HARD SENSE FOR SCOTSMEN.

Mr. Baldwin asked the Socialists some searching questions the other day. The British Prime Minister is eminently a man of common sense, which is one reason why he inspires so much confidence. He was telling a large audience in Lanarkshire some of his Canadian experiences and pointing out the many opportunities for close commercial intercourse with that flourishing Dominion. "I shrink from reflecting what would have been the fate of Canada," he said, "if the early settlers had relied on the Socialistic doctrine of nationalization instead of the old Scottish qualities which have brought such great prosperity." And he added: "It is a long way from Canada to Communism, but a short way from Communism to disaster."

This way of putting it must have appealed to the hardheaded Scots in a part of the country too much afflicted with the promulgators of Communist doctrines. Those who best know the Scottish character have always found it difficult to understand why Glasgow and the Clyde Valley should have become a centre of fruitless political speculation, and that the Members of Parliament from that region should be the most intractable of Mr. Ramsay MacDonald's followers. "It is a matter of amazement," Mr. Baldwin told his hearers, "that the Socialists should be so blind to the possibilities of Empire trade, and so fanatical in their insistency of the possibilities of trade with Russia." Among them, indeed, Bolshevism has won its greatest triumph in Great Britain.

The Prime Minister's plain and outspoken way of dealing with this singular situation ought to be more effective than the floods of oratory that come from the Labor leaders. For it must be remembered that the British workman is at heart essentially conservative. He would be one of the first to rebel, we may be sure, if Soviet methods were actually adopted in his country.

Religion isn't a primary essential out in Oklahoma, or as we gather from the Daily Register of Siloam Springs, which prints a notice it found on a farm fence out there: "Positively no more baptizing in my pasture. Twice in the last two months I have had my gate left open by Christian people and I can't afford to chase all over the country just to save a few sinners."

In addition to our first thought, it wasn't quite neighborly of the "Christian people" to leave their sinners there with the gate open.

You do not notice that your child is taller today than he was yesterday. And yet, when the swift years slip by, you notice he has grown to be a man. Pessimists say the world is no better and people do not improve, because they can not see the difference between yesterday and today. But the generations to come, reading our history, will see and know the difference.

Let's not be envious when we read of the enormous quarterly, semi-annual or annual profits made by some large business concerns. Remember that the owners do not spend all this money on yachts and race horses. Millions of profit go back into the business—to make it bigger, better, more able to employ more men.

Great as the enthusiasm is, there are still sluggish, old-fashioned people, of the kind that want to arrive as well as start, who insist on taking steamships for their journeys to foreign parts.

"Eventually," observes an economist, "man will solve the problem of distribution." And then, we hope, Christmas won't be such a long, hard pull.

A woman is very foolish to waste her jealousy on her husband's stenographer. The cause of that abstracted look in his eyes is just as likely to be some other man's stenographer.

We sometimes get the impression that the reason a woman dresses so lightly is because she wants a little on her mind as possible.

Ohio farmer boasts he has three kinds of apples growing on one tree, which isn't unusual if he classifies them as good, bad and indifferent.

A Chicago dispatch has it that soap manufacturers are starting a popular movement for a Take-a-Bath Week. Is a week enough, in some cases?

When air Pullmans are the regular things what will the porter brush off the clothes, in lieu of dust, for the tip?

Five thousand carloads of grapes came East out of California in six days, as indicating a pressing demand.

It beats the world how a pretty girl can be inconsistent and get by with it.

A FREDERICTON GIRL MARRIED AT NIAGARA FALLS

A very pretty wedding took place at Lundy's Lane, United Church, Niagara Falls, Canada, September 10th when Miss Elleen Phillips, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Phillips, Fredericton and Mr. John Bond, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Bond of St. John, N. B., were united in marriage by the Rev. Bertram Nellis. The bride, attired in a blue French gown and hat, was given in marriage by her father, and carried a bouquet of sweetheart roses. The ceremony was witnessed by the parents and sister of the bride. The groom's present to the bride was a platinum and diamond pin. The happy couple left Wednesday, September 14th, for Syracuse, N. Y., where Mr. Bond is employed.

IMPORTANT RESOLUTIONS WERE ADOPTED.

HOT WEATHER EXPERIENCED IN CHICAGO

Chicago, Ills., Sept. 14—The mid west looked in vain today for relief from the 3 day heat wave which, the weather bureau predicted would continue through Thursday.

Reports of many deaths and of rising temperatures, making this month the hottest September in weather bureau history, came from all parts of the west central states. Only four cities reported their temperatures as being under 90 degrees.

Eight deaths were reported here where the mercury touched 95 degrees, equalling the all time record for September established in 1900. The reading was 80 degrees at 10 o'clock last night, and beaches were thronged until after nightfall. Many Illinois, Indiana and Missouri schools were closed due to the intense heat.

Quincy, Illinois was the hottest spot in the United States yesterday the mercury rising to an even 100 degrees. St. Louis and Nashville suffered under 98 degrees heat.

London, Sept. 15—The servant problem is not supposed to exist in England to the same extent as in the United States but, according to a recent newspaper advertisement it is necessary to offer inducements something like this: "Three half days weekly and other evenings, yearly holidays, good food and home, insurance paid wireless, motor rides and theater tickets."
