Iron Chancellor in An All-Night Clash On Financial Bill

Conservative Leaders Bombard Snowden With Taunts and Insults in British House of Commons—In Session for Over 21 Hours—German Financier Also Harassed.

(Special to THE DAILY MAIL by the British United Press.)

LONDON, June 18—The House of Commons adjourned at 12.33 p. m. today after all-night session marked by repeated clashes between Conservative leaders and the white-haired Chancellor of the Exchequer, Philip Snowden.

The "Iron Chancellor" defying a bombardment of taunts and insults throughout the night held the house in session for 21 hours and 48 minutes on discussion of the financial bill.

Expected To Resign.

Berlin, June 18—The serious position of the cabinet was emphasized today by apparently authentic reports that Minister of Finance Paul Moldenhauer was expected to resign Thursday.

BREWERIES SHOW PROFIT DESPITE TAX

London, June 18—England's beer barons, some of the few who are affected by new taxation in Chancellor of the Exchequer Phillip Snowden's budget, can probably well afford to pay it.

Despite an increase in duty of three shillings a barrel, which Snowden assured the House of Commons was too small to be felt by the consumer and would be met by the brewers, this industry is one of the most prosperous in England.

At a time when the majority of industries in this country are showing losses, the annual returns for the numerous breweries show profits. Many of them have a capital of several million dollars and have declared large dividends.

QUARRELING AT MEALS CAUSES BAD DIGESTION

Spokane, Washington, June 18—If you must fight with your family, don't do it at meal times, because you can't fight well and digest well at the same time.

Using that as a thesis in a speech prepared for delivery yesterday Dr. W. W. W. Pritchard, Los Angeles, told osteopaths from Washington, Idaho and Montana that the two kinds of nervous systems in the human body can only do one thing at a time.

"The para-sympathetic system attends to the digestion of meals," he said, "while the sympathetic system takes care of the business of fighting and quarreling. Only one system can work at a time."

BODY OF AIR PILOT FOUND IN LAKE ERIE

Toledo, Ohio, June 17—The eight prominent Toledo men whose empty speedboat was found adrift in Lake Erie Sunday were drowned in some mysterious accident, it was virtually certain last night.

Coastguard Cutter CG-173, one of the scores of boats searching the islands and shores, hove into Toledo late this afternoon bearing the body of John Liptak pilot of the boat.

The cutter had picked the body out of the waves off Little Oyster Island, not far from the spot where the empty boat was found. A life preserver was strapped around the waist.

Discovery of Liptak's body dispelled reports that the eight had been captured by lake rum-running "pirates."

The cutter's radio message to Marble head coastguard base came just as a fleet of boats filled with armed men bore down on the swamps at the mouth of War's Canal to raid a reported rum-runners' rendezvous there.

The raid was immediately called off and all available boats were eaked to aid in the search for bodies or possible survivors. Every mile of coastline of the many islands of the West Sister, Pelee, and Put-in-Bay groups has been searched, and it was believed extremely improbable that any of the eight survived.

New York, June 17—A new "It was this way, your honor," was heard in traffic court. It was offered by Alfred Kramer who had run past a traffic light.

"I was driving up from City Hall just after being married," Kramer said. "And I love my wife so much I just couldn't keep my eyes off of her. So I didn't pay any attention to the light. For another thing it was my 29th birthday."

"I'm going to fine you $5," said Magistrate Dreyer. "But I'll suspend sentence if you'll take the money and buy your bride a new hat."

"Thanks' judge," said Kramer. Then he frowned.

"By the way," he asked, "where can I buy a hat for $5?"

(Special to THE DAILY MAIL by the British United Press.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 18—Although the rates of the new Smoot Hawley tariff law went into effect at midnight last night, the Senate coalitionists who fought in vain for 18 months against the measure, refused to concede defeat.

The rates upon cattle, beef, mutton, lamb, poultry dead and alive, hides, leather, hams and bacon, lumber, flax seed, alsike, colver potatoes, turnips, maple sugar, cream, milk cheese, fish, imported from the Dominion, are all raised from 20 to 180 per cent.

HE SHINGLES BARN ROOF WITH LICENSE PLATES

New York, June 18—Most people have private opinions about cubist painters, but those cubist painters surely must go crazy when they get a slant at the roof of Joseph Spoonhower's barn in Highland, N. Y. He has shingled it with license plates from all the states in the Union, and the effect is that of a Parrish sky superimposed on a Van Gogh tree, brushed over with Gauguin and toned down with a touch of Matisse.

Trade union organizers and domestics pooled their support and secured the unanimous vote of the conference to send out 1,000 questionnaires during the next year to see how servants feel about a domestic service charter. If the canvass is in favor the conference next year will start the job of organizing servants to insure them proper working hours, recreation and pay.

One of the final acts of the conference was to make a unanimous protest against discrimination against women involving their dismissal upon marriage.

ASK LENIENCY FOR CHEATERS ON YALE EXAMS

New Haven, Conn., June 18—A plea that Yale University authorities be more lenient in dealing with students caught cheating during examinations is made in an editorial appearing in the Yale News, which, at the same time, made the statement by a "conservative estimate" at least half of the Yale undergraduates as guilty of cheating in the current year-end examinations.

Exclusion is too great a punishment, the News said, maintaining that "it is no longer a factor in determining a man's status in this community, whether he be honest or not in this respect."

The editorial pointed out that the man who cheats is not always morally weak and that the outer world will not judge a man by conditions at the University.
