE

Previous Attempts to Land Dirigible Failed.

(Special Cable to the Daily Mail by the British United Press) Lakehurst, N. J., June 4—After having floated aimlessly for four hours in the fog between Trenton and the naval air base here the giant navy dirigible Shenandoah was placed in its hanger shortly after 8 a. m. today.

It was the fourth attempt to land the huge navy aircraft three others failing because the dirigible had become light through using so much fuel in its flight over New York and Pennsylvania, Tuesday.

The dirigible had been in the air almost 24 hours when the ground crew finally managed to grasp the mooring ropes hanging from the nose of the Gray craft. The flight was started shortly after 8 a. m. Tuesday and was the first since the dirigible made its "runaway" flight from the mooring mast in January. No difficulty was encountered until early today. At 4.20 the ground crew here received the following message from commander Lansdowne.

"Ship is O. K. over Long Branch. was lost in fog along Jersey coast. Flood lights a top the hangers were turned on to direct the Shenandoah to the field.

HOPES BRANCH LINE BILL WILL GO THROUGH

Hon. W. P. Jones, K. C., of Woodstock, president of the St. John and Quebec Railway Company, is among the visitors to the city today. Mr. Jones is naturally much interested in the Kingsclear-Vanceboro branch line bill now before Parliament, and while here will confer with Premier Veniot in regard to the matter. He says that Senator Robinson is strongly in favor of the bill and will do his best to secure its passage through the Upper House. Mr. Jones says that St. John members who are opposing the bill have taken the wrong viewpoint altogether. The C. N. R. authorities who are seeking the legislation, have not the slightest intention of side-tracking St. John. He added that it would be decidedly in the interests of the province as a whole to have the Kingsclear-Vanceboro branch line constructed.

IS NAMED AS PRESIDENT LATE TODAY

His Election was Most Critical Phase of Series.

RADICALS STRONG

Socialist Fight to Oust Millerand on in Earnest.

By WEBB MILLER.

British United Press Correspondent. Paris, June 4—Former Premier Painleve, peacemaker of the parties of the Left, was elected president of the French Chamber of Deputies today.

A Critical Phase.

Paris, June 4—(British United Press)—The most critical phase of France's presidential and political series opens this afternoon when the Chamber of Deputies elects a president.

Ex-premier Painleve was thought certain of election, after which the Socialist fight to oust President Millerand from the Elysee begins. The President of the republic has determined to fight with every constitutional means, to retain office. The Socialists say he must go and would require Edouard Herriot to refuse to form a cabinet until Millerand has promised to resign.

The Mayor of Lyons, who has been selected to succeed Raymond Poincare has not adopted such a recalcitrant attitude, however.

Millerand was expected to Summon Painleve and M. Doumergue, President of the Senate for a conference immediately after the chamber elections. At this conference the new premier would naturally be named.

Socialists Support Herriot.

The Socialist congress have voted not to participate in the next cabinet, but to support Edouard Herriot as Premier. This decision makes Herriot's accession to the premiership a certainty and President Millerand's resignation more than a probability.

It is expected that Herriot's first action in the Chamber as Premier probably will be to read Millerand's resignation.

The President of the Republic is expected to seek a seat as a deputy in order to continue his fight against the Radicals.

He persuaded radio broadcasting officials to broadcast his heart beats. His doctor was telephoned to listen in and from the radio diagnosis prescribed treatment.

Anglican Provincial Synod is in Session Here Today

The Provincial Synod of the Ecclesiastical province of Canada, Church of England, assembled here this morning with some one hundred clerical and lay delegates from the four dioceses of Montreal, Quebec, Fredericton and Nova Scotia in attendance, representing the Anglican connexion in Eastern Canada. The delegates assembled at the Memorial Hall of Christchurch Cathedral, Church street at ten o'clock and at 10.30 marched in procession to the Cathedral where service was held. His Lordship Bishop Farthing of Montreal was the preacher. The vestments of the clergy made a most impressive sight.

The first business session of the Provincial Synod opened this afternoon. His Grace, Archbishop Worrell of Nova Scotia, Metropolitan, delivered an address to the combined Upper and Lower Houses after which the two houses met separately. The Upper House is composed of Bishops. The address of His Grace the Archbishop delivered to the two Houses meeting jointly touched upon many matters of importance. It was as follows:—

Right Reverend Brethren and Brethren of the Clergy and Laity of the Ecclesiastical Province of Canada:

It is a great pleasure to meet, as a Synod, in this beautiful and historic city—the See city of the Diocese of Fredericton.

