ORGANDIE DANCE FROCKS

By far the most practical and fashionable fabric for evening outside of satin is organdie, and it has many more possibilities than plain pastels.

A striking dance frock is made of red and white plaid organdie with a double bertha of white edged with double ruching as is also the hem of the ankle length skirt. The belt is of the fabric, braided instead of used plain.

Checked white organdie with a scattered pattern of red cherries is seen in another clever dance frock, with pipings in red.

Black organdie makes a stunning and very crisp diaphanous evening dress. Patou's orplaine green and yellow organdie dance frocks with their patent leather belts have been enthusiastically accepted in this country and are ideal for summer evenings.

A youthful note in printed organdie is ruffle trimming posed on the vertical on both skirt and diminutive bodice, but the ruffles in plain color instead of print.

Embroidered organdie, all-over embroidered batiste and cotton laces for evening are not only tempting to the fancy, but to the purse as well. And such delightful frocks are beautifully complemented by wraps of velveteen.

THE LAST TO SURRENDER

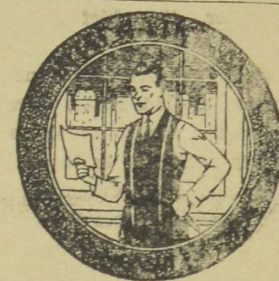

My lady used to wear a bun Of raven hair, a lovely one Of such a quaint and dainty shape That nestled in her neck's white nape To give her poise and dignity And—Individuality! Alas, that beauty should be robbed— She's gone and had her tresses bobbed!

The Samson slept and didn't care, And lost his power with his hair, This lady I can't help adore Has all the power she had before! —HARCOURT STRANGE, In New York.

AIRPLANE SPOTS CATTLE RUSTLERS

Sydney, Australia, July 25—The airplane has become the nemesis of cattle rustlers. A gang is in jail because airplanes spotted them in the mountain trails and pointed them out to pursuing horsemen.
