Auto Bandits in the Old Country Likely To Get Short Shrift

Great Britain Will Not Tolerate Gunmen—Lord Byng to Carry Through a Drastic Reorganization of the Metropolitan Police Force—Gunmen To Be Suppressed.

LONDON, April 9—Britain will not tolerate the gunmen. When Lord Byng, Metropolitan Police Commissioner, returns to his duties after a long period of convalescence abroad, it is understood he will carry through a drastic reorganization of the Metropolitan Police Force with a view to suppressing automobile bandits and others who carry firearms.

There has been some criticism of Scotland Yard recently for its failure to deal more effectively with cases of this kind in spite of the present amiable police force equipped with wireless, but the police argue that there are so many duties to perform in connection with such petty tasks as traffic control and the supervision of motorists, generally, that they are not adequately staffed for dealing with major crimes.

It is understood that this is Byng's view, and he is eager to leave Scotland Yard in a far better position after his retirement than when he first took over his duties as police commissioner.

SPEAKER OF U. S. CONGRESS PASSES AWAY

Hon. Nicholas Longworth Succumbs to An Attack of Pneumonia—Son-in-Law of Colonel Roosevelt.

(Special to THE DAILY MAIL by the British United Press.)

Aiken, S. C., April 9—Nicholas Longworth, speaker of the House of Representatives in the 69th, 70th, and 71st congress, died today. Death came within two days after his serious illness with which he was stricken. The deceased was of the best known public men in the United States, and his death will be deeply regretted. He was a Republican and had been a member of Congress for many years. His wife was formerly Miss Alice Roosevelt, a daughter of former president Theodore Roosevelt, and they were married at the White House during his term of office.

EAGLE HATCHED IN INCUBATOR

Los Angeles, California, April 9—An eagle, believed to be the first ever hatched in an incubator, was hatching today with baby chicks and doing nicely in a chicken hatchery here. It is 5 days old. As soon as it is big enough to realize that eagles go in for chicken dinners it will be given to aviary.

The eagle was hatched from an egg found by foresters when a cliff was blasted away. It made its appearance 31 days after the egg was placed in the incubator.

BIG SNOW FALL

Boston, April 9—The snow storm in northern New England yesterday was one of the worst of the season. In New Hampshire snow fell to a depth of nineteen inches.

NEW HOTEL AT CHARLOTTETOWN OPENS APRIL 17

(Special to The Daily Mail)

Montreal, Quebec, April 9—The new Canadian National Railway Hotel at Charlottetown, P. E. I., which will be known as "The Canadian National" will be opened for business on April 17th. A. S. McLean, superintendent of hotels department, who has just returned from the Maritime Provinces has announced here. There will be a public inspection of the hotel on April 13th, and on the following day the Gyro club will hold a dinner and ball there. The Lieutenant Governor's state dinner will be held at the new hotel on April 16th.

BLACK AND WHITE COWS HELP SALES

Madison, Wisconsin, April 9—One dollar out of every four taken in by Wisconsin farmers comes from the sale of the dairy products of black and white cows, according to figures compiled by Milton H. Butten, secretary of the Wisconsin Holstein Breeders' Association.

SNAIL 15,000,000 YEARS OLD

Quebec, April 9—A piece of snail shell, found imbedded in gray limestone on a cliff here, is estimated to be 15,000,000 years old by Quebec archaeologists. The fragment found in the limestone is small but it is thought that the snail, when alive, measured at least 15 feet.

HIS MAJESTY CONTINUES TO IMPROVE

(Special to THE DAILY MAIL by the British United Press.)

Windsor, Eng. April 9—King George's condition continued favorable today and he maintained the progress made yesterday. An official announcement said the King was still confined to his room. It rained this morning but it was believed the King's recovery would be speeded by the return of sunny weather.

Mr. Jones is a visitor to this city today.

THE FRUIT GROWERS OF THE PROVINCE ARE HOLDING THEIR ANNUAL CONVENTION TODAY

Large Gathering of Members at the Legislative Building—The President, W. W. Hubbard, Declares That the Industry Has Great Possibilities in New Brunswick.

The Twenty sixth annual meeting of New Brunswick Fruit Growers' Association opened in the Corporation Committee room of the Legislative building this morning, with an attendance of almost seventy, representing all of the counties interested in this important branch of Agriculture. The president, W. W. Hubbard occupied the chair and in the course of his annual address, spoke optimistically of the progress being made. He referred to the great value of the apple exchange opened in this city last year, which had made possible a uniform pack for apples sent to retail markets. He deplored the necessity of importing apples from Nova Scotia and British Columbia to supply the needs of the home market. He predicted that the day would come when the annual value of New Brunswick's fruit crop would be worth $5,000,000.

President's address

The president's address in full was as follows:
Ladies and Gentlemen of the New Brunswick Fruit Growers' Association.

In welcoming you to our twenty-sixth Annual Meeting I can congratulate you upon the outcome of our industry for the season of 1930. While our production is relatively small and progress not rapid, we are witnessing from year to year improvements in our methods and a gradual increase in the quantity of well-packed fruit.

