

LADY GRENFELL HELPS TO EDUCATE LABRADOR YOUTHS

Detroit, Feb. 13—Lady Greenfell, wife of Sir Wilfred Greenfell, and who shares in his great labor in behalf of the people of Labrador, has been in this city for a few days to see her six students in Berea College. A part of her activities not connected with those of her husband is the education of a number of young people from Labrador each year. She brings six or eight boys and girls to Canada or the United States and has their general education supplemented with technical training in nursing, domestic science and teaching.

Wears Green Generally

"I married Dr. Greenfell, the man but it's turned out that I also married his work, and I'm not sorry," Lady Greenfell said as she answered the telephone for the 21st time during 1 hour and 45 minutes.

She is fond of green and wears it becomingly, in a smartly tailored green jersey dress and close-fitting green felt hat. Her only ornament is a chain of hand wrought gold, studded with carnelian.

Lady Greenfell is 21 years her husband's junior. She is tall and has the hardy, ruddy look of the person who lives outdoors. She is not English, as is her husband, but Scotch, and very

Painful Boils One After The Other Broke Out On Arms

Miss K. Eudd, 1100 Victoria Drive, Vancouver, B.C., writes:—"About a year ago I was troubled with boils. They broke out on my arms, and no sooner was one healed than another would come to take its place. I suffered great pain with them, and tried different medicines and ointments, but they did me no good."

Scotch, she adds, having come from Kinloch Bannoch, said with the roll of R's

Every summer Lady Greenfell goes to Labrador with her husband, and until their funds are exhausted and they must find further financial aid, she stays in the wind-torn country, which is without a single road. For 40 years Sir Wilfred has ministered to the needs of these people, but since his marriage things have moved along at a better gait. He admits it himself.

Helps Husband

While on their cruises of mercy Lady Greenfell supervises all meals on board. She runs the steamer just like she runs her house. She sees to it that things aren't neglected, particularly the things relating to her husband's comfort.

Her house in Labrador, when they stop long enough at a place to use a house, is built on a high rock, overlooking waters eternally chilled with the icy currents of the polar stream. The house is made of boards and is clamped to the rock with iron bolts to insure its safety from the devastating winds.

"Now I'll tell you something about Sir Wilfred that we seldom reveal," his wife began. "He's not only interested himself but he comes from a fine old family, and the hero in Tennyson's 'Revenge' was no other than my husband's ancestor, Sir Richard Grenville. During the war, the family received the compliment of having their coat of arms on the British warship Revenge."

A man in Chicago has had his wife enjoined from hitting him, calling him names, nagging, and swearing at him. What does the jurist who issued that order, figure she is going to do for relaxation?

Down in Mexico City a serenading swain of hot Spanish blood didn't like the reception his love's fancy was giving his broadcast and broke his guitar over her fickle hear. Perhaps she too, had tired of Aloha.

UNCLE TOM'S CABIN IS NOW BEGINNING TO FADE OUT; A SHOW THAT WENT OVER BIG

New York, Feb. 20—The black snake whip of Simon Legree, after 78 long years of giving "poor old Uncle Tom" the miseries, apparently has been laid on the cupboard shelf for keeps.

Frail Little Eva has made her last trip to Heaven on a telegraph wire and the bloodhounds bay no more at the heels of Eliza, Topsy, it seems, has "grewed up" and married a limber-tongued trombone player in a Harlem shimmy shop.

America's most famous and long-enduring melodrama, which has flooded the eyes of three or four generations in every town and village of the land, has disappeared from the stage. The Actors' Equity Association reported that, for the first time since 1852, not a single company is playing "Uncle Tom's Cabin," or "Life Among the Lowly," anywhere in the country.

Statistics are not available, but it would be interesting to know just how many temperamental actors have balked at the lowly role bestowed upon them as a secondary part—that of standing in the wings and barking like a bloodhound while Eliza skittered across the dubious, cardboard river of ice.

The last stand was in New England, where "Tom Shows" always have gone over big. Some of the most famous of the Tom actors and actresses came from Boston, says Equity, but the heart-throbber exists no more in the Northern Hills.

Tom and Little Eva made their first appearance on September 2, 1852, in the Museum at Troy, N. Y. A little girl named Cordelia Howard, then four years old, was the first Eva. And when she died and went winging up to the Golden Gate, the customers fell over in the aisle and wept. The salt tears were still flowing when, a short time after the ascension, Little Eva tripped out into the audience and started peddling photographs of herself at a dime each.

Since that memorable day, Little Eva has died on many a cot made out of two kitchen chairs and a sheet. She's gone to Heaven no wires, ropes and chains, and always, from 1852 down through 1929, patrons wiped their eyes and blew their noses.

