POLITICIANS PRAISED

General Seely, a famous soldier, who was at one time secretary of war in the British Cabinet, has a good word to say for the politicians. In a recent statement he said: "In the course of my life I have lived on terms of intimacy with soldiers, sailors and lawyers; I have been treated by all these three classes of men with a kindness far beyond my deserts. Nevertheless, although it may surprise my readers, I say with confidence that I have found more straight forward and honorable dealing amongst politicians than amongst any other body of men."

This goes to show that possibly politicians are human after all. While there are some who are not all they might be and have a practice of making promises they have no intention of carrying out, the majority of them will compare very favorably with any other class of citizens. There are a large number of capable, honest and straight going politicians who are in public life at a great personal sacrifice and New Brunswick has a share of them. It is announced that lawyers will predominate in the next Parliament. This was the case in the last Parliament and it is likely to be the case in every Parliament. It would be absolutely impossible for a Parliament or Legislature without the presence of a goodly percentage of advocates learned in the law. They are called upon to frame the Legislation and the major portion of House Committee work falls upon their shoulders.

A POSSIBLE MINISTER

While Premier Bennett has taken over the important portfolio of finance in the new government, he has given out the statement that his administration of that department will only be temporary. It is understood at Ottawa that he has his eye on a suitable man for the position, and that man is said to be none other than Mr. Charles E. Neill, a native of Fredericton who is now vice president and managing director of the Royal Bank of Canada.

The Financial Post of Toronto in the course of an article in its last issue urged Premier Bennett to form a cabinet of outstanding business men to carry on the work of the country and went on to say: "C. E. Neill, managing director of the Royal Bank of Canada to be minister of finance. Mr. Neill is not only one of the best type of Canadian business men, but he is something of a politician and statesman as well. He began life in his father's hardware store in New Brunswick. He came into the national eye before the Banking Committee on renewal of charters some years ago. His frankness and sincerity captivated a committee previously very antagonistic and suspicious."

While Mr. Neill has had no political experience and might be averse to entering the arena, there is no doubt that he possesses qualifications and experience that would make him a very capable head of the finance department, and he would be a find for any government.

A western woman complains that her husband lost 25 jobs in three years through neglect. But why not 36 jobs? A man who can't lose one job a month has surely neglected his neglecting somewhere along the line.

Tourist business in some resort centres is said to be off, with thousands of blankets not being slept under every night.

Personally we wouldn't think of taking a midget motor car along on a hunting expedition, for fear someone would shoot it for the pelt.

It was so hot in Georgia recently that the corn dried right on the cob and popped all over a cornfield. That was probably where the cow in a nearby pasture, thinking the popcorn was snow, froze to death!

One co-operative in the state of Washington alone did $25,000,000 worth of business last year in eggs. None of the others, it seems, could hold a candle to it.

Even if there are so many more interesting things to do, than sleep, as an opera singer declares, there is hardly anything that requires less effort.

In case anyone is at a loss for the word, a Turk in his 150's is a Sesquicentarian.

To make your mind off the hot weather—have you started your Christmas shopping yet?

How would it be to round up the 156-year-old Turk and have him in for an evening of old-time songs?

They say hope springs eternal in the human breast, but as a matter of fact we have found it intermittent, like fever and ague.

There doesn't appear to be any good reason why a housewife should not hang out a neat sign bearing this legend: "This Is My Busy Day."

Colonel Lindbergh says he reads the newspapers to find out where he is going next. All the same, it's a good system. He always gets there safely.

Just a rambling thought for one day only. Selfpity is selfishness. Sympathy for others might make them stronger. Sympathy for ourselves make us weak and flabby-minded. The world is full of other people.
