A WONDERFUL REORD

July 28—Hon. R. B. Bennett wins the general election by sweeping majorities.
August 7th—the Bennett Government is sworn into office.
August 15th—Additional restrictions are placed upon immigration.
August 26th—Increased protection is granted to Canadian fruit and vegetable growers by order-in-council.
September 8th—Parliament meets to deal with unemployment and trade depression. The opening session is marked by the briefest speech from the throne that is recorded in history.
September 9th—After a two-and-a-half-hour political speech on the address by Mr. Mackenzie King, the Prime Minister replies with a fifteen minute contribution to the debate—a contribution which, we believe, the shortest on record.
September 10th—The Prime Minister proposes an appropriation of $20,000,000 to be expended towards the relief of unemployment, mainly in the assistance of public works.
September 11th—Hon. E. B. Ryckman, Minister of National Revenue, moves his resolution to prevent the dumping of foreign goods in this country, to the injury of Canadian industries and Canadian workmen.
September 15th—The House of Commons gives third reading to the appropriation of $20,000,000 for unemployment.
September 16th—The Prime Minister introduces his emergency tariff revision upwards to provide work for the unemployed; the measure including the novel provision that in cases where manufacturers fail to keep their pledges not to exploit the consumer, the duties will be reduced or even abolished.
September 17th—The anti-dumping measures receives its third reading in the House of Commons.
September 22nd—The House of Commons approves the emergency tariff revision to provide work for the unemployed through the stimulation of industry.
The Senate puts the final touches upon the legislation of the session, and His Excellency signifies his assent.

SOMETHING WRONG

The Reverend Dr. J. C. Broomfield, President of the General Conference of the Methodist Protestant Church, in the course of a speech compared "the social and moral degeneracy of the present age" with that 200 years ago when Methodism was born.
We hold no brief for the present age but it is a little shocking to learn that the eighteenth century, possibly the most brilliant century in all Great Britain's long history was socially and morally degenerate. As a matter of fact, we have always believed, and with good reason, that it was an age when the genius of man reached its finest flower.
It was in its first decade, for instance, that Addison and Steele began those brilliant essays in the "Tatler" which were continued in the "Spectator." Defoe published "Robinson Crusoe" in 1719. Swift wrote "Gulliver's Travels" in 1726 and the "Beggar's Opera" was produced in 1729. Surely none of these were socially or morally degenerate.
Pope wrote his "Essay on Man" in 1732 and in the forties we find Richardson, Field and Smollett at the height of their powers. More than that, Gray was fashioning the verses of what is probably the noblest poem in the language or indeed in almost any language. Who can forget the majestic sweep of the Elegy or the verse that says:
The boast of heraldry, the pomp of power
And all that beauty, all that wealth e'er gave

Awaits like the inevitable hour.
The paths of glory lead but to the grave.
Is this morally or socially degenerate?

RADICALS

We are too much afraid of the word "radical." One shouldn't be afraid of a radical or afraid of being called one. If you believe in every citizen's right to his own opinion and his right to express that opinion, you may be called a radical. Some are called radicals simply because they won't be ultra-partisan. What we should discourage and oppose is the radical who has nothing but a pair of lungs and a discontented soul—who has no plan and too little mind to devise a plan. He is like a child crying because he has a pain. He doesn't know what it's all about or what to do. Some of the greatest men of all times surely have been radicals but they have been radicals with a sense of direction.

TAKE YOUR OWN ADVICE

Books can tell us much; science can guide us; friends can help us. But the great choices of life must be made by and through our own judgment and on our own responsibility, if we are grown up. When a man is of age he is no longer dependent on his parents for direction if he is normal. He must look to himself. He is responsible for his acts. Advice may help. But when you come to the forks of the road you must look deep into your own motives and decide.
The young student who has just mastered his "Light Cavalry" overture part is referred to around our neighborhood as the Floyd Gibbons of the cornet.

"One signs very badly," says an operative teacher, "on a full stomach." This possibly explains a common belief that one should not take a bath after a hearty meal.

In New York a grasshopper was found on a window sill 65 stories above the street. It is said to be a new high for grasshoppers, and in a bad year at that.

No report is in yet on the motorist, who attempted to fatten up his midget motor car on a heavy grade of oil.

King Carol says now he wouldn't take his wife back if she'd have him. The grapes must be high and bitter in Rumania this season.

THROUGH OUR SIEVE

Another form of endurance test is the pursuit of happiness.

Nearly everything in life, except death itself, is a laugh to somebody.

Psychology wins when the other contestant is trying something else.

Lima Beane says the woman date has greater influence than the mandate.

It's pretty hard to get by without saying that the Peruvian bark may be worse than the bite.

Pessimists are unbelievers who would tear the building down to see if prosperity is around the corner.

Next holiday is Thanksgiving and we should get busy and earn something for which to be grateful.

We are a methodical people. It is possible to get statistics of nearly everything except the total cost of opening jackpots for the fiscal year.

Even press associates, the great news gathering institutions, have their limitations. They can never tell whether the baby is going to be a boy or girl.

There is the legend of the hen that crowed so much she became a rooster and never again knew happiness. Women are getting back to ruffles and laces and fluffy things that once inspired men to think of them as angels. It means they are growing tired of their new freedom.

Last Murder Trial
It is expected that when the Isabel Carr murder trial starts on Monday here, that Hon. J. B. M. Baxter, K.C., Attorney General will act as Crown prosecutor with W. J. West, also acting. C. R. Hawkins and E. Allison MacKay will defend Miss Carr. The 17-year-old servant girl is accused of the brutal murder of her mistress, Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Clark 90, who on the afternoon of August 7th, was found lying in a pool of blood at her home in Brunswick street, with a hatchet lying beside her body.

A Holy Car

A car, bearing the number plate of the District of Columbia, attracted considerable attention on Queen st. this afternoon. A placard on either side window set forth that it was God's car and its occupants are engaged exclusively in his service. "Forward to conquer the world for Jesus", was printed on another placard. The occupants of this holy car are Dr. and Mrs. N. H. Jeltz, evangelists.

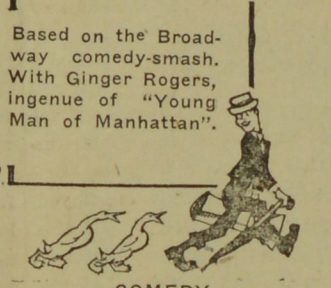

THE ANAEMIC GIRL

WHO HAS LOST HER CHARM AND BEAUTY.
"She seems to be losing her looks". This remark is often heard about girls who were once noted for their sparkling eyes, their rosy cheeks and their vitality. The cause is not far to seek—they have become anaemic; that accounts for the pallor and the loss of charm. The anaemic girl, if she neglects her health, may be a sufferer all her life.
Take heed, you pale, anaemic girls. Plenty of fresh air, nourishing food and rest will help you, but what you need most is good blood. Those wretched headaches; that tickle in the throat and those terrible heart palpitations can only be banished if the blood is rich, red and pure.
Good blood is created by "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills." The whole mission of these Pills is to build rich, red, health-giving blood. The Pills are sold by all dealers in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.
Revenge may be sweet for a few minutes, but it always leaves a bitter taste in the mouth.
