

PRESIDENT HOOVER HAS TO TO OBEY THE ORDERS OF THE FAMILY DOCTOR, CAPT. BOONE

Washington, D. C.—It's a regular battlefield doctor who keeps the President of the United States in physically good condition.

And to Capt. Joel Thompson Boone orders are to be obeyed by his patients, whether he be a President or some one of lesser rank.

This small man, slenderly erect, dark and with steady, serious eyes, doesn't seem the type of person, who could play the part of a "task-master" on occasions. But he can, and does, as White House physician.

Thus when he thought that President Hoover should arise early in the morning and have a medicine ball around the White House lawn before tackling the day's work the President did so.

Fishing is about the only form of recreation for which Mr. Hoover has displayed a real love, but he "medicine-balls" just the same.

Yet "Doc" Boone is far from being the serious-minded and exacting man of medicine.

Likes His Jokes

If a practical joke is perpetrated at the President's week-end camp on the Rapidan usually it can be traced either to the good doctor or Lawrence secretariat. Junior Cabinet members who have been guests at the Rapidan can testify to that.

He is a general favorite with newspaper men who cover the White House. There are few of them he hasn't taken in hand when they were ailing.

His two decorations—the Croix de Guerre and the Distinguished Service Cross—were earned under shell fire at Belleau Wood.

As far as is known, Capt. Boone has no political ambitions, though his job in the past has served as a stepping stone to higher things.

President Wilson's physician, Dr. Cary Grayson, got to be a nationally known figure as well as an admirable doctor, through a White House assignment.

Road To Renown

And there was Doctor Sawyer, who came from Marion, Ohio, to attend President Harding. He got to be a general officer of the medical reserve by the same route and later turned to veterans' hospitalization work.

Perhaps the case of the late Maj. General Leonard Wood is the most outstanding. As an army doctor he served as medical-military aid to President McKinley.

It was at the White House that he met up with Theodore Roosevelt. From this association came the famous Rough Rider command in the Spanish-American war that ultimately led Wood almost to the Presidency itself.

And Doc Boone, who holds the rank of Lieutenant commander in the navy, is Captain Boone as long as he serves at the White House.

Add familiar quotations: "If that's my wife I'm not here."

ROCKEFELLER RADIO CITY TO HAVE A MONSTER THEATRE

New York, Sept. 2—Plans for the largest theatre in the world to seat 6049 persons and to be the tenth unit of the Rockefeller-Radio City development, have been filed with the Manhattan Bureau of Buildings today. The theatre known as the International Music Hall, will rise on the west half of the block bounded by 5th and 6th avenues, 50th and 51st streets. Excavation already is under way.

The plans call for a thirty story office building to be erected over the foyer of the theatre on the 6th avenue front and for an elaborate roof garden to be planted with trees, shrubs and grass plots above the theatre.

An expensive lounge and coffee shop, in the Continental style, is planned for the basement under the grand foyer to accommodate patrons with refreshments during intermissions.

Broadcasting studio and rehearsal rooms are provided for on the upper floors above the stage.

The combined theatre and office building would cost approximately $7,000,000 according to estimates of the architects, Reinhard & Hoffmeister, Corbett, Harrison & MacMurray and Raymond Hood, Godley & Foulhoux. That is exclusive of the value of the site, which fronts 200.9 feet on 6th avenue and 357.6 feet on the streets. The office building would rise about 375 feet.

The preliminary plans for the roof garden call for a hedge about sixteen feet high on the 51st street side of the building. A row of trees would rise in front of this hedge on the garden side. The centre of this sky park would be dominated by a large fountain in a diamond-shaped grass plot, with flower fringing the pool and a low hedge bordering the lawn. Two other fountain pools would flank the central monument, each in its own grass plot and flower bed.

Tiled promenades are planned for the park and a grove of twelve trees is to be laid out on the eastern end of this roof.

Although many large spaces of the interior walls of the theatre are designed for murals in the blue prints now on file, definite details of the interior decoration have not been undertaken as yet, it is stated at the offices of Todd, Robertson & Todd, engineers of the entire development.

