FREEZING A LA MODE

Police Commissioner Mulrooney of New York has had charge of the work of distributing wearing apparel to needy New Yorkers. He has found he says, that women who need and ask for clothing will not accept anything unless it is in style. The Commissioner says that the women turn up their noses at anything that is not "late." Apparently they would rather be cold than to wear warm clothing that is not up to the Paris fashion.

We do not know specifically anything about the real circumstances in this case, but it would seem to be a fair wager that the women who scorn warm clothing rather than to be out of the style running are women who are not feeling the pinch of cold necessity. A shivering person, even a woman who likes to be in the mode, will get into a warm coat without urging. The chill does the urging.

However, if there are any New York women who would rather freeze in pumps than be comfortable in high shoes, or who would prefer to shake in flimsy than to be snug in worn woolen goods, they do not deserve relief. Thackeray found that there were some dozens of different kinds of snobs. Hard times in New York seems to have developed a new species. However, if this new kind of snob exists in New York city it probably exists in every other city in the land.

In ninety-nine cases out of a hundred woman is better than man, but we have thought that no freezing man would reject a warm suit because it was not a Bond street cut.

The glee clubs of the New England universities were in competition last evening with their college songs. The winning club is to take part in a great competition to be held at Carnegie Hall, New York, March 14th. The college boys of New England certainly know how to sing, as those who listened in on the Hartford radio station last evening can bear witness. Their songs are all good, but we believe we will be pardoned for expressing the opinion that the staid song of the University of the good old prohibition state of Maine has all the others beaten to a frazzle.

The Soviet government has offered to purchase ten million dollars worth of farm implements in Canada, and give in part payment anthracite coal to the value of $3,500,000. The offer should be declined without thanks. The Maritimes would gain nothing from the sale of agricultural implements to Russia, but would be hit by the purchase of coal from that country. As Premier Baxter well expressed it a short time ago the public men of the Maritimes must not allow themselves to sleep at the switch.

Holland pumps dry an enormous canal and adds a half million acres to the country. Holland adjusts herself to circumstances, makes the best of nature. Human folk can do the same thing. Think of the waste time, misdirected energy and misbehavior in our lives. We can convert bal soil into good. We can become productive where we never got results. We are full of possibilities. What we need is to clear up the waste and give ourselves intensive cultivation.

According to reports in circulation it costs more these days to run a hockey team for three months than it does to run a church for a whole year. This seems to make it clear that if the church had the necessary funds, so freely given for the promotion of Canada's winter sport, and the enthusiasm that goes with a hockey match, it could start a religious revival that could easily break the record made on the day of Pentecost.

In the opinion of the largest lumber operators of New Brunswick the Government of Canada should stand pat and make no truce with Adamshad, the bear that walks like a man.

We cannot agree with the statement of Police Commissioner Mulrooney of New York that needy women will not accept gifts of wearing apparel unless they are in style. Not many years ago a Fredericton Lady sent a parcel of old clothes to a rural parish in York County. On the following Sabbath a young woman beneficiary made her appearance in church decked out in a kimona.

In the case of the American lady in Paris who has had her face lifted five times. It would seem almost worthwhile to put in a drawstring and tie the slack up over the ears occasionally.

University professor who has been investigating snores says their sex cannot be determined by their sound. More interesting than his conclusions would be information as to where he gathered his data.

Dr. Braun says that he knows from observation that a woman takes 80 steps in properly preparing a cup of coffee. That settles it; what's wrong with the average cup of coffee is that it isn't given enough road work.

Funny no savings bank has worked up an advertisement showing the present estate of Garo Agha, the 156-year old Turk, assuming he had put away some of his cigar money in 1790.

The Hollywood actor who plunged on a $480,000 home and has nothing in it now to eat, brings to mind Jack Pearl's famous dictum, "He buttered his bread. Let him lie in it."

A growing curiosity is evident among New Yorkers as to what happens to the money after you place it in a bank.

It is said if a car going 265 miles met the slightest irregularity in the surface of the track, such as a pedestrian, the car would be wrecked.

Something tasty from Arkansas, for the household editor: A turnip sandwich, made by placing a slice of turnip between two other slices of turnip.

Fearing it might not be observed otherwise, stevedores at Havana have announced publicity that they are on strike.

PUBLIC OPINION

GIRLS NOW "NOT SO SHY"

Editor, Daily Mail,
Dear Sir:—

To "Cinderella": My opinion is the same as yours regarding the modern times and girls. In grandma's time the girls were just the same, only they did the things more underhanded than the girls of today do. Don't misunderstand me; I don't mean to insinuate that the old-fashioned girl was dishonest. I only want to bring out that the girls of today are not as shy as the girls of other days. Now they do things out in the open that grandma did behind the door.
