FORESTRY BUILDING USED FIRST TIME FOR A PUBLIC PURPOSE

When the 23rd annual meeting of the Canadian Society of Forest Engineers opened today in the Provincial Government's new Forestry and Geology Building at the University of New Brunswick, the occasion will mark the first time the building has been used for any public purpose.

The imposing $200,000 red brick structure, construction of which was started in 1928, has been occupied by the U. N. B. Forest School since the opening of the present academic year last September. It was built at the expense of the Provincial Government and provides 30,000 square feet of floor space, 15,000 square feet of which is devoted to the rooms of the Forestry School.

Only one forestry school in Canada, that of the University of Toronto, has a greater floor space, and none has more modern accommodation or equipment. The building has a frontage of 150 feet and a depth of 90 feet. It is two storeys in height and has a high semi-basement, which gives it three usable floors.

In 1927, the U. N. B. Forest School which started in 1908 with eight students, has swelled its enrollment to such an extent that the original quarters in the Arts Building were no longer adequate.

The classes had increased to 58, and additional accommodation became, in fact, an absolute necessity. The University Senate, at their November meeting in 1927, endorsed a proposal to raise funds for the purpose of constructing a new building for the Forestry school and in 1928 through the efforts of Hon. C. D. Richards, Minister of Lands and Mines, the Provincial Government decided to erect a building that would combine provisions for both forestry and geology classes as well as a library. An Act was passed authorizing the expenditure of $200,000. In 1929, the amount was increased to $300,000 and the library was made a separate building. Equipment required by the Forestry Department on its removal into the new building was to be provided by funds contributed by the various forest industries in Eastern Canada. The sum of $15,000 has already been contributed.

The Forestry School uses the second floor of the building, which contains a main lecture room 40 feet by 40 feet equipped for 138 students and providing seating accommodation for 200 persons. The school also has a small lecture room, three large laboratories, a drafting room, department library and study room, office, and steel locker accommodations for 60 students.

WOMEN MARK 21ST ANNIVERSARY OF FIRST SMOKING AT WHITE HOUSE

Washington, Jan. 20—Monday was a self; and so it started and nearly every European woman in the room was smoking in five minutes.

Alice Longworth stole into the green room, where she had a few puffs. Unfortunately, the major dropped the subject there, and records are vague concerning the growth of feminine addiction to what he called "the debased weed."

The mention of the alacrity with which European women smoke, however, recalls the recent adventures of Queen Mary of England. The W.C.T. U. of Rockford, Ill., it will be recalled recently rebuked the Queen for her private use of cigarettes and demanded an answer. To date none has been received. Smoking is not permitted at the royal banquets in Buckingham Palace, because Queen Mary feels Victorian standards should be maintained in public. It is admitted, however, that she and other feminine members of the royal household use cigarettes in private, although the Queen acquired the habit only in recent years.

She prefers a medium priced cigarette of Virginia tobacco. The present rule at the White House is that women may smoke wherever men do, at dinners and other functions, with the exception of receptions. Much smoke, propelled from feminine lips, has flowed under the ceiling of the each room since that night when Major Butt yawned and, before tumbling into bed, added this line:

"I am glad to say that the American women did not indulge tonight, not even the American wives of European diplomats."

And even when the great Russian Lady pointed out to American women the high road of sophistication, they did not respond immediately. That is, no one except Alice Roosevelt Longworth, who, in the careful language of Major Butt, "stole into the green room where she had a few puffs."

"For the first time in the history of the White House, I suppose" wrote Major Butt after the momentous affair, "women were seen smoking in the east room. I hope the Press will not hear of it. Baroness Rosen, the wife of the Russian ambassador, started it; but the President, after all, was to blame."

"As I approached him after dinner to tell him that the coffee and cigars would be served on the floor above and to suggest his making the move, he asked me to get some cigarettes and a match. I got them from the band leader, the others having been all taken upstairs, and when I gave them to the president, he handed one to the Baroness, and, lighting a match, applied it to the debased weed himself. No sooner had she (Baroness Rosen) lighted one, than Baroness Hengelmuller drew out from her pocket a gold case and lighted one her-

JOHN COOLIDGE'S GOLF ABOUT THE AVERAGE

St. Petersburg, Florida, Jan. 20—John Coolidge guesses his golf score is about the average. He doesn't seem to improve a bit, and he guesses it's the same way with a lot of other folks. He shoots around 100.

Suffered From Heart Trouble Became Weak and Run Down

Mrs. Wm. Diette, Glensandfield, Ont., writes: "For a long period I suffered from heart trouble, and became very weak and run down. I tried various remedies, but they did me no good. One day I met a friend and told her of my trouble. She said she had had heart trouble for two years too, but after using Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills for a short time she had been relieved of her trouble, so I got two boxes and after taking them I was again feeling fine, and always recommend H. & N. Pills to anyone complaining of heart trouble."
