POPULATION OF PARIS

Paris, France, April 15—Census figures, announced today shows Paris has a population of 3,118,416, an increase of 280,000 since 1926.

It's a great country, The West hardly recovers from a blizzard before it is overwhelmed by a heat wave.

RECALLS FAVORITE FLOWERS OF WHITE HOUSE FAMILIES

Washington, April 15—The man who grew the famous Woodrow Wilson courtship orchids and literally picked the President's garden clean for Alice Roosevelt Longworth's wedding retired two days ago as White House gardener but came back to work again Friday.

Charles Henlock mused over memories of all the White House families since Grover Cleveland's first administration as he bent over his roses. He has been growing flowers for presidents for 45 of his 74 years.

"One cannot lose interest because he has retired," he said, "Besides, they need advice here, and it is a sort of pleasure to me, this work."

How many orchids he propagated and clipped and cooled for President Wilson to send to the woman who became his second wife the gardener could not count.

"It might have been scores," Henlock said, "or it might have been hundreds. Of course President Wilson sent them: He would have been strange if he hadn't, for she was nice!"

Alice Roosevelt?

"Ah, Alice Roosevelt?"

"Ah, there was a personality!" the gardener exclaimed.

Alice Took Everything

"She took everything we had for that wedding, but she was worth it. She was so considerate. If we hadn't what she wanted, she would take what there was without complaint."

"Mrs. Hoover has a preference for pink roses," he said. "She is a nice woman, too."

Henlock supervised planting thousands of Japanese cherry trees around the tidal basin in the Taft administration, and regularly predicts within a day or so the time they will bloom. He stood by while the first Mrs. Wilson, "extremely fond of flowers, in and outdoors," personally supervised laying out of a colonial garden.

liant colors from experience at Princeton," he said. "We generally agreed about the White House garden."

"Mrs. Cleveland must have been born for that position," he continued. "Coming in barely over 20 years old, and taking charge of that household as she did."

"Mrs. Harrison liked all flowers. I used to feel sorry for Mrs. McKinley. Invalid, you know, she never failed to come in and see that everything was right for entertainments, though someone else was to take her place as hostess."

Roosevelt a Visitor

"President Roosevelt was the only one of the Presidents who visited the green house. He stood and watched when Mrs. Roosevelt led him there on afternoon walks."

Mrs. Harding liked everything, too. Many a time we took those little bell-shaped Indian azaleas up there to decorate with, and would leave them a few moments while working, and never see them again. She would put them in her own room."

Funerals as well as weddings have occupied him. He shipped carloads of flowers to Ohio for President Harding's funeral. After the death of Calvin Coolidge, Jr., he supplied one flawless white Killarney rose daily for Mrs. Coolidge personally to place in a silver frame beside the boy's photograph.

"She was the key to that administration," he said. "She had such fine taste."

Without entertaining, it takes "a couple of hundred roses and as many carnations, besides some other things" to keep the White House in flowers.

"But that is nothing," the gardener added. "In England they spend more for the King and Queen's flowers in one month than we do in a year."
