CONCERNING COLORS.

Mary Garden, Chicago opera singer, who is full of ideas over and above, or under and below, grand opera, would cut out grays, blacks and sombre browns. She would clothe women in red, green and violet. Miss Garden would brighten up the world with color, and not a bad idea at that.

"What the world needs is more color, and I think the day is rapidly approaching when this will be realized," she says.

"Women who wear brilliantly colored clothes are not daring, except in the face of age-old customs. They are merely helping to make this a brighter age and are doing just what almost all people ought to do—make themselves and others feel brighter. It is the nature of men and women to like bright colors, but for years they have surprised their desire because of worn-out traditions. This is an age of color and self-expression, and it is drab enough at the best, so why make it any duller?"

"No man, however great the fortune he amasses, can be termed truly great if he devotes himself to money making alone. The first stage of a successful career may be devoted solely to acquiring wealth. The second stage is one in which the successful man may enjoy developing his hobbies and exercising his influence. But the third stage, which only the truly great reach, is one in which he will find his greatest satisfaction in making society as a whole the better for his having lived—in the furtherance of universal ends."

Of the four veteran Maritime editors, who died recently, it is said that only one, the late C. C. Blackador, of Halifax, left an estate from which the government can collect succession duties. Mr. Blackador left property valued at a quarter of million dollars and made bequests to a number of employees. His was an exceptional case for a rule editors are not strong on building up estates and prefer to spend as they go.

Horatio Bottomley, once powerful editor of John Bull, published in England during war times, has been refused permission to enter the U. S. In the early days of the war Bottomley declared in his paper that there were three yellow nations and designated the United States as one of them. Uncle Sam has now squared the account with him. Incidentally Bottomley has been refused permission to enter Canada.

Clarence Darrow with characteristic oblique logic says the insects are more reasonable than man "because they don't reason." Which is about on a par with stating that the reason Old Dobbin went faster than the modern automobile is because he didn't burn gas.

"Because he is usually a poor speller a dictionary is a columnist's greatest asset," remarks one of them. But that isn't its only saving grace a dictionary contains a lot of good jokes if you can put the words together in the right way.

A type of tobacco has been grown in Europe which not only contains no nicotine but yields a salad oil of fine quality. We have tried about everything in the way of pipes, but not an oil burner.

William A. Bog and Jackson Dodds, have been appointed joint general managers of the Bank of Montreal in succession to the late H. B. McKenzie. Mr. Dodds was at one time with the Bank of B. N. A.

"A short siege of matrimony," observes a paragrapher, "will shatter any woman's ideal," and it seems to us our men should be made of sterner stuff.

Mexico is now planning tourists' cards which will permit visitors to remain in that country six months. The idea probably is that one can pay the ransom as one comes out.

Anyway the Opposition convention here last week gave the government a helping hand by contributing to the revenue.

A painting in a women's club in Chicago shows Eve wearing a hair ribbon, which has aroused much criticism. Realists object to having Eve bundled up in this fashion.

Why is it, we wonder, that it always seems to take more talk to preserve peace than it does to start war?

THROUGH OUR SIEVE

No radical change has been announced in hot dog styles for this season.

Before marriage a girl is prone to lean on a man; afterward, too often, she gets fat on him.

College education injures no one and it gives the most ordinary a gratifying polish.

It is trying to live in a too close proximity that makes all the quarrels. Don't get too thick.

Essentially, all the trouble in a man's life is due to his seeking happiness—except sickness; and a good deal of that, is.

Men don't die of broken hearts. That's a fiction used to season love stories and poetry.

Speaking of spring songs, as nobody was, here's a thought to moan on your saxophone: No other song, or theme for sighs, is half as sweet as the wordless notes in two love-bright eyes.

Vagabond Lover: "I love an industrious woman, one who enjoys housework, taking care of a thousand and one household things, and likes to cook." It would be some task to play that on the saxophone.

Light Opera Excerpt
The overture to "If I Were King", one of the most successful works of Adolphe Adams, a popular composer of light operas in the early nineteenth century, will be the opening selection on the program of Slumber Music to be broadcast over an NBC network, Thursday night, May 1, at 12.00 midnight.

Mid-Week Hymn Sing
Charlie D. Tillman, Southern song leader, hymn writer and publisher for more than forty years, is author of ten selections to be sung over an NBC network by a mixed quartet in the Mid-Week Federation Hymn Sing Thursday evening, May 1, at 7.00 o'clock.

There is no appeal in the thought of spring resting on last week's laurels.

A FINE COMPLEXION

Can Be Had Through Keeping the Blood Rich and Pure.

A girl's complexion is something more than a matter of concern to her vanity. It is an indication of the state of her health. Pallor in a growing girl means a thinning of the blood. Eruptions mean impurities in the blood. Mothers should be watchful of their daughters' complexions, and see to it that these signs are corrected—not covered up.

When a girl in her teens becomes pale and sallow, especially if, at the same time, she shows an inclination to tire easily, a listlessness and inattention to her work or studies, she needs Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, a tonic which directly and specifically corrects the condition from which she is suffering. A chemical analysis of the blood of such a girl would show it to be deficient in just the elements that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills can supply, but the physical signs are plain. The girl with a bad complexion, or who suffers from occasional headaches, who is easily tired and breathless after slight exertion, should begin taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills at once. A good appetite, sparkling eyes and rosy cheeks follow the fair use of this medicine.

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Tomatoes which have been on view during the winter are being superseded here and there by edible types.

There are still a great many property owners who retain a Victorian impression of the insurance agency. We admit the responsibility rests with the agents, because they have allowed this condition to exist.

But let bygones be bygones and we'll gladly demonstrate to you how much this modern insurance agency can do for you besides collecting premiums.