It is closely connected with some of the most interesting events of the early history of Canada and it will never be forgotten that this was the centre of the jurisdiction of that saintly prelate Bishop Medley, the first Bishop outside the city of Montreal to hold the office of Metropolitan of the Ecclesiastical Province of Canada. He would have been Archbishop of Fredericton if that title had been adopted in his time as the distinguishing title of the Metropolitan of a Canadian province. His monument is that stately and beautiful cathedral in which we held our opening service and which was first erected through his earnest and faithful work and that is the centre of the splendid organization which he gave to his diocese.

The diocese has been singularly blessed in the bishops that have presided over it from the beginning; Bishop Medley with his genius for organization and wealth of spiritual life, Bishop Kingdon, who was an acknowledged authority in theological learning, and, now, the present Diocesan who holds so prominent a place in the councils of the church and who is strong in the affections of his people.

The setting for our Synod meeting is perfect and I have great hope for the work which I believe will be accomplished.

It is not my intention to take up the time of the Synod with an extended address. My enforced absence from the province and the consequent demands upon my time after my return prevent me. I know, too, that the delegates, who have come, are anxious to get to business as quickly as possible and make the session as brief as possible, consistent with a careful consideration and discussion of all matters to be brought up.

Items of Business.

The session was called especially to give the Synod an opportunity to confirm the Canon authorizing the Canadian Prayer Book for use in this province. It was thought well that this should be done before the meeting of the General Synod in September, and there seemed to be no other time for this but the present week.

It also gives an opportunity for presenting for confirmation the amendment to Canon 6 which was adopted at the last session.

It would hardly be wise for me at this stage to express an opinion upon these matters. They are for the Synod to decide, and I have every confidence that the judgment of those present will be in every way satisfactory.

accessible to the delegates.

The committee appointed for this will present its report, which has been the work chiefly of the Lay Secretary, who has given much time and thought to it. I am sure it will commend itself to the Synod.

Declaration of Principles.

At a time when the air is full of controversy regarding the essential doctrines of the Church and a challenge is flung out in the midst of present day unrest to prove its claim of Divine origin and authority, there is an insistent call upon churchmen to stir themselves and do their part in the real work which the well being of the Church demands. I do not feel that I can make any suggestion as to what might be done, nor can I fully express what is my mind, but, it seems to me that this Synod, which is one of the arteries through which the life blood of the Church flows, should not separate without at least a declaration of its determination to stand firmly by the principles upon which it has been established.

Not Over-Governed.

It is sometimes said that the Church in Canada is over-governed and that it would be better to abolish the Provincial Synods and concentrate entirely on the work of the General Synod.

If the Church in Canada is never to grow greater than it is today, there might be something in this contention but I look for an ever-expanding and steadily growing body with its widely extended area presenting problems of vast importance—problems affecting the whole, as must be the case in every living organism, but especially of interest to the separate locality in which they arise.

Definition Needed.

I believe the time must come when some of the work of the General Synod must be committed to the Synods of the various provinces, if the former is not to become too unwieldy and necessarily inconsiderate of the conditions which would come under the immediate knowledge of the latter.

Meanwhile it is well that the relative position of the Synods, their duties and functions and authority should be clearly defined and all risk of overlapping or clashing or delaying in legislation avoided.

Newfoundland Not Willing.

In the Synod of 1912 the question regarding the advisability of making overtures to the Diocese of Newfoundland with a view to a possible coming of that Diocese into the Province of Canada was discussed and a committee appointed to bring the matter before the Synod of Newfoundland. As convener of the committee, I wrote to the ten Bishop of Newfoundland, but was discouraged from making any further approach by the attitude shown by him. While the Synod of Newfoundland agreed to receive a deputation from this Synod, the Bishop intimated to me that there was no use in going further with the proposal at that time.

Again Proposed.

In the session of this Synod in 1917 the matter again came up and a committee was appointed, but in view of the death of Bishop Jones and the consequent events in the Diocese, nothing was done. When in the Dominion of Newfoundland in 1918 for the consecration of Bishop White, the possibility of a union with Canada seemed to be somewhat greater than formerly. But it was only recently that the question has been suggested as one which this Synod might open again. The suggestion has come informally from a leading member of the Church in Newfoundland, and I think it would be well to appoint a committee of this Synod to approach the Bishop with the view of visiting their Synod at its regular session this month. I hope something will be done in this connection.

I know that a committee was appointed by the General Synod to take this matter into consideration, but nothing has been done. A move by us, and a conference with Newfoundland would help the General Synod to arrive at some decision.
