

WILMOT PASTOR SEES NEW IDEAL IN EDUCATION

Rev. J. W. Bartlett Gave Interesting Sermon on Education on Sunday Morning... "Have Lost Vision of Life's Creative Processes."

"The trouble with humdrum life, is that we are losing the joy of creative productivity," Thus spoke Rev. J. W. Bartlett, pastor of Wilmot United Church at an interesting sermon on Sunday morning.

"Education does not come wrapped up in packages," said Mr. Bartlett; and he went on to stress the wrong interpretation put on the subject in modern life. He spoke of education as a well from which springs the modulation of culture and "in God himself the unspeakable blessing of life eternal." This is the true ideal of education.

Branding the present as a mechanical age, the speaker urged on his large congregation a newer vision of education and a "joy of Christian service."

"We are losing joy in work, and have lost the true vision of life's creative processes," he said. The speaker's subject title was "A Striking Contrast," and his remarks were interesting from the educational standpoint.

Yesterday afternoon the Men's Brotherhood of Wilmot church, recently formed, met in the banquet room of the Goody Shop at 230 and held an interesting service.

Christmas Trees

Coun. J. K. Liston, of Millville, who is making a business of shipping Christmas trees to the United States, was a visitor to the city today. Fans Interested

Hockey fans and fans of the Capitals in particular will be interested in the results of tonight's "Big Six" pre-season series of games which occur in the Maritimes and in which the Fredericton Capitals will play the Dalhousie Rangers at the training camp in Charlottetown. Dalhousie has a reportedly tough outfit and the game will be a big test for the local club.

Municipal Council

The York Municipal Council will meet in annual session in the first Tuesday in January. It will be necessary to elect a new warden and among the names mentioned for the position are Coun. C. E. Allen, of Southampton, and W. J. Gaynor, of McAdam. It is said that one of the councillors for the Parish of Queensbury may also put up a claim as it is now many years since that parish had the honor.

No Comment To Make

Premier Richards, when questioned this morning regarding the census returns for New Brunswick, said that he was pleased to note that the population of the province had increased, but regretted that the increase was not greater. Until the returns from Quebec are made public, showing the unit of representation, he said that he did not care to make any further comment. He was hopeful, however, that there would be no reduction in the federal representation of the province.

HIGH MARK OF 64-IN-THE SHADE ON SUNDAY

Summer-like Weather in Capital Over the Week-End—High Mark Was Set For the Month of November.

Never before in the history of capital weather annals, was the temperature as high as Sunday produced, according to the recollection of a well known local statistician on such matters, Mr. Donald Cameron, postmaster. Yesterday's almost summer-like temperature saw a mark of 64 degrees in the shade, and it shattered all records of recent years for the season of the year.

Hundreds of citizens took advantage of the perfect weather for long walks, jaunts in their motor cars, and some even essayed to hold a late fall picnic.

The highest previous mark for fall temperature was 57 made some years ago. Mr. Cameron reports that on Saturday the thermometers showed a high mark of 62. Today was again over 60 degrees in the shade, and marks a spell of the warmest November weather in many years.

Predictions of a late and open fall, seem to be coming true, for only slightly more than a month remains before Christmas, and there is no indications of impending winter as yet. Last year the freezeup of the Saint John river at this point on December 2nd, only a week from Wednesday.
