AN AVERAGE CITIZEN

You may see him says an exchange, at the seed counter, furtively looking at the gaudy pictures on the seed packages and shaking them to see if they will rattle. He is likely to tote home a midget rose bush. Or a new spade or a rake all gilt and shiny.
It is possible that some Saturday afternoon he may be glimpsed in what passes for his back yard. He's probably wearing a slouch hat or maybe an old straw one if it's warm enough. He's been spading and hoeing and raking all afternoon and has just finished planting his "acreage." The plot is five feet long and four feet wide. And in it, because he loves to dabble in the dirt so he has onions and lettuce and radishes and Golden Bantam corn and a few muskmelons and a few (just a few) hills of pumpkin and squash, and a very few cucumbers.
He will tend this all very carefully for a couple of weeks until it shows green and pretty. Then when the weeds come, and the drouth and the bugs and the neighbors' dogs he'll quit cold, smile sheepishly and decide that it's cheaper to buy garden stuff after all, although he did relish the exercise.
For he's an average citizen.

CARELESS
Connecticut, granting licenses for auto driving, asks questions like this: "What day of the month is it? How many persons are dependent on your earnings? Do you carry life insurance?"
The man who doesn't remember the date is probably careless and the man who has dependents and carries no life insurance is likely to be an irresponsible person.
You can generally determine a man's trustworthiness by learning about his family relationships—the quality of his behavior at home.

William Shakespeare, the greatest dramatist who ever lived was born at Stratford-on-Avon three hundred and sixty seven years ago today, and his birthday is being fittingly honored through the civilized world. He was never outside of England and died in the prime of life, yet his work will live as long as the English language lasts. Special programs in honor of the memory of this great man will be broadcast from a number of American radio stations this evening.

With a statement from California that an astronomer there has seen 70,000 stars in the last 20 years, I fear Floridians will begin to suspect the presence of icy sidewalks.

A traveller who penetrated the wilds of Venezuela says he found a tribe of savages, the men of which were all "perfect gentlemen." How strange everything must have seemed when he returned to civilization!

Its also mildly funny that a man can get quite a lot of fun laughing at his passport picture without realizing that it looks exactly the way his friends think he looks.

Men who think are more apt to get sick than those who don't, says a noted physician. That probably accounts for the healthy appearance of a lot of motorists.

The mother that used to say her twelve-year-old daughter was six so she could ride for half-fare now says she is sixteen, so she can drive the car.

The independent class is the one that doesn't have any breakfast if the dependent class doesn't show up to cook it.

Even if you win sympathy it is only the bobby prize, so don't try for it.
Buying now helps the other fellow to do likewise.

Never tell two women they look alike. Both of them will feel hurt about it.

Dad isn't very far sighted, but he always tries to look far enough ahead to have the blues.

Husband says he isn't vain, but wife has noticed that no little thing gives him more pleasure than a photograph of himself.

Another advantage to aviation is that there are no aerial trucks to hog the centre of the air lanes.

Parking space is like money—there is plenty of it where it doesn't do you any good.

Some of the failures are only men who have "had their self-conceit taken out of them."

THROUGH OUR SIEVE

Another kind of intelligence test is what we do with our leisure.

You can bank on spring having a large and appreciative audience.

In Utopia the amateur gardener's new onions and radishes are already up.

Lima Beane says the man who has all the money he wants has more than he needs.

Lima Beane says the man who was never absolutely broke has missed one of life's loneliest sensations.

Life is not futile because we never quite overtake the object of our pursuit. The race is interesting in itself.

"Smiles are merely little noiseless laughs," says a paragraph. And giggles? Merely a ripple of the risibles.

Originally, crooning was tolerated as a method of putting babies to sleep and was never thought of as a balm for lovesickness.

Lima Beane thinks the most appealing definition of heaven is that which gives us a vision of "the house not made by hands"—with no plumbing to leak.

Would you care to know that only one hundred millionth of an inch separates atoms. Put two atoms of opposite sex in a porch swing, each in love with the other, and you get an idea of propinquity.

DIVORCE COURT
N. B. Divorce Actions Taken Up Today in York County Courthouse — One Case, That of Marshall vs. Marshall, From Saint John, Under Consideration—Finished This Morning.

The New Brunswick Divorce Court, Mr. Justice Crockett presiding, adjourned to the York County Courthouse this morning to resume its April term. This was necessary on account of the N. B. Appeal Court session being resumed in the Supreme Court chambers. One case was completed this morning, that of Gladys Irene Marshall nee Selby, vs. Charles Marshall, parties of Saint John. George Byron, King's Printer, and Mrs. Stewart were called. The case is being considered.

One other case was started, that of Babel E. Fleming nee Dixon, vs. Weldon Fleming, the parties of Carleton county. This case was resumed this afternoon at two o'clock.

Yesterday the court took two other actions under consideration. They were James M. McGaw vs. Laura A. McGaw, and Annie M. Beggs vs. Ernest Beggs. Only two decrees of divorce have been granted by the court to date.