The grand foyer for the theatre is planned to be the equivalent of five stories in height and out of this great hall would open the aisle portals of the auditorium.

The seating capacity according to the Metropolitan Square Corporation, sponsors of the project, will be "about 6500." Present plans show an actual seating capacity of 6049, with 3660 seats on the orchestra level, 915 on the first tier, 822 on the second tier and 652 on the third tier. The Roxy theatre, the largest house in existence now, claims a seating capacity of 6200, but the Fire Department figures show a total of 5920.

NEW YORK POLICE HEADS ARE TOLD TO GET AFTER GANGSTERS

New York, Sept. 2—Two hundred high police officers received orders at a secret conference held today that they must wage a far more intensive war on crime.

The meeting presided over by Commissioner Mulrooney, was the first of its kind that he has ever called.

It followed closely after "Lupo the Wolf" once chieftain of the Mafia and most dreaded gang leader of New York, was taken out of police line-up and charged with murder.

Among the ninety-three other prisoners parades across the stage at police headquarters was Angelo Hale (or Yale) brother of the gangster Frankie Hale, who was slain in Brooklyn three years ago after a reported split with Al Capone.

Issues Five Orders

Commissioner Mulrooney told his aides that he was dissatisfied with some of their ways and warned them to mend them in a hurry. He issued five specific orders:

First. All commanding officers' day off are abolished.

Second. Patrolmen must be more diligent in walking their beats and must study the proper method of pursuing fugitives so as not to endanger the lives of innocent bystanders.

Third. A greater zeal must be shown in questioning suspicious characters.

Fourth. All policemen must regularly practice the use of firearms on the police ranges.

Fifth. Payrolls must be guarded more carefully and officers on such duty must wear their coats open and keep their hands on their revolvers while the money is in their custody.

Many Suggestions Offered

The Commissioner said that he had received at least 1000 suggestions for improvement of police work since the recent wave of criminal outbreaks.

He is still considering two suggestions that all police vacations be curtailed and that police badges be made of bullet-proof metal. A patrolman shot at the start of a recent ten-mile handit chase was killed by a bullet through the shield he wore over his heart.

Suggestions that officers be furnished with bullet proof vests was rejected.

DIETS, DONS PLUS FOURS AND ESCAPES

Joliet, Ill., Aug. 27—Arthur Miller, a convict, was clever enough to diet until he could squeeze into the golf togs of the warden's son and walk out of the prison July 4, but pride in the achievement brought him back today.

He found the plus fours, and the clubs in the warden's office last May, but his girth was too great to wear them. For two months he went on a diet that mystified the guards. On the morning of the Fourth he tried the clothes again and found the fit was perfect.

Nonchalantly Miller strolled through the prison yards swinging a midiron at flowers. As he walked through the gates his parting sally was a story of a birdie on No. 3.

After a holiday at Davenport, Ia., his home, he decided to visit Chicago and borrowed an automobile in Rock Island, Ill., he said. A traffic accident led to his arrest. In jail at Rochelle, Ill., he bragged about the golf togs escape, and a fellow prisoner notified the sheriff.

He was brought to the penitentiary today.

NO MORE COURT FESTIVALS IN OLD SPAIN

Madrid, Aug. 27—The Mantilla, lacy symbol of Spanish beauty and romance, has disappeared with the trappings of royalty. With the coming of the republic, modern, cosmopolitan head-dress is worn by the señoritas at bullfights and other public entertainments. There are no more court festivals whereat to display the high sevillian comb and mantilla. Gorgeous flowing capes of male public officials have disappeared.

Everything Lost

Two golfers playing a match were annoyed by a slow couple in front of them. At one hole there was a particularly long wait. One of the offending company dawdled on the fairway, while his companion searched industriously in the rough.

At length the waiting couple on the tee could contain their impatience no longer.

"Why don't you help your friend to find his ball?" one shouted indignantly.

"Oh, he's got his ball," the man replied blandly. "He's looking for his club."

BAN USE OF HANDKERCHIEF IN IOWA BANK

Des Moines, Ia., Sept. 1.—Please don't use your handkerchief when you enter a Des Moines bank.

