Canadian Salmon Placed Under Ban By French Tariff

Importers Cancel All Orders For Canadian Product—Retaliation Against Duties On French Silks and Minerals—Market Open to Japs.

PARIS, July 22—Apparently in retaliation against increased duties on certain French goods, particularly silks and minerals, in the new Canadian tariff, the government of France has proclaimed what threatens to be a prohibitive tariff against Canadian canned salmon.

The new provision adds one dollar and fifteen cents duty to each case of Canadian salmon. It thereby makes the price in the French market prohibitive and leaves the market practically free to the Japanese, who, although they suffer from the new decree, yet have a more favored tariff.

Salmon importers told the British United Press that they have cancelled all orders for Canadian salmon.

VISITOR HAS GOOD WORD FOR THE N. B. P. P.

Campbellton, N. B., July 21—"The most courteous body of police I ever met," was the tribute paid members of the Provincial Police at Campbellton today by a visiting motorist from Columbus, O., who passed through to the southern counties this evening.

The compliment was occasioned through an interview following a report current today that many tourists had been held up and severely reprimanded by constables for exceeding the speed laws along the Restigouche sections. A check-up resulted in observations by motorists to the contrary, many of these being first year visitors and grateful for information given them by the police. It was found that the majority of the offenders were county residents and not tourists.

SEN. M'DOUGALL DENIES USE OF HIS INFLUENCE

Ottawa, Ont., July 21—Stoutly resisting all suggestions that he had exerted influence in political circles at Ottawa with a view to securing administrative approval to the Beauharnois Project, Hon. W. L. McDougall today continued his evidence before the special House of Commons Committee investigating the ramifications of the colossal power company. This was Senator McDougall's second day as a witness and his testimony occupied practically all of the morning and afternoon sessions. He was discharged shortly before adjournment following a grueling inquisition at the hands of Peter White, K. C., Committee counsel and members of the Committee.

Visits to Ottawa, the expenses of which were charged up by the Senator to the Beauharnois Company, gave Mr. White the occasion to enquire as to the purpose of such trips. In the light of the Senator's insistence upon his having interviewed no one in particular Mr. White asked facetiously if the money was paid in order to treat Mr. McDougall to a sight of the Parliament Buildings or that he should listen to the carillon.

Taking the Senator back to the year 1927, Mr. White sought to establish that Mr. McDougall was interested in Beauharnois at that early date. This the Senator categorically denied.

Telephone Calls

Legal fees charged to the company by the firm of Geofrion & Prudhomme for services were drawn to the Senator's attention. They showed the law firm billing Beauharnois on account of telephone conversations and interviews. Synchronizing with these were bills to the company for interviews with Hon. Walter Mitchell former Provincial Treasurer of Quebec and a member of the Beauharnois Syndicate, and R. O. Sweezey, president of Beauharnois.

18-Foot Boa Constrictor Topic of New Fish Story

CAUGHT FROM A ROWBOAT Museum Curator States Almost Too Large For Constrictor

(Special to THE DAILY MAIL by the British United Press.)
Sandusky, Ohio, July 22—Zoologists, trying to identify an 18 foot snake brought ashore from Lake Erie by two Cincinnati cement salesmen, who said they captured the serpent while fishing from a rowboat in Sandusky Bay, believed today it to be a boa constrictor.

Harold L. Madison, curator of the Cleveland Museum of Natural History, viewed the snake.

"It is a tropical serpent," Madison said. "It has the markings of a boa of the constrictor type, but I am not sure of the identification. Boa constrictors seldom grow larger than 10 or 11 feet long."

PARIS EXHIBIT HAS MILLIONS IN DIAMONDS

Paris, July 22—A $6,000,000 diamond exhibit has been dazzling the eyes of Parisians in the Rude de Choiseul at the Galerie Mauboussin. In addition to hundreds of stones made up into necklaces, rings and various sorts of decorations, the exposition included diamonds in the rough and in various stages of cutting for the market.

The most gorgeous piece in the collection was a necklace valued at $80,000. The stones were cut so that that they threw off prismatic hues instead of the cold, fiery light of regulation cut diamonds. Also, instead of being pierced like ordinary beads, a process which would partially destroy their brilliancy, they were attached with tin hooks which gripped into equally minute slots in each diamond and held the necklace together.

Another distinguishing mark of the models displayed was the stringing together of thirty perfectly graduated canary diamonds by an East Indian method, that of making platinum prints.
