HON. DR. MANION, MINISTER OF RAILWAYS HAS MADE A NAME FOR HIMSELF IN PUBLIC LIFE

management and shareholders, the mouthpiece of the system in Parliament, presenting the railway budget, second only in importance to the National Budget itself. And he will be more than that. As Minister of Railways he will be the umpire between the Canadian National and the Canadian Pacific, ironing out disputes between the two, arbitrating their differences, called upon to administer difficult but even handed justice. As Minister of Railways, too, his will be the major responsibility for the greatest public works to be initiated by the Bennett Ministry. He will have to supervise the completion of the Hudson Bay route, involving additional expenditure of $20,000,000; will be in charge of the building of the Peace River outlet, with a cost of $80,000,000; will direct the building of the Greater St. Lawrence at a cost of perhaps $200,000,000. And last, but by no means least, Manion will have to be sort of First Sea Lord of our Merchant marine, with its ships on the seven seas.

Of his capacity for this colossal task, time alone can tell. There is no question of his courage, for Manion has proved his courage not only on the hustings and in Parliament, but on the field of battle itself. He was a chivalrous, a gallant soldier. In his own book A Surgeon In Arms, he has given us the tale of his experiences, though with too much modesty to reveal his own record of valor. He served with the French and the Canadians, with the Army Medical Service Corps. But Manion, although a doctor not compelled to go within the line, never sought shelter from peril within the privileges of his profession. He does not tell it himself, but he went into the front trenches, served where the strife was thickest, gave succor to the dying and wounded when machine guns and cannons belched death, won the coveted Military Cross under a hail of fire. Gas attacks, shell-fire, rat-infested trenches and iron rations—all these he shared with the common private. No man in Canada has more right to be called a veteran.

A Genial Man

In private life Manion has geniality, charm, culture; is an engaging and winning personality. His interests in life range far wider than war, politics and surgery. He has travelled much, has read widely, is fond of good society, has a love for the best in books. Conforming to the traditions of Canadian Toryism, he is never happier than when discoursing upon the glories and great names of British Liberalism. Gladstone and John Bright and O'Connell are among his venerated heroes, and no one is more familiar with the life and story of Lincoln. It is after Lincoln, he tells, that he would pattern his speeches, and a few years ago he surprised the House by reciting in full the Liberator's immortal speech at Gettysburg.

Still in his forty-ninth year, Manion's political future is still before him. His administrative spurs, his reputation as a Minister, he has still to win. But those who have watched him climb from obscurity to fame, who know something of his career and his character feel confident that whatever the years may bring him, he is not of the type to visit Canada with injury or discredit.

HON. J. L. O'BRIEN OF SOUTH NELSON HAS A BIRTHDAY

Ex-Speaker of the New Brunswick Legislature is Thirty-Four Years Young.

(Newcastle Advocate)
The Saint John Evening Times-Globe of Nov. 6th, contained the following:

CONGRATULATIONS TO:

Hon. J. Leonard O'Brien, South Nelson, Speaker of New Brunswick Legislative Assembly, 1925-1930, lumberman, born at Nelson, Northumberland County, N. B., 34 years old today.

HON. J. L. O'BRIEN

While many of the Hon. Mr. O'Brien's friends on the Miramichi—and their names are legion—join in the message of congratulation as proposed by the Saint John daily, they nevertheless don't like the idea of those birthdays rolling around, as birthdays in general have the habit of doing.

He is only 34 years old as yet; and is chockful of energy and ambition to promote the interest of Northumberland. Every day of his life, he is busily engaged in this favorite of his. He is a personal friend of the leading men of his province and of some of the most important men of the Dominion. And they know and admire him for his ambition for the welfare of the Miramichi. What is more, they are willing to co-operate with him. Just at present he is the hardest worker we have along these lines and is leaving no stone unturned to get all the employment he can for the county.

The trouble with him is that he is adverse to advertising himself. Even during the election last summer, when he should have been laying before the electors what he had been able to do for his section, he used to begin his speeches with his blue eyes sparkling and with his captivating smile, by saying; "Ladies and Gentlemen my policy is Baxter." This would be followed by a long list of the wonderful things his personal friend, Dr. Baxter did and not one word of what he himself accomplished. The well-known love and mutual attachment existing between the Premier and Mr. O'Brien has its foundation in mutual admiration.

As an example of his untiring efforts, yesterday morning he prevailed on the Department of Public Works to have the town approach to the Morrissey bridge widened. This will undoubtedly help unemployment to some considerable extent.

In the list of other notable persons whose birthdays synchronize with that of Hon. Mr. O'Brien are those of Sir Henry W. Thornton, 59 years old; Rt. Hon. Sir Herert Samuel, British statesman, 60 years old; Paderewski, 70 years old; John Philip Sousa, the great bandsman, 76 years old and Henry Ford's son, Edsell, 37 years old. So in an exchange of birthday greetings he is in a very distinguished company.

Two things Hon. J. Leonard O'Brien should do: first advertise a little more extensively; and second do as his beloved friend, the Hon. Dr. Baxter, did—get married.

Russia is sweet on France—to the extent of threatening to dump 400,000 tons of sugar in her markets.

VOCATION

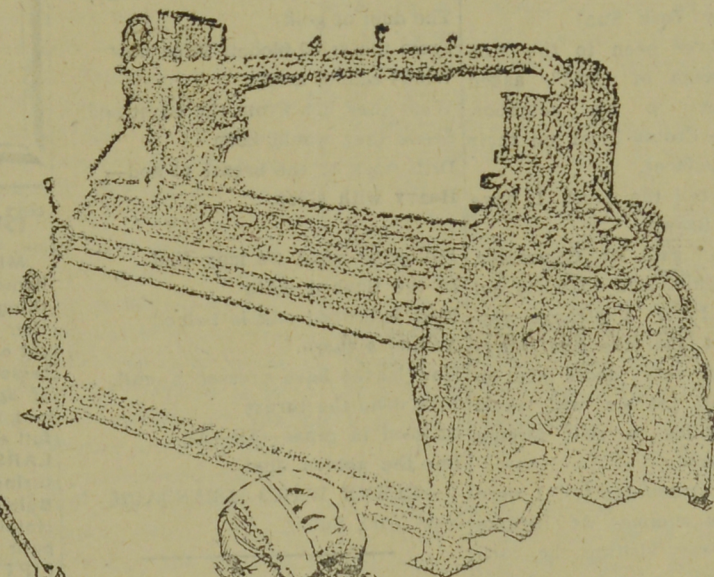

THE spinning-wheel, whirring far into the night, provided the accompaniment to our grandmother's lullaby, for her work never ceased. In those days, people were born to work or they were born to play, and the dividing line was seldom crossed.

The new household servant—electricity—by performing much of the housework that was formerly done by the housewife, has made it possible for her to devote more and more hours of the day or night to social duties and even to political affairs. Nowadays, it is not only the Duchess who is a leader of community thought and activity—modern society is benefitting from the rich experience of individuals from all walks of life.

Certainly, to-day, woman's vocation is to wield an influence not only in her primary field, which is the home, but also in national and civic affairs. There she has the opportunity to weave into our social fabric those designs and patterns which benefit ourselves and our children.