The request is addressed particularly to customers of the Central National Bank & Trust Co., by four carloads of policemen and detectives.

The reason given is that a clerk on the balcony saw a man enter with what appeared to be a handkerchief mask over his face.

The clerk sounded the burglar alarm.

When the authorities arrived they found a customer with a handage over his nose.

"Don't you know that the stuff you're drinking is slow poison?" warned the wife.

"That's all right," replied the bibulous husband. "I'm in no hurry."

THE WOMEN OF ENGLAND WOULD SPURN THE HANDSOME MEN

New York, Sept. 2—The unmarried women of England have been pelted lately with a questionnaire on the enticing subject of their ideal husband. And those spinsters who have licked the envelope and mailed in their anonymous replies to the inquisitive statisticians have voted three to two against any ostentatious degree of good looks in the man they hope to marry.

They are a canny race, the British, writes Gretta Palmer in the New York World Telegram.

It is a fact that no ugly man quite believes that no handsome man even suspects that the gentleman who is anxious to curry favor with the ladies will find good looks a downright drawback.

It is true that women who have found their own love life disappointing are apt to spend their afternoons cooing at the profile of this movie actor or that, but it is equally true that they would scurry away like frightened bunnies if they met one of these comely actors in the flesh.

Make Them Jealous

For it is part of woman's feminine conceit to imagine that beauty is a feminine attribute, and when a girl runs up against a man who is too good looking, she is pardonably piqued. The handsome young puppy, she imagines, is "stealing her stuff"; she is disgruntled. Woman, in her strange, smug way, has become so certain that physical perfection is an attribute of her sex that she tends to consider a Grecian nose as effeminate a trait as a lip.

And if any woman ever loses her head to the extent of marrying a man who comes up to the tooth paste standard of beauty, realizes before she has shaken the rice off her shoes that she might just as well wear a crepe veil and Mother Hubbard for life, for all the attention her own charms will get. The public gaze will be centred on the entrancing lashes of her husband—who probably eats it up—as he, in all his complacency will spend most of the time he ought to be admiring her new dress, reknitting his cravat before the mirror that has the best light.

Great Lovers Homely

It is surely a significant fact that the great lovers of history have all had an endearing and rugged homeliness. Starting out with a decent humility as to their ability to dazzle, they have taken the trouble to learn how to please women. And they have found to their great gratification that there are many things which the ladies go with far more enthusiasm than good looks.

They have learned that a long silent gaze at a woman prolonged to the verge of embarrassment, will make her heart go pit-a-pat regardless of the color of her admirers eyes. They know that a judicious amount of teasing, a pleasant voice and a well spiced bit of flattery will enable Quasimodo to bowl over the lady on his choice, while her handsome suitor is still engaged in deciding on the socks he will wear to call.

ICE CREAM IN PASTEL SHADES

(New York Sun)

Tis year the ice-cream man with the pushcart in Greenwich Village has gone in for pastel shades. His can of ice cream, sunk in the ice and salt, is surrounded by bottles filled with brightly colored liquid like the big jars of red, blue, brown and green mixtures that used to stand guard over drug stores in the days before the apothecary shops were department stores and restaurants.

When you get your ice cream cone or parane cup, the vender obligingly sprinkles any color syrup on top that you happen to fancy. Flavors do not seem to enter into the situation. It's a matter to suit the eye entirely.

"Give me green," said one little girl with decidedly Irish eyes, as she forked up her money.

"Brown, I said and she got me yellow," objected one little boy whose sister had purchased his refreshments for him.

"Oh, go on and eat it, they all taste alike," urged his mother, and the youngster got busy, in spite of the fact it probably wasn't his astral color.

The hokey-pokey man is gaining wide popularity and undoubtedly the minute real hot weather comes in any sport dresses of pastel shades crop out, the thing to do will be to buy your ice cream cup to match your costume.

Gumm—"Do you know any reliable rule for estimating the cost of living?"

Boyle—"Yes. Take your income—whatever that may be—and add 10 per cent."
