LOOKING BACKWARD

We know that men lived on the earth many thousands of years before any record was made of their doings. And yet it has been but a hundred years since modern man began to study rocks, bones, bronze tools and began to learn what ancestors were like before history was written. Sometimes one wonders at how much man knows. Sometimes we wonder at how little he has found out about himself, his world, and the mysterious manner in which he got into it.

At a Saint John Board of Trade meeting last evening W. E. Golding complained of the invasion of Canadian markets by Russian lumber and declared it a matter requiring the immediate attention of the Federal and provincial governments. As the leading lumberman in New Brunswick, Mr. Golding is in a position to speak with authority. He is the president of George McKeen, Limited, manager of the New Brunswick Railway Company, president of the River Valley Lumber Company and heads several other concerns carrying on business in the province.

E. W. Beatty, K. C., president of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, was the guest of honor at the annual banquet of the Illinois Manufacturers' Association at Chicago last night. Other guests included Henry Ford, automobile manufacturer. Mr. Beatty's speech in response to a toast was one of the greatest of his career and won great applause. It was broadcast throughout the United States and Canada.

Science has not given men more self control more kindness or more power of discounting their passions in deciding upon a course of action. So says philosopher and scientist Bertrand Russell. With all his respect for learning he knows there are some exceedingly important things science can't do. One of our common weaknesses is the tendency to put too much stress on one branch of human achievement.

Why look at science and scientific facts and say: here is truth? And why look at religion emotion spirit and say: here is fantasy and imagination? Such an attitude shows how thoughtless indeed how ignorant we are. Both science and religion are realities in Human experience. You can't rule out either one.

Speaking at a banquet in Chicago last evening, E. W. Beatty, K. C., president of the C. P. R. in paying tribute to Lord Shaftesbury, one of his predecessors, remarked that he was a native of Milwaukee and some years ago a newspaper had described him as "the peer that made Milwaukee famous".

President Beatty of the C. P. R. told members of the Illinois Manufacturers' Association at Chicago last night that Canada had abandoned prohibition and had substituted for it a policy of temperance.

France, boasting the smallest number of jobless in any advanced nation—estimated at not more than 1,000—also proudly presents itself as the possessor of 6,767,058 bicycles, or one for every six persons. That seems like going to pedal extremities, but when you ride to work on a bicycle you are at least sure of getting a seat.

We have not had as many inquiries as we expected as to whether the Emperor of Abyssinia, King of Kings and Conquering Lion of Judah, as Amos or Andy.

Moving pictures of molecules were taken in Hollywood. They were supported by an all-star cast of atoms.

Jesse James and his brother Frank now deceased were pikers in comparison with the modern bank robber. This morning for up to date bank robbers entered one of the largest banks in Kansas City rounded up the staff and after waiting for the time lock to release the doors of the vault decamped with $60,000 in cash.

No prison riots have been observed for a number of weeks, "suggesting that possibly the boys are all back at work on manuscripts for 'The American Mercury'."

"A Western truck-driver was buried under half a ton of ice cream when his machine collided with a bus." The outcome appears to have been truck-driver a la mode.

The Ohio State Journal mentions a Western novel in which there was no cowboy named Happy or Smoky. We think we know the story. There was a hobo in it named Slim.

"The tree to which Columbus tied his ships when he steamed by the Ozama River is still partly preserved," says the reliable New York Herald-Tribune.

A New York chorus girl offered a $1,000 bill to pay a $5 fine, and we thought the show business was so tough this season the girls were buying hair pins on the installment plan.

W. J. Bryan's grandson is going in for Shakespearean acting. "Heredity," as Clem Hawley used to say, "runs in the family."

"An Ohio burglar took a warm bath before departing with his loot," probably drying himself with some of the host's Pullman towels.

Tardieu's Government fell the second time within ten months. You can always depend on those French cabinets to have a dull finish.

The Governor of Connecticut has appointed Gene Tunney to his staff. Gene will be a major in command of the English language.

No doubt a good many of the stockings will be a hang-over from last Christmas.

Let us hope that the wolf in making his rounds from door to door is on his last lap with a sore tongue.

The world was created in six days. It takes that long to finish a Madison Square Garden bicycle race, too.

THROUGH OUR SIEVE

Man has to be pretty big before he can ignore the little irritations.

One of life's luxuries is that of being in a position to go to bed with a cold.

Shortword for a cross word puzzle: Sherman's definition of war.

Lima beane says the idle rumor doesn't mind how long unemployment lists.

By the time the top of his head resembles a landing field a man has become hair-minded.

A machine has been invented to shuffle and deal bridge hands. We understand shins still will have to be kicked by hand.

Matrimony is the altar upon which man sacrifices the habits that have managed him and goes to work under a new boss.

Instead of trying to prove an alibi each of two New York band leaders is claiming that he started the crooning sickness.

Many famous backfields of ten years hence may be found making touchdowns on the vacant lots about town after school hours.

Dr. Max Mason, head of the Rockefeller Foundation, says the world is growing kinder. In a big way, yes. But there is still much small meanness and many petty unkindnesses committed by people, one towards another. As individuals we have not acquired the habit of thinking and behaving institutionally and broadly.
