THE DEBATE ENDS

The debate on the budget in the Legislature, which has been going on since Tuesday March 3rd, collapsed quite unexpectedly shortly before midnight last night. There were in all ten speakers yesterday and at least three other members, including the Minister of Public Works, were to have followed, and had not a hitch occurred the flow of oratory would have continued this afternoon and evening.

Mr. Doucet of Gloucester, who is chief critic of the Public Works Department, had prepared a speech which he had planned to launch this afternoon. The government to facilitate the business of the House insisted that he follow Mr. Guptill last night, but this for some reason he refused to do. The outcome was that the debate collapsed and a division was taken. The opposition amendment was promptly voted down and the supply motion was adopted.

The collapse of the debate will not be likely to cause any great feeling of unrest throughout the country. Upwards of one half of the membership of the House had taken part, and said about all that there was to be said and then some.

With the flood gates or oratory closed the House will now settle down to real business of the session and should nothing unforeseen develop prorogation should take place at the end of another ten days or a fortnight at the latest.

ALWAYS TIME

Alden Solmans, 95 years old, has his excellent paintings exhibited in New York. Mr. Solmans, bank president and business man, didn't decide to take up art until he was 80. Now he has fifteen years of it, likes it, does well in it, and should go on painting for a long time.

Many who have read this column think they are getting old at fifty or sixty. They hesitate to take up something new, however much they are interested in it. That's too bad. Don't hesitate to tackle the thing you long to tackle, whether you are thirty, fifty, eighty or ninety. Men, taking care of their bodies and minds, should be think they are getting through.

James M. Scott a member for York, was a speaker in the debate in the Legislature yesterday. Mr. Scott does not often take up the time of the House, but he made it abundantly clear yesterday that he can give a good account of himself in a debate. Making no pretence at oratory but being a practical lumberman of long experience he had no difficulty in holding the attention of the House for half an hour. He said all that he wanted to say and said it well. Not for many years has the County of York had a more sturdy or useful representative in the House than Mr. Scott has proved himself to be.

The speech of Mr. Siddall of Westmorland in the Legislature yesterday lent spice and pep to the debate. He dealt forcibly with many matters of importance and incidentally made it clear that the high professions of lofty virtue which the opposition have been putting forth during the session were nothing more than a veneering, especially donned for the purpose of hoodwinking the public. Mr. Siddall certainly gave the boys who sit at the Speaker's left an uncomfortable half hour.

Mr. Siddall of Westmorland in the course of a speech in the Legislature took a fall out of the New Brunswick Temperance Alliance. He made it clear that in the late election it was nothing more than a side show for the Liberal opposition. Mr. Siddall was one of nine members of the House to vote against the Liquor Control Act in 1927. Six of the nine offered for re-election and all were returned in spite of the Opposition of the Temperance Alliance which goes to show that there is not much gratitude in the organization.

AN OLD TIMER

From the files of the Halifax Chronicle of sixty years ago the following item is taken:
"In the Senate last night Senator Mitchell moved the second reading of the Fisheries' Bill. He explained that the measure was necessary to allow the officers engaged in the seizing of vessels to take into other than the nearest port. Also that one-half of the value allowed to officers making such seizures be divided among the crew seizing the vessel. The service performed by the officers in this delicate duty was such as secures the entire satisfaction of the head of the Department." (The above has reference to Hon. Peter Mitchell of Northumberland, a father of Confederation and Canada's first Minister of Marine and Fisheries.)

Hon. P. J. Veniot, who is supposed to be leader of the New Brunswick Liberals in Parliament, has gone to Ottawa to enter upon his duties. Some comment has been made over that fact that the ex-Postmaster-General has not put in an appearance at the Legislature to give advice and inspiration to his followers. The explanation, according to report is that he was politely told at the beginning of the session to remain away.

Tomorrow will be Friday the 13th. In view of the fact that thirteen opposition members lined up in the House last evening to vote against the government's supply motion is just as well perhaps that the debate was not prolonged until Friday.

A new school of thought is based on the theory that the whole is greater than the sum of its parts. It should be easily proved by taking the average club sandwich apart and trying to put it together again.

"I want silence," said Col. Roosevelt on one occasion, "and very little of that." And the Chaplain of the New York State Senate, opening the current session, prayed, "Give us, O Lord, wise laws and fewer of them."

A feature of the old Chinese warfare was the beating of loud gongs to terrorize the foe. Seemingly this is all modernized now since a Chicago mail order house yesterday shipped 10,000 alarm clocks to Peiping.

Spanish hairdressers are to close their shops hereafter on Sundays, Saint's days, public holidays and whenever there is a bullfight. It should give the barber of Seville loads of opportunity for his opera lessons.

The short shrift given the opposition amendment in the Legislature last night will give Leader Dysart and his followers further cause for regret.

THROUGH OUR SIEVE

The Rotarians and Gyros as Hockey players are good business men.

Do you remember when one of the perquisites of the members of the Legislature was free coaching?—Chief whip Atkinson's car is now the only free coach.

No news is good news only when bad news is expected.

It's an ill wind that blows nobody good opportunity for complaint.

When a born story teller learns how to laugh at his own yarns, he has qualified for ranking as a raconteur.

To achieve perfect silence: Absent-mindedly tell the newest, funniest story to the man who told it to you. monument for the truant officer.

France is going to build a school to the inventor of algebra. We say next hear that someone has suggested a Thoreau: "The morning wind forever blows, the poem of creation is interrupted; but few are the ears that hear." The night wind, sawing at the eavestrough is music of a different tempo.

A penetrating observer remarks: "The sheer pleasure of living has decreased appallingly." Possibly because so many people have conceived the notion that hell-raising is all there is to life.
