IT CAN HAPPEN

It is well to remember, if we wish to be thoughtful about the affairs of the world, that we can not always expect to read the future in the light of the past. We have a way of disposing of our problems, in our minds, by saying that in the past the world has gone through and come out of the same conditions that are prevalent today. That is not an absolutely safe rule to always follow in our thinking. Civilizations that lasted for centuries finally fell into decay. Doubtless people were always saying that the world had survived it before and it must survive it again.

But there is always a chance that something entirely unknown to history will develop. Just because a condition never has existed is not a sound reason that it never will exist. It is true we have a right to set a great deal of store by history. Most human experiences, individually and in the mass, have been repeated many times. They will probably be again. But we must be sharp enough in our thinking to realize that man is still an infant in his mysterious world and there is the possibility he may be confronted by experiences which will be entirely new to him.

The Chinaman has a saying: "Can happen." It means that anything can happen—and so it can.

The discharge of a number of Maritime province nurses from Boston city hospitals without cause other than they have failed to take out naturalization papers, looks like small business. Astonishment is expressed here that Mayor Curley supposedly a good friend of Canadians should have been mixed up in such a transaction. About the only thing for the nurses to do is to place their case in the hands of our former townsman, Col. P. A. Guthrie and see if justice can be obtained.

The voters of the Province of Quebec, will go to the polls on Monday to elect a new Legislature. The campaign has been one of the most strenuous in the history of the province and the result is in doubt. The Liberals have held office in Quebec for thirty four years and are pretty firmly entrenched. One of the most effective canvases being used against the administration is that it has become autocratic from long occupancy of the treasury trenches.

E. J. Cormier, of the Staff of the Comptroller General's office, has returned from a vacation trip to his former home in Kent County.

A high lodge official says the solution for the depression is more back-slapping. The trouble with human nature is that after slapping a fellow on the back for a certain length of time, you feel like turning him around and giving him a poke in the jaw.

A flight to faraway Turkey through storm and fog shows intrepidity but for sheer recklessness nothing touches the feat of a middle-aged magazine writer who heads a current article, "Advice to Graduates."

New York clergyman wants separate street cars for women. It's a foolish suggestion. If women were given their own cars they'd insist on riding in the other just to be contrary or for fear they'd miss something.

Nothing more has been heard of the French drama in which there were only two spoken lines, and we expect it has been withdrawn for the insertion of brighter gags.

Traffic toll: A Londoner was knocked down and seriously hurt by a perambulator: Three passengers were wounded on the Atlantic City boardwalk Sunday in wheelchair collisions.

A farmer's singing in Tennessee led prohibition officers to a still. And moral of this story is, if you wish to remain, remain still.

An Ohio farmer shot two golfers looking for a lost ball in his cornfield. After which, no doubt, they took the hint and waved him to play on through.

A wife is one who makes helpful corrections in a man's account of some episode in his life that occurred 10 years before they met.

City Council of Elizabeth, N. J., moving picture managers agreeing, will bar gangster films. Good example for any city to follow.

"There are only 12 letters in the Hawaiian alphabet"—just the vowels, it seems, and a few consonants that go well with the steel guitar.

It can't be much of a trick, telling the fortunes of the kind of people who go to fortune tellers in times like these.

The only summer furs noted here in this unusual summer have been on the original wearers.

All we can say for the newly invented square pie is that it makes a poor race-track for picnic ants.

We haven't found that "Whistling in the Dark" by radio at midnight is as restful as sleeping in the dark.

THROUGH OUR SIEVE

Men out of work cannot create wealth.

A cool wave following record heat is as soothing as a tooth that has quit aching.

After the babies have outgrown babyhood crooning can scarcely be considered the keynote of life.

Apologies to the fellow who wrote Shakespeare—there isn't much to be said in this horseless aid for a mid-summer night's nightmare.

Music not only has power to soothe the savage beast but it can make the silly words to a popular song tolerant to the civilized beast.

One fellow on the radio who has been enthusiastically acclaimed sings as if he were suffering some great sorrow. Possibly he has lost his lip-stick.

Sam Hill "When it comes to bathing suits a girl wants to get just as little for her money as possible." Or the least the law will permit her to wear.

Why not learn a lesson from Nature? Except for an occasional electric and rain storm, the only way to clear atmosphere of impurities and the other to serve the earth, she remains unruffled. How different is man—at the first sign of ill fortune he grows frantic with fear of desolation.

Many Impressed

Many were impressed with the appearance of the Sikorsky amphibian which landed here yesterday with a private party of fishermen from the United States. The plane is one of the new models, and people from here were treated to a first sight of one of the new Sikorsky model planes. The model is a convenient one, equipped with pontoons and wheels. It presented an imposing sight as it coasted off the water at the up-town bathing beach and wheeled onto the sands of the beach. "Your beach is an ideal landing spot," said Mr. Davidson, owner of the Sikorsky, when interviewed by reporters on arrival yesterday.

His First Accident

What might have been a serious accident occurred this week at the Marysville Cotton mill. Ex-Coun. Elwood Allen was operating a lathe, when one of the posts flew out and struck him on the head cutting him quite severely. Just what caused the accident is not known. Mr. Allen is one of the veterans of the Cotton mill staff, having been employed there since the mill was started in 1883 by the late Alex. Gibson. He has operated machinery all these years and this was his first mishap.

"Women are beginning to take up law." Well, it's time. They've been laying it down long enough.

BEETLES ARE GOOD JUDGES OF TOBACCO

Philadelphia, Pa., August 22—The tobacco beetle lives in stored tobacco leaves and prefers the best, to the considerable annoyance of tobacco companies, for the leaves thereby are damaged or destroyed. The beetles are able, Tomas E. Powell, Jr., reports in a recent statement from the Wistar Institute Bibliographic Service, of Philadelphia, to tell good tobacco from bad as skillfully as the best tobacco expert.

Testing the beetle's taste for different kinds of tobacco, Mr. Powell found that the beetles preferred good tobacco to bad, as judged by the taste of human smokers. With tobacco of the same kind, but of different amounts of aging, the beetles preferred the older stock, again in line with the preference of average human beings. There is no doubt that these insects not only can distinguish tobacco leaves from the not greatly dissimilar leaves of other plants but are able to distinguish the quality of tobacco by their aromas.

Other facts about insect behavior suggest, however, that what determines the beetle's preference probably is not a liking for good flavors but a dislike for bad ones. Poor tobaccos are likely to contain irritating or evil-smelling substances, in addition to the normal flavoring matters of good tobacco.

Probably the beetle is repelled by too much of these unpleasant materials in poor tobacco much as human smokers are, and accordingly seems to hunt out good tobacco, which does not contain them.

Montreal, Aug. 19—Ernest Langlois, Independent Liberal candidate in St. Mary's, Montreal, has withdrawn from the provincial election contest at the suggestion of Premier Taschereau, he announced today.

Three candidates remain in the field: Camille Houde, the Conservative leader, Dr. Gaspard Fautoux, Liberal, and J. A. Lavoie, Independent Conservative.
