INTERIM SUPPLY BILL WAS PASSED IN THE COMMONS AFTER A SPIRITED DEBATE

Ottawa, April 15—A demand from different parts of the House of Commons that the Government state its policy on unemployment, and a declaration from the Prime Minister that such a statement would be forthcoming when estimates were discussed, featured a hectic afternoon in Parliament today.

The practice in British Parliaments Premier R. B. Bennett declared, was to pass the Address in Reply to the Speech from the Throne before the Government stated its policies. He proposed to continue that practice. After the Address was passed the Government would state its policies on several questions, particularly unemployment.

Starts Turmoil

A Government motion to go into supply, made shortly after 3 o'clock by Premier Bennett, threw the House into the turmoil of a debate on unemployment. Three hours later the House rose for Wednesday evening's early adjournment with the interim supply bill passed, but with no other business transacted.

From east and west came complaints of unemployment conditions, warnings of possible riots, and demands for Government action. In a spirited brush with the Prime Minister, Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King, Opposition leader, asked for a statement of the Government's unemployment policy. What had the Prime Minister meant during the last election campaign when he said he would end unemployment?

"I do not propose at this moment to answer honorable gentlemen opposite other than to say this: I never expected to undo in a day, by remedial legislation, the wrongs that have been done to this country in the past 10 years," retorted the Prime Minister. He claimed no Government had done more to implement its promises than had this one.

Mr. Bennett complained of delay. Thirty minutes had sufficed in the past to put through an interim supply bill. Today a whole afternoon had been required. He warned that the civil service might not receive salaries tomorrow unless the bill was agreed to.

Brings Protest

J. S. Woodworth, Labor member for Winnipeg North Centre, asked for a statement from the Government on unemployment—what was needed was work—but it would be of some assistance in alleviating conditions.

A prediction by Mr. Woodworth that there would be riots unless remedies were offered to unemployment conditions precipitated a heated exchange between the Labor member and Hon. R. J. Manion, Minister of Railways.

The latter said a member who stood in the House and said there might be riots was "consciously or unconsciously inciting to riots."

The Deputy Speaker intervened to say that Mr. Woodworth must express his own opinion, and the member for North Winnipeg Centre retorted he was expressing just that.

Finally, after further discussion, the interim supply bill as introduced put through all stages and passed by the House.

Unemployment

Once again the House of Commons sitting in Committee of Supply, found itself today precipitated into a whirlpool of debate on unemployment. It arose when Hon. Peter Heenan, former Minister of Labor, pointing out that the estimates made no provision for unemployment relief, asked what the Government proposed to do, especially in view of the fact that conditions were graver now in that respect than they were when Parliament last year voted $20,000,000.

The reply of the Prime Minister to the effect that the $20,000,000 appropriation had not all been spent, and that the unemployment situation would be dealt with as the necessities of the occasion demanded, did not close the matter. J. S. Woodworth (Labor Winnipeg North Centre) immediately projected himself into the discussion.

He hoped, he said, that the Prime Minister did not intend ruling out any discussion on unemployment on the ground that provision had not been made for relief in the estimates. It was important that Civil Servants receive their salaries, it was equally important that the men and women of Canada should be provided with work.

"I don't think," said Mr. Woodworth, "that the Prime Minister realizes the seriousness of the situation."

He had had letters from hundreds of poor people who were on the verge of starvation, Mr. Woodworth said.

Riots and revolutions were usually caused by one of two things, said Henri Bourassa (Ind., Labelle), "selfishness of the enjoying classes," or the "blindness of weak governments unable to deal with the problems of the country." There had been near riots in Montreal this spring among the most peaceful people in the world, French-Canadian fathers of families.

The condition of people in the slums of London were no more than now prevailing among thousands of families in Montreal, Mr. Bourassa said.

ROADS OPEN MUCH EARLIER THIS SEASON

States through Maine and into New Brunswick via several of the ports of entry and traffic has been coming through from Quebec and Ontario via the Trans-Canada Highway this week.

