SALMON—A VALUABLE ASSET

The amended regulations pertaining to the net fishing for salmon, recently adopted by Order-in-Council at Ottawa seem to have aroused quite a storm in the northern and southern sections of New Brunswick. The net fishermen have got it into their heads that the revised regulations are not going to give them a square deal, and they have been successful in inducing at least four members of the Federal Parliament to take up the cudgels in their behalf. Dr. W. A. Found, the deputy Minister of Fisheries, is now in the province, and will hear the complaints of the North Shore and Saint John net fishermen and ascertain if it is possible to make some modification in the regulations.

The net fishermen cannot be blamed for protesting against any change in the regulations, which might have a tendency to reduce their catch of salmon in a season, but they should understand that they are not the whole show. The salmon belong to all the people and it is clearly the duty of the authorities to so administer the fishery laws and regulations that the greatest good will accrue to the greatest number.

In order to remove some misapprehensions and redeem some minds from error a few statistics on salmon fishing might be in order. For instance a report sent out from Ottawa quite recently estimated the salmon catch by net fishermen in New Brunswick waters last year at about three million pounds for which the fishermen were paid the sum of $475,000, which would be equal to eight or ten cents per pound, or a little more than a dollar a head for the population of the province.

Now in regard to non residents who visit the province each year to fish our streams for salmon, there are no statistics available showing how much they pay each year for the sport, but it is safe to say that the total is greatly in excess of $475,000. The provincial government collects close to $100,000 for leases and licenses, and there would be the pay of guides, and cost of supplies in addition. The annual report of this Department of Lands and Mines shows that while the number of non-resident big game hunters visiting the province since 1925 has been almost stationary the increase in the number of non-resident anglers has been enormous. For instance in 1925 there were issued 215 salmon angling licenses at $25 each, 32 three day licenses at $5 each, and 310 trout licenses at $10 each. Last year no less than 521 non residents took out salmon angling licenses; there were 634 three day licenses sold or a total of 1,155, against a total of 247, both kinds, five years ago, an increase of 808. The number of trout licenses issued last year was 413, an increase of 103 over 1925. It goes to show that salmon angling is New Brunswick's star attraction for tourists and it is surely worth while giving this peerless food and game fish every possible protection.

The Mail has not the slightest hesitation in saying that Hon. C. D. Richards, Minister of Lands and Mines has done more to develop salmon angling in New Brunswick waters than all his predecessors who have held office since Confederation put together. It is not much wonder that considering the results achieved that there has been a marked change of sentiment throughout the province in recent years in favor of the non-resident angler. Why the province now collects almost as large a sum for angling licenses as was collected in 1925 from leases.
