KEEP YOUR EYE UPON THE GLIDER

One can only guess what this aviation age is gliding into. But it is plain to all who think clearly that gliding, now hailed expectantly as one of the most promising newcomers in the field of sport, may have its greater significance in the serious development of the business of flying.

Col. Lindbergh, with characteristic insight and calm judgment, predicts that the gliders will make fliers. It is easy to understand. Out upon the hillsides groups of youngsters are playing with this new toy. One takes his seat at the controls in true flying afshion, and a score of his companions give him the tug of hop off. The "flight" may be but a few yards, a graceful sail into the valley not differing much from a toboggan run, or it may be a thrilling soar lasting minutes or longer. But in any event it has the one important result: It gives the feel of the air. It gives confidence.

And in more experienced circles the gliders are having their influence upon the whole scope of aviation. A new type of flying develops. A dainty 'powered glider" made a flight of 500 miles the other day at a cost of $9.60. It had an average speed of 55 to 65 miles an hour and could hop off after a run of a few feet.

Watch those gliders. There will be more and more of them and they may be gliding toward a new era in iviation.

THE ACTIVE MIND

Too often the school boy or the school girl whom we call the "good child" is the one who gives the teacher the least trouble. He may be a negative sort of child, confirming rather unthinkingly and blindly to the rules. George Coe, former Columbia university teacher, says education must put new meaning into the term "character." People don't deserve much credit for the merely static virtue of not doing anything at al. The child ought not to be taught mere resignation to rules. He ought to be taught thinking, an dthen, self-control.

GOOD GRACE

Cora Harris, one of the ablest of American writers, comments on the changing times. Nowadays very modern people defend themselves, no matter what obvious mistakes they make. In the old days, says Mrs. Harris, some people at least had the good grace to be ashamed of their behavior. Perhaps right there lies most of the essential and difference between the old and new generations.

CHICAGO-NEW YORK

Hopping in an airplane one can go from Chicago to New York in five anr a half hours, or vcie versa. The question now arises as to which is to become the suburb of the other. And we shall probably live to se that time cut from five and a half to three hours.

A statue of "The Man With the Hoe" will be erected in Central Park, N. Y. You can see living—well, almost living—replicas of it in almost any garden on a warm day.

"A clock installed in a London subway shows the time in all parts of the world." We have owned a wrist watch that told New Zealand time only, but we gave it away.

"Gertrude Stein, the ultra-modern poet, plans to discard nouns." Well, nouns make a good beginning.