Condition Good

Condition of the highways is surprisingly good for so early in the season, but traffic is still confined to passenger cars up to 3200 lbs. registered weight and to commercial vehicles with a combined weight of load and truck not exceeding 3500 lbs. While No. 11 Highway is still blocked by snow between Newcastle and Bathurst, the roads between Bathurst and Campbellton and in the vicinity of Campbellton are in good motoring condition.

The next difficulties to be encountered will doubtless be from freshets. The Saint John river to such a height that this afternoon, the water was within one foot of flooding No. 2 Highway at Swan Creek, but late in the afternoon water was receding as a result of the cold, windy weather and neither the Oromocto Flats on No. 2 Highway nor the Jemseg Flats, on No. 9 Highway have yet been submerged.

Verdict for Plaintiff

The sum of $14,380.50 was awarded to Harold McRae in his case against the Purity Ice Cream Co., Ltd., by a jury in the Circuit Court at Saint John on Wednesday afternoon. The original amount sued for was $25,000. The action was brought by McRae to recover damages for injuries that resulted in the loss of his left foot when a motorcycle he was riding was in collision with a truck owned by the defendant company on September 10, last year. Chief Justice Barry ordered a verdict to be entered for the plaintiff for the amount named.

Covered With Boils on Arms, Back and Neck

Miss Margaret Higgins, Dymont, Ont., writes:—"I was covered with boils on my arms, face and neck. I used plasters and other remedies with no results. My attention was drawn to Burdock Blood Bitters, so I decided to get a bottle. The results were marvellous, as in no time the boils had completely disappeared, and my skin was clearer and fresher than ever."

Ottawa, April 14—Total amount of $12,744,201.32 is provided by way of subsidies payable to the provinces, in the main estimates for 1931-32, tabled in the House of Commons.

Details show the same amounts payable to all the provinces as in 1930-31 with the exception of Manitoba, where an increase of $153,492.82 is shown.

PUBLIC OPINION

BETTER WEAR THAN RUST

Editor Daily Mail,

Sir:—

I read that an employee of the Illinois Central railroad after forty-seven years of service, returns after a month of idleness to ask for employment. He doesn't need the money, he says, but he must have a job—any old job will do—because he can't remain idle.

How characteristic! How many times all of us have wished to "chuck the job" and "quite work." Always we are longing for more leisure. Often work seems like a treadmill. Sometimes we would like to throw the alarm clock out of the window and turn over and sleep until noon. Forever distant places are beckoning and favorite pursuits are calling.

But when the times comes leisure loses its zest and the old job display attractions we never realize it had. Only the most worthless of us desire to be loafers. The best in us cries out for useful work. The day we steal from the job for a hunting trip, the afternoon we take for fishing or golf—these are sweet because they are intervals in the routine. But how they would pall if suddenly it were possible to go hunting, or fishing or golfing any old time or all the time.

UNDERWEAR FIGHT LOST IN U. S. COURT

Seattle, April 16—When women in the United States started to discard cotton and woolen petticoats for silk they made things more complicated for consumers of machinery wiping cloths.

It seems that this discarded underwear makes the best kind of wipers and, as silk is useless for the purpose, the country has turned to the Orient. On the other side of the Pacific the women wear more plebeian materials, and are glad to get them.

It this led up to the case in the United States Customs Court here the other day in which importers of "wipers" tried to convince Judge Genevieve Cline, of New York, that 20 per cent duty is too much to pay on Oriental underwear.

They contended that the discarded garments should come in as "waste," duty 5 per cent, or as "paper stock," duty nothing.

But Judge Cline failed to see how all the importers' arguments could convert "wipers" into anything else, and the women of the United States went on their way buying silk undies and those of the Orient cotton ones, all unconscious of the strife in the Federal Building.

Still, a wheat surplus doesn't seem quite as annoying as a famine.

It would now be in order to say every cloud has a cheap silver lining.
