THE OPPOSITION AT OTTAWA ARE MASSING FOR AN ONSLAUGHT ON THE LIBERAL GOVERNMENT

(Toronto Globe.)

Ottawa, Feb. 9—Sure indication that the Conservatives in the Canadian Commons are massing for an onslaught on the King Government in connection with the so-called constitutional issue discussed by Premier King in the last election was again given today when Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Conservative Acting Leader, voiced a demand for the tabling of all correspondence with former Governor-General Byng on the subject of dissolution.

Mr. Guthrie asked for "all correspondence which took place between the Right Hon. Arthur Meighen and his Excellency the Governor-General, then Baron Byng, in June and July last, in reference to the dissolution of the then Parliament, and all correspondence which took place between the same persons with reference to the resignation of the Right Hon. Mr. Meighen. And, at the same time and in the same connection, all correspondence which took place between the present Prime Minister of Canada and his Excellency, the then Governor-General, in June last in regard to the resignation of the then Government, or in regard in the dissolution of the then Parliament."

Premier to Decide.

Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice, who was leading the House in the absence of the Prime Minister, replied smilingly that he would refer the request to the Premier, "and no doubt he will be pleased to give a satisfactory answer."

Mr. Lapointe acquiesced in Mr. Guthrie's additional request for the production of the exact question submitted to the Supreme Court on the Alberta schools issue, and undertook to refer to the proper channel a request for copies of Orders-in-Council of last year concerning the Carillon power rights on the Ottawa River.

Aside from Mr. Guthrie's important move, the short day in the Commons was given over almost entirely to Toronto's Thomas L. Church. Mr. Church got two bills through first reading and voiced two grievances which he considered of national concern when he spoke to two of his resolutions standing on the order paper. According to usual custom, the resolutions were withdrawn after the move had spoken to them.

Mr. Church's bills were amendments to the Postoffice Act and to the Railway Act. The first would compel newspapers to give to the public information as to their ownership. His bill would affect all newspapers and periodicals containing articles calculated to affect public opinion, with certain exceptions, such as technical publications. His Railway Act amendment would give to Canadian coal the same preference rates as are extended to grain and flour.

Demands Lower Taxes.

His resolutions demanded reduced taxation and abandonment by the Federal Government of municipal fields of taxation, and the creation of a national registration of voters system in preference to the present system which he denounced as cumbersome, intricate and inefficient.

His greatest grievance, which he raised in dealing with the taxation issue, was in connection with the Dominion Government's income tax levy, which, he said, was an invasion of the municipal field. Although the municipalities continued to be burdened with responsibilities such as unemployment which should not wholly be theirs, they still had to contend with the Dominion Government's unfair invasions of their tax fields, he said.

According to Mr. Church's statistics, it was the poor man who paid the bulk of the income tax revenues. The millionaires, he contended, usually got off scot free through manipulation of their residence qualifications or income tax returns. With proper tariff protection for Canada, Mr. Church contended, not only the income tax, but the "nuisance" taxes could be wiped out completely.

Mr. Church quoted extensively from the opinions of men like Sir Thomas White and banking organizations, who protested existing methods of taxation, instanced the moves toward tax reduction being taken in other countries, and wound up by paying a tribute to Premier Bruce of Australia, who, he said, despite what Premier King had said of him, he had aroused Canadians by his appeal to appreciate their position to the Empire.

Twitted by Robb.

Hon. James A. Robb, Minister of Finance, twitted Mr. Church with what he termed Mr. Church's ability to be on both sides of a single question at the same time. Although Mr. Church was not urging tax reduction, Mr. Robb said, Mr. Church had been one of a Toronto deputation recently to urge large expenditures in Toronto. Mr. Robb would be glad to know how to increase expenditures and lower taxation. If Mr. Church knew how, the Minister of Finance said, he would be welcome to the Liberal benches immediately.

After noting that the Dominion income tax had been held legal in the courts, Mr. Robb referred to the results of the conference of Provincial Treasurers on taxation adjustments. Nobody, including the Federal Finance Department, he said, seemed willing to concede anything to anybody else. But another conference was in the offing, and he only awaited the pleasure of his good friends Premiers Ferguson and Taschereau of Ontario and Quebec.

Says Debt Reduced.

The Minister claimed credit for the Government for reducing war debt and interest drains on the Treasury. It was incorrect, he held, to assume that it was cheaper to do business in the United States than in Canada. And, while it might be true, as Mr. Church had contended, that Ontario and Quebec paid a large proportion of the country's revenues, the large corporations, whose contributions made up the grand total, secured their revenues from business intercourse with all Canada.

In speaking to his resolution for a system of national registration of voters, Mr. Church urged a reference of the whole question to a select standing committee of the House. In Northwest Toronto alone, he said, nearly 300 returned men had been left off the voters' lists there.

Room For Improvement.

Hon. Ernest Lapointe agreed with Mr. Church that there was much room for improvement in the present act. One of the reasons why the Provincial lists could not be adopted was that there was no uniformity. He thought the House could well consider the question involved after the Chief Electoral Officer made his report on the last election.

Mr. Guthrie was also inclined to agree that some changes were advisable.

During the day 37 divorce bills were given first reading, and the railway estimates which were before the House last session brought down.

In reply to Mr. Church, Mr. Lapointe informed the House that the Alberta school question is now before the Supreme Court. Hon. Charles A. Dunning, Minister of Railways, said that the Board of Railway Commissioners had not reported as yet on the cost of carrying coal from Alberta to Ontario.

