Bomb Explosion in Chicago Climaxes a Reign of Terror

A Three Story Building Crumpled Into Debris—
Four Gangland Murders in as Many Days—A
Theatre Crowded With Women and Children
Was Bombed—Blast Was Furious But There
Were No Casualties.

(Special to THE DAILY MAIL by the British United Press.)

CHICAGO, ILLS., February 3—A terrific bomb explosion crumpled three stories into debris and rocked the entire South West of the city early today climaxing a reign of criminal terror that had listed four gangland murders in as many days and another bombing, that of a theatre crowded with women and children.

Thousands of residents within a radius of two miles were jarred by the early morning bombing and streets filled with terrorized men, women and children, many in their night clothes. Despite the fury of the blast no one was reported injured.

CHICAGO HAS FOUR MURDERS IN FOUR DAYS

One Man Shot to Death in a Sedan in One of the Principal Streets.

Chicago, Feb. 2—Hardly started on an investigation into the slaying of prosecutor's investigator, police to-night were confronted with still another baffling gangster murder.

Joseph Cada, prize fight hanger-on and small time racketeer, was shot to death today, while riding in a sedan along Broadway, main traffic artery to the north side gold coast. He apparently was accompanied by two men who brought the car to a halt, killed him and ran away. No witnesses would admit seeing the slaying.

Cada's murder brought the number of such killings here to four in as many days.

The dead man recently took James Walsh to a hospital where the latter died after a shooting which frightened theatre crowds on Randolph street, Chicago's Rialto. "Babe" Baroz, prize fight ticket taker, was wounded in the same affray. Police, in announcing they sought Baroz, said they believed Cada had been killed because he "knew too much."

Clues Numerous

So many clues were found meanwhile into the death of Julius Rosenheim, who was shot an killed Saturday, that police sail any one of a score of enemies might have slain him. Rosenheim, reputed underworld "stood plegen" for the last two years was shot while waiting for a street car. He recently had been employed by the State Attorney's office as a special investigator.

Two more men, a taxicab official and his driver, were murdered Thursday. Police are seeking a disarmed hoodlum who had been discharged by the taxicab firm after acting as a guard in a drivers' war.

$1,000 STAMP ORDER FAILED TO HELP OUT

Florence, Kan., Feb. 3—Ben Minturn, of Chicago, is discouraged.

Hearing just before Christmas that his boyhood friends in Florence were threatened with having their post-office reduced to a third class office because of decreased postal receipts, and that his old chum, Shamus O'Brien, would suffer a cut in his salary as postmaster, Minturn set out to play Santa Claus.

He sent to O'Brien an order for $1,000 worth of stamps, sufficient to make up the deficit in receipts.

The postal department, however, had no Christmas spirit whatever. O'Brien has received a letter stating the $1,000 order would not count in his year's business. Almost simultaneously came a warning from the Solicitor-General that postmasters, who induce purchases "for the purpose of increasing their pay or affecting the allowance of facilities at their office" were open to suspicion.

DEER STRONG FOR FLOWERS

Yosemite, Feb. 3—Deer are very fond of Ceanothus and parifolius. They can at least devour them quicker than the names of these flower plants can be pronounced. In fact, deer like these lengthy-named plants well enough to walk directly into the museum after them.

"Displayed on a stand in the museum was a vase of these white and blue flowers," said Robert Selby, museum custodian. "Jiggs," a friendly 1-year-old buck, smelled them. He probably was delighted to find them blooming so he walked right into the building and, while I had my back turned, upset the vase and proceeded to eat the flowers.