New Brunswick was favored last season with favorable weather for apple production and where spraying and general care of orchards was well conducted, the quality of fruit on the trees was excellent. The yield of apples has not varied very much in the last three years, and in comparison with our opportunities, is yet ridiculously small. It is a reflection upon our enterprise that so much of our provincial requirements are supplied by Nova Scotia and British Columbia. True, most of our commercially grown apples are shipped to Montreal, but it is not creditable to us that we allow other provinces to supply so largely our New Brunswick consumption, especially when we grow apples of better appearance and flavor. Prices and demand were better than in 1929, and had it not been for the curtailed buying due to depression in other lines of business they would have been better still.

WILL ROGERS ON A VISIT TO MANAGUA

Humorist Donates $5,000 To the Relief Fund

FIRST HAPPY INTERLUDE Made a Trip to Stricken City by Airplane

(Special to THE DAILY MAIL by the British United Press.)

Managua, Nicaragua, April 9.—The arrival of Will Rogers, American humorist gave Managua its first happy interlude today since the earthquake. Rogers handed a check for $5,000 to E. J. Swift, the Red Cross relief director, as his donation to the Nicaraguan Relief fund. Robert arrived here by airplane from Mexico, where he had visited several days. He will continue to Panama City and perhaps further southward.

New York Police May Have Solved Murder Mystery

Harry Stein, Dope Peddler and Broadway Racketeer, Is Under Arrest Charged With the Murder of Vivian Gordon—Was Subjected to An All Night Questioning.

NEW YORK CITY, April 9—Harry Stein, 32, known to police as a Broadway racketeer, dope peddler and petty thief, was charged today with the murder of Vivian Gordon.

The charges were placed against him after police had thoroughly questioned him on the strange slaying of the red haired woman who apparently made a lucrative living by spying on wealthy men at the edge of underworld.

Stein and three other men were arrested last night and questioned all night long. Finally, this morning, police announced that the formal charge of murder had been placed against Stein and that the three other men were held as material witnesses.

Robbery was the motive of the slaying, police said.

MOVIE STARS CHOSE COLORFUL EASTER ATTIRE

Hollywood, California, April 9—Hollywood boulevard was the scene of a brilliant fashion parade Sunday in which the film stars, going to church, served as manikins.

The actresses were merely following the age-old custom of wearing one's best bib and tucker to church on Easter Sunday, but the gowns they wore were the latest effort of the film colony's creators to unhorse Paris on the fashion lists.

Bright colors and feminine lines predominated.

Norma Shearer, just to be different, chose dark instead of the prevailing light colors. She wore a dark blue shiny blue silk dress, a hem-length coat and a shiny blue straw hat.

A Redingote coat of emerald green over a green and white printed frock was Ina Claire's choice. Her hat was of green silk grosgrain.

An ensemble of gray broadcloth, a turban of twisted chiffon in gray and white adorned Bebe Daniels, who wore shoes and hose in matching tones of gray.

Ann Harding prefers blue, and since it is a popular color, her boucle ensemble was powder blue with traces of navy blue wool embroidery. The accessories were of navy blue.

Mary Pickford chose a white Shantung sports ensemble with a three-quarter jacket of white shantung trimmed in white fox.

Light green was the color chosen by Joan Crawford. That was the color of her silk suit, which was trimmed with bands of golden brown fox fur. Her hat was of the same shade of green.

Ruth Chatterton appeared in a pink beige afternoon frock with lace on the bodice.

Dolores Costello's chartreuse green chiffon gown was trimmed with Russian sable and worn beneath a deep bolero jacket of quilted crepe. A standup sable collar on the jacket carried out the idea.

One need not be a centenarian to recall the days when the headgear of the season was referred to as the Easter Bonnet.

DANGEROUS AGE NEARER 40, JUDGE SAYS

Memphis, Tenn., April 9—Youth may be irresponsible, and at times a bit wild, but the dangerous age is nearer 40 than 14, in the opinion of Judge Camille Kelley, second woman juvenile judge in America and the first in the South.

Says Youth Improving

Judge Kelley, who in her seven years as judge of the Memphis juvenile court has heard thousands of cases, believes the youth of today are better disciplined and more law-abiding than ever before.

"We talk about youth being fast, but parents are miles ahead of their children," Judge Kelley says. "We censure children, but it is the fast, middle-aged group that should be censured and punished."

"here is nothing so pitiful as the man or woman whose pent-up childhood energy breaks out in a new place at 40," she says. "They have learned the paths of crime that the younger generation never dreamed existed."

"Petting parties, drinking and automobile rides into country lanes are not responsible for one-tenth as much juvenile delinquency as the lack of proper home influences."

"Modern youth has been labelled 'wild,' and they have come to believe they really are wild. Why, the dear children are mere amateurs compared to their elders," Judge Kelley says.

"A new world has been opened to the youth of today. Most girls know more at 17 today than their mothers did at 27. Youth is going through a period of adjustments and readjustments to modern conditions."

"Youth doesn't just naturally fall into the paths of crime or usefulness. It is lead and influenced and if the parents leave that important duty to the backlot playmates of their children, the blame is theirs, not the child's."

"It may be an old story, but the greatest source of delinquency is the broken home and the separated mother and father. If parents thought less of their own selfish desires and more of the happiness of their boys and girls there would be fewer juvenile delinquents," she says.

The question now troubling a lot of people is whether the late spring in stock prices betokens an early fall.