Hon. Dr. John W. Edwards (Conservative, Frontenac) submitted petitions from Ontario and the West asking that the Alberta natural resources issue be settled irrespective of the school issue.

Hon. John C. Elliott brought down the report of the Department of Health.

AN OLD TIME ACTRESS IS DEAD BROKE

New York, Feb. 11—A noted beauty has descended from riches to rags, if her story is correct. Mrs. Eybilla T. Pope, former actress, once shatellaine of homes that cost $100,000 a year to maintain, is living in a hall room. Broke, she has only two worn dresses, and her slippers are run down at the heels. She suing her husband, Charles T. Pope, for support.

LADIES!

Don't wave your hair daily—or even every week. Here's a way to keep it wavy for days at a time. BEFORE you use your iron, or curlers, DAMPEN the hair with DANDERINE. Just a few DROPS on comb or towel. Your locks will then behave for a MONTH! Of course, you know what Danderine does to dandruff; dissolves every speck, within five minutes of rubbing into the scalp. But as a wave-preserver on the hair itself, Danderine is a JOY. The best dressing in the world because it doesn't show. Any permanent wave or water wave lasts much longer and looks much nicer when Danderine is used instead of water to "set" the wave.

A GARDEN MOST DISCREET.

I know a little garden, most discreet
Whose grayed walks are raked in patterns neat;
Toeing the edges in a perfect row,
Prim and sedate and blue eyed lark spurs grow.

The windows of the house, awake all day,
Frown down upon the butterflies at play
And disapprove of gallant bumblebees
That boast of love as vagrant as the breeze.

But when the windows go to bed at night
And the conniving moon withholds her light
When all the flowers are steeped in dew and dark—

It is no wonder that the larkspurs lark!

BRITISH PRISONERS FEEL PINCH OF LAW'S SEVERITY; ARE PAID HALF CENT A DAY

London, Feb. 11—A criminal's first days in a British prison are spent in solitary confinement.

Three times a day he hears another—when his food is handed to him through the bars of his cell. He cannot pierce the impenetrable gloom of his first habitation in prison—the "dark cell."

Assigned to Work.

From here he is assigned to a working gang. Usually the tasks allotted to a newcomer are laborious, monotonous, heartbreaking. Pickaxe and shovel are given him. If the prisoner has led a sedentary, refined life, so much the worse for him. Upon his conduct with this gang depends whether his work eventually is made easier.

The working hours are not long. The morning period is from 8 to 12 noon. The afternoon shift from 1.30 to 5. But there is no let up. Jailers armed with rifles in addition to a "sap"—a solid rubber truncheon—hanging from the trower-belt, watch the gang with alertness. Any slacking is the signal for bringing the "sap" into play. British jailers are not gentle. Complete silence among prisoners is insisted upon. The penalty for an offense against this prison law is three days solitary confinement in the "dark cell" on bread and water.

Spirit Crushed.

Breaking huge slabs of granite is a favorite task allotted prisoners in British jails. But an even more drastic task is given consignment offenders against prison rules. It is the adoption of a penalty handed out to violent prisoners in the days of Pharaoh. A prisoner undergoing this punishment is shown a heap of cement which he must break down, load on to a wheelbarrow, carry 200 or 300 yards and dump. He is then made to re-load the wheelbarrow, and carry the cement back to where he got it, dump it and begin all over again. The effect of this non-productive, monotonous work is starting. As the days pass the hopelessness of it all begins to crush whatever spirit the prisoner originally possessed. The officials know that if kept to it too long, prisoners would become insane, but long before that stage is reached the victim has expressed a keen desire to resume work with any of the other gangs. He is one of the hardest and most conscientious workers from that day.

Hard work and willingness is rewarded. A prisoner found to be obedient and industrious is one day assigned to a gang performing easier tasks. If he continues to progress he gradually finds his way into the workshops inside the prison and some trade taught him with a view to his becoming a useful member of society again.

Like "Trusty" Jobs.

A much sought for pose is that of "trusty." Competition is keen, while the vacancies are few. A "trusty" in a British prison never escapes from the rigidity of discipline but he is allowed to perform his tasks without the eye of a jailer watching his every movement. Should he fall from grace, however his punishment is even more severe than that meted out to delinquencies of an ordinary working gang. He has been given a position of trust and has abused it, therefore he must suffer. He does. Also he never becomes a "trusty" again.

A well-behaved prisoner earns good remission marks. For example a prisoner serving a five-year sentence will be released on ticket of leave at the end of 3½ years providing his conduct has been exemplary. As an effective deterrent to his resuming his old ways a ticket of leave man must report every week to the nearest police station, no matter where he be. One failure to do so is noted immediately—so well organized is the information emanating from Scotland Yard—and the ex-convict is tracked down and sent back to prison to serve the remainder of his sentence under most painful conditions.

Prisoners are paid at the rate of half a cent a day for every working day. At the end of a seven year sentence the total emolument does not exceed $11.

MAKES TWO VACANCIES

Ottawa, Ont., Feb. 10—The death today of Hon. J. K. Flemming, Conservative member of Parliament for Carleton-Victoria, causes the second vacancy in the House of Commons. The other is that left by the recent death of J. W. King, former Liberal-Progressive member for North Huron.

Sour Stomach

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia"
Better than Soda

Instead of soda hereafter take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips."