Most famous of the Tom actor was John L. Sullivan, the Boston fistic person John L. was a good Simon Legree, stage history tells us. But he had his troubles. No matter how much Uncle Tom padded his vest, the larruping he got from John L. was too much. In the first few weeks that he played Legree, John L. wore out eight or ten Uncle Tom's by the vigor of his whipping strokes.

During its long career, Uncle Tom's Cabin has been played with a company of seven persons and again with 70. It has been put on in fashionable hotel ballrooms and in smoky "opry houses" of the hinterland.

Mrs. Stowe's novel has been translated into more languages than any other book save the Bible. It has sold more than 3,000,000 copies in America alone.

The only reason for the decline and fall of the Tom drama, in the eyes of Equity, is the change in tastes of the new theatre-going generation.

The young people no longer like the "Don't go near them lions' cage to-night, mother dear!" type of theatricals.

Instead, the barking of six-guns in the hands of cowboys and gangsters, and the clinches of Garbos and Gilberts, are both sufficient and satisfying.

The motto of Chicago is "I Will," but, the bankers are not so sure.

EXPERT GIVES SOME ADVICE RE COLDS

Boston, Feb. 20—How to avoid colds and prevent spread them is explained by Dr. George H. Bigelow, state commissioner of public health, in a list of rules just given out.

What To Do

The expert says that the time is near when colds are most prevalent. The rules are:

1—So far as practicable all crowding which necessitates close contact should be avoided. When possible walk rather than ride to work.

2—Particular care should be exercised in covering the mouth during coughing and sneezing.

3—Keep the hands away from the mouth since they may become contaminated through strap hanging, hand shaking, and contact with articles used in common by others, such as banisters, door knobs, etc. Suppose you had to put your tongue against all the objects your hands must touch. Think that over and keep your hands away from your mouth.

4—Scrupulous care should be taken in washing the hands before eating or otherwise handling food.

Rest is Imperative

5—Isolate each case in bed early. The disease is probably most highly communicable in its early stage. Do not try to "work off the cold." If in doubt whether you are sick or not, particularly if your temperature is over 99 degrees, go to bed and call a doctor. This is the period of greatest spread and is perhaps the most important to your ultimate recovery.

6—Keep generally fit through sleep, food, exercise and the avoidance of excesses of all kinds. Be practical, not panicky, for your family's sake if not for your own.

Are You Run Down And Nervous?

All That is Needed is a Tonic to Build Up the Blood.

There are thousands of people who really find life a burden. They have endured nervousness, sleeplessness and a general run-down feeling so long that they have given up hope of again enjoying good health. Rest and a blood-building tonic are all that is required to restore health and vitality. Such a tonic is found in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They are recognized the world over as a wonderful blood-builder and nerve restorer.

Mrs. F. C. Granier, Toronto, Ont., bears testimony to the worth of these pills. She says:—"Five years ago, after a life of perfect health, I became ill. Not seriously at first, just no appetite, no pep and no sleep. I gradually grew worse. I became pale and listless; my arms and feet were badly swollen and although I doctored all winter my condition did not improve. In the spring I went to see a specialist and he sent me to the hospital where I remained for seven weeks. I left the hospital in worse condition than when I entered it and went home a nervous wreck. I remained ill at home all summer and entered the hospital again in the fall where I was under observation for three weeks and although everything possible was done for me I did not improve. Shortly after this a friend advised me to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as a blood builder so I sent for a supply. I do not know when I first noticed an improvement in my condition. It seemed to come to me gradually. I began to sleep better my meals so long distasteful were being eagerly awaited and enjoyed. I began to show an interest in what was going on around me. The color came back to my face and strength to my limbs. I persisted in the use of the pills and soon I was well and happy again. That is five years and ever since I have been able to do all my housework and have not had the least return of my former trouble."

If you are feeling run down give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial and new health will be yours. You can get them from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MAY BE AN R. C. COUNTRY IN 100 YEARS

Oxford, England, Feb. 19—The United States will become a Roman Catholic country within 100 years, Dr. W. R. Matthews, Dean of King's College, London, predicted in a speech to the Modern Churchmen's Union last night.

"The present looseness of thought regarding marriage and other questions in America is bound to have a reaction toward the Roman Catholic doctrine of authority," he said.

He cited the Catholic proportion of population in the United States as a further reason for his prediction, explaining:

"The Roman Catholic forbids birth control and the Roman Catholics have more children than anybody else."

"When is a man thinner than a rail?"
"When he's a shavin'."
