THE LODGE BROTHERS

Now, and then cynics cast aspersions on the lodge brother, says an exchange. It ought not to be so. Some members go so far as to say their lodge is their religion. That is something deeply personal—something each of us has a right to enjoy and to cherish.

In lodge organizations of various kinds there are millions of members. Their aims, almost unanimously, are high. By lodges and by members of lodges, great good is accomplished. Not only do they help one another, but they go outside their order, when occasion demands and give freely of money, and service. It isn't necessary to name any particular order. They all aim to do good, both to the country and to the individual and they succeed in high degree. Many of them hide their lights under the lodge bushel—but they do render service—and we should appreciate them.

Amos and Andy, radio comedians belong to a lodge. We may expect to hear them marching down the street one day in plume and sash and sword. But let them go—beneath that outer paraphernalia there's a deeper meaning, a something that sets them apart from others, a desire to serve and to do good and to be good. And any member of a lodge knows it.

HER CHOICE

Helen Keller, the wonderful woman who has only felt, never seen, the beauty of the world, has said a thing that perhaps will be startling to many. It is this:

"Were my Maker to grant me a single glance through these sightless eyes of mine . . . I would without question or recall choose to see first a child, then a dog."

No one who has eyes to see can fairly question this blind woman's choice. First dog—what could stir greater curiosity in the mind of one who has lived always in the dark? And no one who has not lived always in the dark can understand.

Vending machine firms in Chicago say they lose $3,000,000 in merchandise yearly through the use of slugs by customers. Possibly honest folks who start off with a slug to see if the machine is functioning.

While practicing a sleight of hand trick, a youth in Sterling, Neb., swallowed a silver dollar, and that, of course, made him a Sterling youth, or at least, part sterling.

An architect says the future kitchen will be in the front of the house. It should simplify things for many. As soon as the guests arrive they can be put to work squeezing oranges.

Mahatma Gandhi has refused to permit his followers to immortalize him in stone. Possibly he feels the medium selected for Lot's wife would be more suitable.

A young Swedish dancer and actress has been offered a Hollywood talkie contract if she can lose the accent. Just at present it is the bane of her existence.

New York officers are on the trail of a man who stole a hot stove. Just at this time the thief is warmer than the police.

People who live in glass houses must get tired of trying to tack pictures on the wall.

All things are relative and being an important citizen is merely a matter of finding a town small enough.

You usually can tell by the expression on a man's face whether he is lovesick or merely sick of love.

"Inquiry" is the order of the day. The answer will be left to posterity.

Most of us like to work off our ill-temper at home, so we can be nice and pleasant in company.

We pity married couples who never quarrel. Patching up a quarrel is just like another honeymoon.

Pat a dog and its tail wags, but that doesn't prove much. A beer reacts in the same way.

Alas! The only one that doesn't give honorary degrees is the school of experience.

Let us agree that it takes real tolerance to let somebody else be happy in his way instead of in our way.

It's no longer a hick town if men establish filling stations before failing at everything else.

The worm has turned. A man has sued a woman for breach of promise.

THROUGH OUR SIEVE

In sports there is nothing as anemic as an alibi.

Now there is that income tax blank staring a fellow in the face.

Not half the "four-flushers" in the social world can play draw-poker and stick their friends.

Lima Beane thinks the man who can't see some good in himself lacks insight.

A communist is a man who looks for a job during a period of unemployment.

Honest men begin at the bottom and work up. Crooks start at the top and go to the bottom.

When the meek inherit the earth they'll probably backslide by giving banquets and making speeches.

It is not unusual for March to get a bit of rough at times. There is nothing in the meteorological rules against it.

Most of the real pleasures of life may be had without price. There is nothing that quite equals the stimulating comfort of a yawn and the morning home stretch.

Ho, hum! Admittedly there are self-made men. But you rarely, if ever, hear of a self-made woman. Possibly the beauty shops would turn in a police call if any attempts were made to rob them of credit due.

NOTABLES TO BE ON THE AIR THIS EVENING

Diplomats and high officials of ex-service associations of the United States and Canada, will be heard over an NBC network Monday night, March 23, during a reception for Ralph T. O'Neil, national commander of the American Legion, at the Mount Royal Hotel in Montreal. O'Neil will be honor guest of the Montreal post of the American Legion, the reception being given under these auspices.

This will be the first time that a national commander of the Legion will speak officially to a group outside of the United States.

Hanford MacNider, former Legion commander and now United States Minister to Canada, will be master of ceremonies. He will introduce O'Neil and other speakers.

William Duncan Hertridge, recently named Canadian Minister to the United States; Major General Sir Henry Thornton; Westley Frost, U. S. Consul General for Canada; Lieutenant Colonel L. R. La Roche, president of the Canadian Legion of the British Service League, will also be heard in brief talks.

The half-hour program will be broadcast over an NBC-WJZ network from 10.30 to 11.00 o'clock, Eastern Standard Time. The Chesebrough Real Folks program, usually heard at this time each Monday night, has relinquished its period on the air in favor of the Legionaires.
